Strike Meeting Fails, G. M. Ready to Renew Efforts for Settlement

Gov. Murphy, However, Says That Conferences Will Continue.

Deadlock Menaces Detroit Conference

Secret Vote by Workers Rejected by Union Representatives.

Bulletin.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Feb. 9 (Tuesday).—Gov. Frank Murphy announced early today that his strike peace parley would resume at 8:30 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight despite indications by General Motors Corporation that it felt the sessions had exhausted their usefulness.

"Despite statements that are made," the Governor said as a six-hour night session of the conference ended at 1:15 a. m., "I feel the parties are closer together than at any time."

G. M. Quits Parley.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Feb. 8.—Neogtiations for peaceful settlement of strikes that have paralyzed the gigantic General Motors Corporation's automotive production broke down tonight when General Motors, indicating the situation was hopelessly deadlocked, announced its representatives had left Gov. Frank Murphy's peace conference.

In a formal statement, the company assured the Governor "of our readiness to respond to an early call by him to resume conferences if, in his judgment, any good could result from them."

Two of the company's representatives remained in the conference room after the statement was issued as Gov. Murphy struggled to prevent complete failure of his peace efforts begun February 3.

A confidential source disclosed, however, that the Governor planned to announce a sine die recess.

Two Officials Remain.

Still in the conference room were William S. Knudsen, executive vice president and John Thomas Smith, legal counsel, representing General Motors; John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, of which the striking union, the United Automobile Workers of America, is an affiliate; Lee Pressman, C. I. O. legal counsel, and Wyndham Mortimer, U. A. W. A. vice president, representing the strikers, and Gov. Murphy and James F. Dewey of the Federal Department of Labor as counciliators.

Donaldson Brown, General Motors finance chairman, had left the meeting and apparently handled preparation of the company's statement, signed by himself, Knudsen and Smith.

The statement disclosed that General Motors had offered to have Gov. Murphy conduct a secret vote among its employes concerning their wishes in respect to union representation, but the union delegation rejected it.

The breakup in negotiations came during the eleventh session of a conference that began six days ago upon the Governor's call and at "the wish of the President."

At Flint, where stay-in strikers occupy two Fisher Body Co. plants in defiance of a court order for their removal, the city commission declared a state of emergency.

National Guard officers were prepared to act at a moment's notice.

Lewis Statement Revealed.

"Out of all of the conferences and discussions which have taken place," the General Motors statement said, "the fundamental issue again asserts itself—is the power of the union to prevail, based as it is on violence, disregard of law and order and contempt of courts; or are the legitimate rights of over 125,000 workers to be considered.

The statement disclosed that at the first session last Wednesday Lewis had stated that if a satisfactory arrangement on extent of recognition to be accorded the union were reached, he "would immediately put the strikers back to work" and negotiation on the remaining

House Liberalizes Red Rider, Overrides Repeal Advocates

Communism Would Be 'Taught,' Not 'Advocated;' Rep. Fish Joins Attacks on Clause; Party Lines Split in Voting.

Text of Chairman Norton's address and House roll call—Page 6.

By James D. Secrest.

The House yesterday substituted a "pink rider" for the famed "red rider" after an afternoon of debate in which no one came to the defense of the law which for a year and a half has barred Washington school teachers from any discussion of communism.

By a vote of 234 to 115 it overrode Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee, who sought outright repeal of the "red rider," and adopted an amendment sponsored by Representative McCormack, (Democrat), Massachusetts, coauthor of the McCormack-Tydings antisedition bill.

Among the surprises shown in the vote were that of Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, who has been a leading foe of communism, but who attacked the rider and voted for the amendment, and Representative Clyde Garrett, who displaced Representative Thomas Blanton, author of the Red rider, who voted against the amendment.

As a result the "pink rider," as it was termed by Representative Kent Keller (Democrat), Illinois, and others, was substituted to read as follows:

"Provided, That hereafter no part of any appropriation for the public schools shall be available for the payment of the salary of any person advocating communism or treating any such doctrine with favor or support; but that no official or teacher shall be requested to make any special declaration of nonviolation

Lewis' Enemy Gives Support To Auto Strike

Green, A. F. L. President, Calls on Governors to Protect Unions.

By William V. Nessly.

While Government officials throughout yesterday expected momentary collapse of the automobile strike negotiations at Detroit, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, took his first official step in the strike by calling on Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, who is conducting the negotiations, to protect interests of unions affiliated with the federation.

The action apparently served to tighten the deadlock between officials of General Motors Corporation and John L. Lewis, directing the strike, since Lewis' demand for recognition as the sole bargaining agency for all G. M. C. employes is the stumbling block in the negotiations.

Green made it plain at a press conference that he wants the United Automobile Workers, suspended from the A. F. of L., to succeed in organizing production or assembly lines in General Motors plants and declared he would do nothing to place himself in the position of being an ally of General Motors. Thus, in effect, he indorsed the strike.

This was only one of several developments in labor activity during the day. Others included:

Expert Urges Drastic Change In D. C. Streets

$4,000,000 Plan Includes Du Pont Circle Tunnel, Wider Arteries.

The District Commissioners last night were studying a report from Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, highway director, recommending drastic street changes—at an estimated expenditure of $4,000,000—to facilitate traffic movement in various sections of the city.

Capt. Whitehurst's report was based on requests from Representative Carpenter (Democrat), of Kansas, who was chairman of a House sub-committee assigned to investigate local traffic conditions last spring.

Submitted to Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan, the report carried estimates for specific improvement projects suggested by the subcommittee.

Among major recommendations of Capt. Whitehurst—in line with proposals of the House group—is an underpass for street cars at Dupont Circle. Changes are also suggested for routing traffic around Thomas and Scott Circles.

Asks Wider Streets.

In answer to the sub-committee's blow at certain narrow, traffic-clogged streets in downtown Washington, the highway director's report also included recommendations for a five-year street widening program to cost approximately $250,000 a year.

A "major operation" is necessary to solve the District's tangled traf-

Franco Routs Leftist Army, Takes Malaga

Defenders Merge With Throngs Cheering Fascist Van.

Nazi and Italian Troops Captured City, Madrid Dispatch Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Malaga, Spain (by Courier to Gibraltar, Feb. 8.—Fascist legions of Gen. Francisco Franco swept into terror-stricken Malaga today and occupied completely the last important seaport held by the Socialist government on the southern coast.

The surrender was unconditional. The defense simply melted away. No government authorities remained to proclaim submission to the insurgent war machine as it moved with precision into the heart of the city.

Occupation was completed when insurgent columns from all directions converged in the Plaza de la Constitution at 9:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m., Eastern standard time), with all major resistance of the defenders cleaned up.

Leftist, Crowd Merge.

What remained of the government armed forces, pushed slowly by Franco's legions squeezing in a semi-circle on the coastal city, streamed back into Malaga as the insurgents advanced, and melted into the crowds lining the sidewalks to greet the invaders with cries of "Arriba Espana"—"up Spain!"

Principal opposition to the insurgents was offered by a few hundred Socialists who made a last stand behind a row of trees near the railway station at the city's entrance.

Franco's men waited until all columns reached the city's suburbs. Then they advanced under the gray early morning skies toward the center of the city, where terrorists had added to the fear of the civil population, swollen by thousands of refugees.

Brilliant sunshine flooded the city by noon, and streets were jammed with crowds, cheering the insurgents and greeting the newcomers with the Fascist salute

Ship Prevents Flight.

Socialists apparently attempted to lose themselves in the cheering throngs, hoping they would not be recognized. Their organization had practically disappeared in the last few days.

A number of Leftist leaders were captured last night by the cruiser Almirante Cervera as they attempted to escape under cover of darkness in a ship which had held 800 Rightist prisoners. The ship, kept anchored in the harbor, was cleared of prisoners before the Leftists made their futile dash for liberty.

Rightist refugees who slipped through the lines from Malaga said the city, its population swollen by refugees to 400,000, was "mad" with terror as the advancing army came near, and ruled by roving bands of anarchists.

Army Called Italo-German.

Paris, Feb. 8 (AP).—The semiofficial Agence Espagne (Spanish News Agency), in a dispatch from Almeria, tonight reported the Socialist government forces were driven out of Malaga by a combined army of 20,000 Italians, several thousand Reichswehr (Germans) and Moroccans.

(In London, Viscount Cranborne, Parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons the government had been informed "considerable numbers of Italians recently arrived in Spain."

Madrid Holds Vital Road.

Madrid, Feb. 8 (AP).—Socialist defenders still held intact tonight Madrid's most vital link with the outside, the road to Valencia, at the end of the third day of a major insurgent offensive southeast of the capital.

Child Bride's Husband Sees His First Movie

Morristown, Tenn., Feb. 8 (AP).—Overalled Charlie Johns, 22-year-old mountaineer who married a 9-year-old girl, saw his first moving picture today and intimated he might go into the films himself along with his child bride.

The picture Johns saw was a newsreel in which the Rev. Walter Lamb, 53-year-old preacher, demonstrated with another couple how he married the strapping mountaineer and little Eunice Winstead in the middle of a mountain road for a $1 fee.

Johnson Leads Senate Revolt Against Roosevelt Proposal As Court Hears Labor Appeal

Railway Says Measure Not Effectvie for Part of Workers.

Justices Question Lawyers on Pleas

Tension Discernible as Session Opens With Procedure Upset.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Commencing a week's argument over constitutionality of Federal labor legislation which seeks to establish collective bargaining, the Supreme Court yesterday heard 1934 amendments to the Railway Labor act termed invalid and offensive to the Fifth and Tenth amendments to the Constitution.

The contention was made by James Piper, counsel for the Virginian Railway Co., which is appealing a court decree ordering recognition of an American Federation of Labor Union as representative for the carrier's mechanical department employes and forbidding the railroad to deal with any other representative or group of these employes.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed will defend the 1934 legislation shortly after the court convenes at noon today. Frank L. Mulholland, counsel for the labor federation union, defended validity of the court order and pointed out the necessity for it, but he left the Constitutional argument to the Government attorneys.

May Make History.

There was little that was colorful about yesterday's session of the Supreme Court, which marked the beginning of what may become one of the most eventful in its history. The railway labor case was argued quietly, with an occasional question from one of the justices, much as cases of far less importance are argued five days a week in the awe-inspiring courtroom.

But an undercurrent of tension was apparent throughout the day. The section reserved for lawyers was filled, many, including white-haired John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic Presidential candidate, waiting to get into the argument over the Wagner Labor Relations act as soon as their clients' cases were called.

Spectators for most of the session had to wait to get into the courtroom and at one time a queue of about 200 stretched outside the main doors.

Tension Is Evident.

This air of tension seemed at the beginning of the session to have affected the justices, upsetting the dignified and smoothly-moving proceedings of the body. Usually the court appears on the bench promptly at noon, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes leading. On Mondays, which are opinion days, the order of business is reading of opinions, issuance of court orders, hearing of motions, admission of new lawyers to practice in the court and then argument of assigned cases.

For a full minute after the hour of noon yesterday nothing happened. Then the curtains behind the empty chairs of the justices stirred—a signal to Court Crier Waggaman, who, with a tap of his gavel, called out:

"The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court."

But instead of the Chief Justice, Justice Louis D. Brandeis was the first to come into view. He paused for a moment, apparently embarrassed, until the Chief Justice made his appearance from the center. Then the justices were seated by their pages, the court crier ending his usual chant of "oyez! oyez!" with the words:

"God save the United States and this honorable court."

Chief Justice Hughes leaned forward, cleared his throat and asked if there were any applicants for admission to the court. Several appeared and were told to pass. Then the Chief Justice asked whether there were any motions, and there were none. He then announced that the court's orders for the day were on file in the clerk's office and

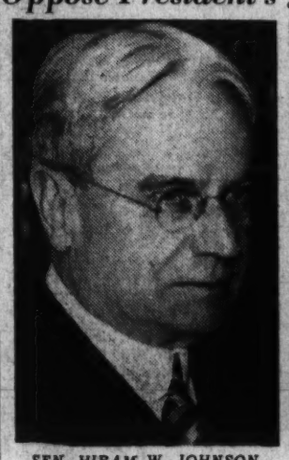
Windsor Reported Inclined to Delay Wedding Plans

Vienna, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor played the role of guide to his sister, Mary, and her husband today while an authoritative source said he was less inclined to rush his marriage to Wallis Warfield Simpson than he had been last week.

A friend close to the British royal family declared that after several talks with his sister, the princess royal, who came here yesterday, the former King was considering making less haste in his wedding plans and might decide on a civil marriage in Hungary.

Edward earlier was reported planning to marry Mrs. Simpson April 27—the day her divorce from Ernest Aldrich Simpson is likely to become final—in Vienna or at the Enzesfeld Castle of his now absent host, the Baron Eugene de Rothschild.

Oppose President's Judiciary Program



SEN. HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

SEN. FREDERICK VAN NUYS.

Californian Backs Borah in Opposing Plan for New Justices.

Deciding Majority Silent About Bill

Van Nuys, of Indiana, for Separate Measure on Lower Judiciary.

By Robert C. Albright.

Senator Hiram Johnson, Progressive California Republican and Roosevelt supporter, yesterday led a liberal attack on the President's plan to remodel the Federal judiciary, as hostile developments and compromise talk cut into Administration strength.

The Californian's announcement that he will fight Supreme Court remolding "to the limit of my capacity" followed an independent Democratic effort to "split" the White House bill into separate Supreme Court and judicial reform measures.

Developments of Day.

Significant developments, in a day that perceptibly narrowed the court issues, were:

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, warned the Senate Judiciary Committee he will move to segregate the President's proposal for six new justices in the high bench from the other reform proposals, because he is opposed to "packing" the Supreme Court.

Max Isaac, secretary of the National Association of Federal Practitioners, announced that G. W. S. Musgrave, of Baltimore, president of the association, is calling a national assemblage of lawyers in Washington to consider resolutions condemning the proposed increase in Supreme Court membership.

Influential Democrats in Congress discussed plans to bring out a long-pending Supreme Court retirement bill ahead of the Administration court plan. Possibility that two or three Supreme Court justices might retire following its passage led to guarded suggestions in some quarters that such a development might temper the White House plan.

Favored in House.

When the bill for salaried volunteer retirement of Supreme Court justices was before Congress two years ago, the impression prevailed that at least two members of the high bench would retire if the legislation passed. The same bill already has been favorably reported this session by the House Judiciary Committee.

Although the White House was still hewing to the line of full judicial reform, attempts at the Capitol to segregate the Supreme Court proposals from the rest of the President's bill, and efforts to block hasty action, brought whispered expressions that "something will be worked out."

The large "silent" bloc of noncommittal Senators was scaled further down yesterday by defections from the plan, led by Senator Hiram Johnson, who supported President Roosevelt for reelection.

"The issue, stripped of its verbiage, seems to me plain," said Senator Johnson—

"Shall the Congress make the Supreme Court subservient to the Presidency?

"The implications of this are so grave and far-reaching I can do but one thing, and that is, to the limit of my capacity, oppose this extraordinary legislation."

Backs Borah's Stand.

Johnson, who returned only yesterday from Florida, lined up with Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Progressive, against the court increase, in what may prove another historic union. Although they have had differences in the recent past, the two "irreconcilables" who once fought shoulder to shoulder against American entry into the League of Nations, united once more on the court issue at a conference shortly after the Californian's return.

Another liberal "Roosevelt" independent, Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska said to be qualifiedly opposed to Supreme Court remodeling, made a counter-proposal during the day. Norris suggested a constitutional amendment to limit the terms of all Federal judges to a fixed number of years. He doesn't believe judges should serve for life.

Sandwiched in between a meeting of the Senate Judiciary Com-

Relief-Deficiency Bill Passes Congress, Goes to White House

Houses Compromise on Rider and Vote $950,000,000 Appropriation; Fight to Be Continued for Ban on Lending Personnel.

Driven by an acute shortage of relief funds, Congress last night passed and sent to the White House a compromise $950,000,000 relief and deficiency bill.

At late sessions, both houses made concessions on the rider that would have prohibited use of regular departmental appropriations to pay salaries of personnel loaned to congressional investigating committees. As finally passed, the rider would only prohibit committee borrowing of certain personnel from relief agencies. The rider becomes effective 30 days after enactment of the bill.

Meanwhile, Representative Woodrum, Virginia Democrat, member of the House appropriations committee, said the fight for a complete ban on the lending of personnel would be pressed when the Independent Offices bill comes up in conference. The prohibition would have applied to the Wheeler investigation of railroad financing and the La Follette investigation of civil liberties violations.

Passage of the relief measure was especially imperative in view of the need for funds for flood relief. President Roosevelt has ordered that all of the appropriation necessary be used to aid victims of the Ohio and Mississippi River floods, and Congress later will be asked to appropriate whatever sum is needed in that work to reimburse the regular relief fund, designed Flood Damage Increased by Wind; Crest Batters Memphis Levees.

By the Associated Press.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 8.—A windstorm this afternoon swept portions of Evansville that escaped the flood, causing much property damage.

The storm swept through the north side of the city, unroofing a number of houses, breaking some windows and uprooting trees.

The flooded sections in the west and southeast portions of the city were mostly untouched by the wind.

Police said they had no reports of any persons being injured.

Weather Bureau observers said the wind attained a velocity of 45 miles an hour. The storm lashed high waves in the flooded area, where boats are still being used.

Crest Hits Memphis Dikes.

Mattson Case Suspect Is Held By U. S. Agents

Officials Say Alien Entered Country Illegally Near Tacoma.

By the Associated Press.

Pembina, N. Dak., Feb. 8 (AP).—Elmer R. McConnachie, chief patrol inspector of the United States Immigration Service, said today a man whose description resembled that of the kidnaper of Charles Mattson, of Tacoma, Wash., was held here for investigation.

The suspect, who gave the name of Stanilaus Poracki, 34, was taken into custody last Friday near Jolliette, N. Dak., and confined here on a charge of entering the country without inspection.

McConnachie said that a day or two after Poracki's arrest, it was noticed he bore a resemblance to an artist's sketch of the supposed Mattson kidnaper.

Immigration authorities and an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation from the Aberdeen, S. Dak., office questioned Poracki, but he denied any connection with the kidnaping and slaying of the 10-year-old Washington boy.

McConnachie said Poracki is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs about 165 pounds, is swarthy, has a slightly stooped posture and was poorly dressed.

Red Tail-Coats, Yellow Tuxedoes 'Certain' To Be Worn by Well-Dressed Man This Year

By Eugene Warner.

Ruby-hued "tails," lemon-tinted tuxedos, bluebird blue evening jackets, green—heaven knows what else in the way of gala colors for gents, is the ultimatum of the Merchant Tailors Designers Association.

This is definite, and no one will escape, the gentlemen of the draughting board and crayon, who are meeting here at the Washington Hotel 200 strong, stated yesterday. They were unanimous on our fate.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt heads their list of twentieth century Beau Brummells. Senators Millard Tydings and Henry Cabot Lodge break into the same list with Enzo Fiermonte, prize fighter, Fred Astaire, dancer, and Lucius Beebe, reporter.

"The only President in the past 20 years who could intelligently be termed a well-dressed man," said I. H. Milbour, president of the group, of Roosevelt. "He is the only one in years whose formal cloths have not looked motheaten. He is conservative but always correct.

"On the other hand he has originated several vogues, notably the cutaway made entirely of one fabric, which he wore at his second inauguration. He is always perfectly dressed for the occasion."

A rash of noisy colors broke over the livelier Florida resorts this winter, and will be reflected among "smart" dressers next summer, with the general public trailing along in 1938, according to Henry A. Wagner, woollen merchant.

"Loud!" Wagner exclaimed. "I've never seen anything like it for loudness. At Hialeah race track the men had the women skinned to death for loud colors."

Suits ranging in price from $85 (the cheapest) to $225 (the costliest) were on display on the top floor of the hotel, where the designers, naturally dressed in their Sunday best themselves, inspected one another's creations. It was an eyeful.

P. J. Foley, local designer, is positive America will see the return of the vivid colors worn by such elegants as George Washington, during the next year, but he added—to the

Come Close, Good People, See The Talking, Horse-Faced Fish

By James J. Cullinane.

After Mr. Isaac Ginsburg, studious, sober Government scientist, began hearing fish talking to each other at the Smithsonian Institution he realized the time had come to drop his studies and act.

For months Mr. Ginsburg had been seeing the strangest things—all in the interest of science—and yesterday he and the Smithsonian Institution agreed that he should tell all to a credulous public.

So Mr. Ginsburg reported he had been studying a talking fish with the head of a Lilliputian horse, the tail of a monkey, the shell of a beetle and the pouch of a kangaroo—a creature so positively weird that the papa fish gives birth to the young while the mama fish merely lays eggs.

Zounds! We wouldn't have believed it either if it had come from anyone but Mr. Ginsburg, a Bureau of Fisheries expert. And we might even have leered knowingly at Mr. Ginsburg if the Smithsonian Institution hadn't said he really saw what he says he saw.

But Mr. Ginsburg says what he saw is really a rather common sight. The fish he studied was the little hippocampus, popularly mittee yesterday morning, and a meeting of the House Judiciary Committee this morning on the plan, Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, and Representative Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas, respective chairmen of the two committees, had lunch at the White House yesterday.

Johnson Leads Liberal Attack On Court Bill

California Senator Backs Borah in Opposition to Plan of Roosevelt.

Both declined comments, except on their luncheon menu.

Senate Group Discussion.

Even though the judiciary bill was not actually before the committee, first formal discussion developed at yesterday's Senate Judiciary Committee meeting, when Senator Van Nuys served notice he will move to "split" the White House bill into two parts, each to be acted on separately. Van Nuys also will mive at the next meeting of the group to invite the Supreme Court justices to testify on the bill.

An informal poll of the Judiciary Committee on the Indianan's plan to segregate the proposed Supreme Court increase to 15 justices from other proposals in the White House message indicated the vote will be close. Judiciary Committee members were divided almost evenly on the suggestion.

The day's developments brought another hostile note from the Democratic South, following last week's denunciation of the plan by Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina.

Smith Opposes Plan.

Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, said he was opposed to the suggested reform, and "much preferred" leaving the Supreme Court as it is.

"I don't believe that when judges reach 70 they need assistance," Smith said. "If they propose a Constitutional amendment giving judges assistance at 75, I will vote for it." Smith is 73.

In a statement issued following the Judiciary Committee meeting, Senator Van Nuys said it was "never intended" that any one of the three branches of Government (executive, legislative and judicial) "should be dependent upon or subservient to the other."

"It may be that the Supreme Court has been ultra conservative in construing some of the recent acts of Congress," said Van Nuys. "It may also be true that the Congress acted over hastily in the passage of such acts.

"Let's be fair with one another. It was to meet just such a situation that the checks and balances set out in the Constitution were provided. I shall not be a party to breaking them down in the absence of a mandate from the people to that effect—which means the submission and ratification of a constitutional amendment."

Favors "Procedural Reforms."

The Hoosier said he favored "procedural reforms" outlined in the President's message.

Although commitments for the President's plan greatly outnumbered the opposition in the first day or two of discussions, those in the noncommittal bloc, holding balance of voting strength, were slow to disclose their hand. But of those speaking out yesterday for the first time, only one new voice favored the White House method—Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio. Odds on the proposed Supreme Court increase narrowed, as a half-dozen Senators, hitherto silent, followed the lead of Johnson, Van Nuys, Bailey, and others.

Among these was Senator Guy M. Gillette, new Democratic Senator from Iowa, who said he favored only those proposals not affecting the Supreme Court.

"The suggestion to increase the Supreme Court membership is very inopportune, very untimely, and at the present time it will be generally construed as an attempt at political control of the court," said Gillette. "I don't think that was the President's intention, but that will be the general deduction. I do not intend to vote for anything of that kind."

Favors Retirement.

Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, said he favored a liberal retirement system, but was not ready to indorse the proposal to increase the Supreme Court.

Norris, who is chairman of an independent conference on court legislation to be held here March 18, who made the alternative proposal yesterday to a limitation on the terms of Federal judges, said he thought the best way to deal with the Supreme Court problem was to require a two-thirds verdict by the high bench, before acts of Congress could be invalidated.

Proposal of National Association of Federal Practitioners officials for a national conference of lawyers here on the President's court plan followed a deluge of telegrams on Capitol Hill, many from local bar associations, condemning the plan.

Receives 500 Telegrams.

Van Nuys said he personally had received 500, and only "two or three" indorsed the Supreme Court increase. Ashurst, nominal author of the Administration's Senate bill, admitted that he had received a number, but said Senators had learned not to get "excited" over telegrams. Two House leaders said they had received many wires, mostly in opposition.

Isaac, secretary of the National Association of Federal Practitioners, in announcing plans for the Washington conference of lawyers on the issue, said the time and place of meeting will be announced today.

Politics and People

Odds Against Roosevelt Getting Supreme Court Program; Is Opposed in Own Party.

By Franklyn Waltman

ON FRIDAY when President Roosevelt dropped on Congress, like a bomb from the sky, his proposal that he be authorized to name six new members of the Supreme Court, the general reaction among political observers was that he would get exactly what he wanted, even though he had to fight for it.

WALTMAN.

That snap opinion on Friday was based on fairly good precedents. In the first place, Mr. Roosevelt has gotten during the last four years everything he really wanted from Congress. That body has been a perfect rubber stamp for him, only kicking its heels up over cash payment of the soldier's bonus, after Mr. Roosevelt had in effect capitulated on the issue, and on several small matters about which few greatly cared.

Secondly, Congress has a healthy respect for the voters and Mr. Roosevelt's November victory by a 11,000,000 plurality greatly impressed most of the Democrats on Capitol Hill and even some of the Republicans. Thirdly, appointment of between 25 and 50 additional judges is a tempting patronage dish to set before Congress at any time. With most of the New Deal spoils distributed during the first four years, real nourishment could be found in an additional judge or two for a job-hungry Senator—and, of course, additional judges mean additional deputy marshals and bailiffs.

Unfortunately, these are the things at which many Congressmen look when proposals such as that made by the President come up, instead of considering such proposals solely on their merits. Thus, in view of all that has transpired in recent years and the circumstances, it was a good guess on Friday that in the end the President would get his six extra Supreme Court justices.

It is not a good guess today. In the end the President may get what he wants, as he wants it, but the betting odds are against him today. This is true chiefly because the President failed to consolidate behind him his own following on this question. The sharpest opposition to his proposal has not come from the American Liberty League, the Du Ponts, Wall Street or the old-line Republicans.

It has come from within the New Deal ranks and chiefly from the more politically independent New Dealers—those who have little regard for partisanship—and from those as scornful of the Du Pont, Liberty League, Old Guard Republican bloc as Mr. Roosevelt has been.

This opposition is coming from Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, nominally a Republican but an ardent New Dealer for four years. It is coming from Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, also nominally a Republican but always as free and independent as a lone wolf. It is coming from the Southern Democrats, the backbone of the Democratic Party, all of whom were loyal to Mr. Roosevelt in the last election. And a dozen other New Dealers are cold to the proposal.

Outside of Congress the opposition is coming from former braintruster No. 1, Raymond Moley, who thinks the President's recommendation "comes perilously near to a proposal to abandon constitutional government" and will result in the appointment of "time serving men." It is coming from Morris L. Ernst, liberal lawyer and ardent New Dealer, who holds that the proposal has only the single merit of throwing the entire constitutional question into the arena of public debate. It is coming from the President's good friend, Frank P. Walsh, labor lawyer.

The opposition outside of Congress is coming from the New York Times, the Richmond Times-Dispatch, the Galveston (Tex.) News, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Scripps-Howard newspapers and many more which loyally and ardently suported Mr. Roosevelt in his race for re-election.

Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor his spokesmen can lash these persons and newspapers as minions of greed and the intrenched interests. Their views constitute honest opposition coming from within New Deal ranks and Mr. Roosevelt must listen to it—or undertake to set himself up as superior to his party and his own following.

And yet the President may be saved from a severe defeat if the American Liberty League rushes into the open with fiery denunciation, or if the Wall Street bankers or the Old Guard Republicans seek to capture the leadership of this fight. They have a perfect right to speak out—but it is politically and strategically unwise for them to do so, because it gives the President an opportunity to try further to confuse and becloud what he is about.

If those groups are smart, they will stay out of this fight and perhaps we can have a real public debate on the entire issue of the Constitution and the Supreme Court, stripped of the subterfuge in which the President has clothed it. Perhaps in the end, he will have the courage to withdraw his proposal and agree to the submission of a constitutional amendment to the country to get what he is after.

Speaking of courage, one prominent Republican on Capitol Hill remarks that "Dr. Stanley High had the courage of President Roosevelt's convictions" in his recent Saturday Evening Post article.

He said the association's officials acted on receipt of information that there is widespread legal opposition to "packing" the court. Isaac is editor of two New York legal publications, and the chairman of a Federal Bar Association bankruptcy committee.

As the House Judiciary Committee prepared to meet today on the White House plan, Chairman Sumners, reputedly hostile to an increase in the court, continued his silence, following his visit to the White House. Analyzing his past attitude on the court, and without any present statement from him, observers reached the conclusion that he would favor the portion of the bill which provides for the reorganization of the lower courts, and would oppose the increase in Supreme Court membership.

Once Opposed Increase.

Several years ago Sumners opposed an increase in the court, stating that in his opinion the larger the court the more likely it would render opinions of a "convention" tenor. He believed then that 11 or 15 men were just as likely to reach fallible conclusions as nine men, and the increase might retard rather than speed decisions.

On several occasions, Chairman Sumners has been critical of the present personnel of the Supreme Court, and several months ago he said the court was headed for trouble unless it moved out of the sphere it had assumed of fixing public policy.

"The Supreme Court should move out of its attitude of attempting to fix public policy," he said at that time. "To that I might add that Congress should be more conscientious of its obligation to act within the scope of the Constitution."

Sponsored Retirement Bill.

Sumners is the author of the bill providing for the voluntary retirement of Supreme Court justices with the same salary rights and privileges already granted to judges of other Federal courts. The bill failed of passage two years ago, but has recently been favorably reported again by Sumners' judiciary committee.

When Sumners first introduced the measure he made no secret of the fact that he expected at least two of the Present Supreme Court justices, whom he regarded as strong offenders in attempting to make Federal policy, to retire if it passed.

He has complained that the present Supreme Court has been reactionary, and that some of its decisions have invaded State's rights, but his often expressed conviction that voluntary retirements would remedy the situation led reporters here to believe he will strongly oppose any increase in the court's membership.

Child Falls to Death.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—Three-year-old George Boyden fell to his death from the seventh floor of a bank building here today. Playing in a corridor while his mother was in a dentist's office, the child evidently unhooked a window screen and lost his balance. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Boyden, this city.

Lewis' Enemy Gives Support To Auto Strike

strike of 1,800 railroad workers on the Chicago Great Western road, set for today, by appointing a three-man emergency board to investigate the dispute.

The executive council of the A. F. of L. opened sessions here to consider its legislative program, President Roosevelt's court reorganization proposal, status of Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, suspended by the A. F. of L., and other matters.

Representative Hoffman, Republican of Michigan, called for information on whether strikebreakers and company guards were assembled by General Motors at its Flint, Mich., plants, saying he wanted to bring out the employers' side.

The Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America called for "impartial determination" of what agency the auto workers want to represent them. It called the "sit-down" strike a "manifestly dangerous weapon."

Gave Union Charter.

Green, questioned by reporters, said the Federation, which granted the United Automobile Workers Union its charter, had given it jurisdiction over all the assembly-line workers, which he estimated would include about 90 per cent of General Motors employes. But he insisted the pattern makers, metal polishers, building trades workers and others in craft unions who had "established" themselves through their skill and whose work was not in the assembly lines should retain their own unions and not be swallowed up by the industrial union, which was suspended for backing Lewis.

Jurisdiction over the highly skilled men was especially reserved for their own unions, he said, in order that they might "commercialize their skill."

"To say now that some other agency," he commented, "is going to be the exclusive bargaining agency for these groups is developing a new principle which we cannot accept.

"We will see that they are adequately protected in keeping with their skill and training," he added.

Contents Unrevealed.

Green's telegram was sent in conjunction with heads of the metal trades and building trades departments of the Federation.

Declining to reveal contents of the telegram he recalled President Roosevelt's admonition that "statements, conversations and headlines" sometimes are not in order.

Regarding the Administration efforts to bring about an end to the automobile strike he commented: "I think President Roosevelt has done all he can short of calling out the Marines or sending a gunboat."

Asked for comment on the appeal for funds which the strikers have made on stationery stating they are "affiliated with" the federation, Green said all the C. I. O. union members still are members of the federation and will remain members until their charters are revoked or are given up voluntarily. He recalled that the federation still has a standing committee waiting to meet with a C. I. O. committee, whenever one is chosen, to work out the problem of their relationship.

He declined to comment on use of the "sit-down" strike method, saying the council would be considering it at its current meeting.

Other matters to be considered by the council include the C. I .O. situation as it has developed since the Tampa, Fla., convention in November, movements to organize cement, milling and other industries, and an organizing campaign among agricultural workers, and jurisdictional disputes among seamen on the East Coast.

The federation president reiterated the "deep interest" of the federation in the McCarran bill to boost Government employes' pay, and said the council's legislative program includes the O'Mahoney Federal license bill for industry, the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, the Wagner housing bill and numerous State measures.

Green made public a telegram sent to Gov. Charles F. Hurley, of Massachusetts, criticizing the Governor for his oposition to the child labor amendment and saying "we accept your opposition to the amendment as evidence of open hostility to labor's legislative program."

President Roosevelt named to the board to investigate the Chicago Great Western Railroad dispute John P. Davaney, chief justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court; Harry A. Millis, professor of economics, University of Chicago, and Walter C. Clephane, Washington attorney. The dispute hinges on collection of some $60,000 of back pay granted to members of five railroad labor brotherhoods by the National Railroad Adjustment Board. Collection has been blocked by court action of trustees of the road and the men recently voted to strike.

that the court was ready to hear arguments.

The typed sheets of court orders, usually ready when the court convenes, were delayed 40 minutes yesterday after the Chief Justice announced them, an exception to the usual procedure. It is understood that a mistake had been made in the first copies of the orders and that the sheets had to be re-typed, thus causing the delay and perhaps causing the Chief Justice to reverse the order of business.

The only item of any consequence in the orders when they were finally made public was assignment for March 8 of hearings on the right of the State of Texas to take steps to determine the legal residence of the late H. R. Green, son of the wealthy Hetty Green, for the purpose of assessing estate taxes. Massachusetts and New York claim Green was a resident in those States.

Piper Summarises Case.

Piper, a white-haired attorney from the Baltimore bar, led off in the arguments on the labor legislation. He briefly summarized his case, pointing out that the controversy arose oven an effort of the National Mediation Board to force the Virginian Railway to recognize the Federation of Labor union as the bargaining representative for its mechanical department employes.

He said this order was issued after the board conducted an election in which a majority of those voting had favored the federation union in preference to a company union, which had been in existence since 1922, but that in two crafts the vote cast for the A. F. of L. Union did not constitute a majority of all workers.

Chief Justice Hughes asked several questions to clarify this aspect of the question. Piper contended that the workers involved were "back shop" employes, who repaired and rebuilt railroad equipment, and that they were not engaged in interstate commerce. He said that the "back shop" could be shut down today without affecting the operation of the railroad. He also pointed out that the work done in these shops could be done by the Baldwin Locomotive Works and similar organizatoins not classified as engaged in interstate commerce.

As a result of this aspect of the matter, he argued that the legislation, or the board's application of it, transgressed the tenth amendment to the Constitution, by seeking to place these workers under the jurisdiction of Congress. Prior to that he expressed doubt that the act was intended to force compulsory negotiations on employers.

If it did, he argued that it violated the railway's freedom of contract and thus collided with the fifth amendment, forbidding the taking of property without due process. He quoted opinions of the Supreme Court to the effect that freedom of contract could be abridged only in exceptional circumstances. When he cited the court's ruling in the Carter cast last year, invalidating the Guffey coal control act, Justice George Sutherland asked whether there was not a marked distinction in such matters between an agency engaged in interstate commerce and a private business.

Piper agreed, but pointed out that in this instance, the legislation was seeking to regulate the relationship between employer and workers engaged in intra-state commerce. He said the Government sought to justify the interference with freedom of contract involved in the legislation by pointing out that the end was to establish industrial peace and thus not burden interstate commerce.

Fights Compulsion.

Industrial peace, he added, could be attained by compelling employers to treat with their workers. Such peace resulted only when the employer was willing to confer with workers, Piper contended.

He also assailed the form of the mediation board's certification that the A. F. of L. union had been selected to represent the "back-shop" workers and held that the lower court had issued an injunction against the railway for acts which the Norris-LaGurdia anti-injunction act prescribed should not be made the basis for injunctions.

Chief Justice Hughes showed great interest in this contention. He insisted on Piper reading the enjoining decree, in which the railway was forbidden to coerce or intimidate its employes in matters of joining a labor organization. The Chief Justice wanted to know whether the lawyer contended that the court had no authority, as a result of the Norirs-LaGuardia act, to prevent "coercion."

"Oh, no," replied Piper, who went on to explain that the court action was "bottomed" on the railway issuing a statement of facts regarding the controversy over union recognition, which it distributed to its employes. He said the Norris act forbid injunctions to enjoin "publicity of facts" in such instances.

"Your contention is that there was no coercion, although the court said there was?" suggested Justice Willis Van Devanter, and Piper agreed.

Mulholland contended that the purpose of the railway labor act was to perfect interstate commerce by preventing strikes, lockouts or disputes that would disrupt it. He contended that self-organization of workers and collective bargaining were instruments of industrial peace, but that the Virginian Railway declined to permit their men to organize.

Cites Votes on Union.

Even after the election held by the mediation board, he said, the railway refused to recognize or deal with the A. F. of L. union. He said the vote for the latter union was 429 to 98 for the company union in the Virginian's mechanical department.

He contended that many years previous to the election "a stalemate" had existed between the railway and its back-shop workers and that the provisions of the railway labor act provided the way for an amicable solution. He also argued that Congress intended recognition of the duly selected representative of a majority of the workers, under the labor act, to be compulsory and an enforceable obligation.

He will continue his argument today, when the Solicitor General will have one hour and a half before the court. H. T. Hall, of Roanoke, Va., also will make a further argument on behalf of the railway. The first of the Wagner act cases, that involving the discharge by the Associated Press of Morris Watson, an editorial employe in its New York office, will be reached around 3 p. m., with Davis opening that argument.

Murder Trial Jurors Chosen Behind Guard

Racial Outbreak Feared in Strangling Case on Long Island.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 8.—In a courthouse guarded against any outbreak of racial animosity, counsel strove tonight to complete the selection of a jury to try Major Green, a 33-year-old colored houseman, for the murder of Mrs. Mary Harriet Case.

Mrs. Case, whose husband, Frank W. Case, is a hotel executive, was strangled to death on January 11. The prosecution contends she was murdered in resisting an attempted burglary in her apartment in Queens.

Just before the opening of the trial a special police detail ordered about 200 men and women from the corridors of the Long Island City Supreme Court building. Capt. Edward Moran and a squad of 10 men were assigned to remain on guard.

Ten jurors had been selected early tonight. Court remained in session.

A last significant discovery by the district attorney's office in its investigation was disclosed during the afternoon. It was announced that after three weeks of search police had found in the apartment house incinerator the platinum and diamond wedding ring worn by the attractive Mrs. Case, who was 25, and a former resident of Lancaster, Pa.

Green was employed in the building.

Coronation Ceremony, New Knight in Family Lure Washington Cook From Pots and Pans

Annie Fraser Sails Next Week for England and Homeland.

ANNIE FRASER.

As Annie Fraser, Mrs. Joseph Leiter's cook, truns out tasty dainties these days, her mind is probably above the pots and pans in her spic and span kitchen. More than likely, her thoughts are revolving around royalty: for she is one of the few Washington residents who will have an opportunity to see the coronation of England's King three months hence.

Or she may be thinking about the knight in her own family—"my brother-in-law's brother," she said proudly by way of explanation, "is now Sir William Edwin Manchester."

She had come out of her kitchen for a few minutes to talk to a reporter and pose for a photograph. She could spare the time from her baking and broiling, she said, "providing the time is not too long." She would answer any question about her trip or her work or her brother-in-law's brother, but she preferred not to talk about her age and her private life.

With that understanding, she sat back quietly in a chair, smoothed out a ruffle in her crisp apron, adjusted her gold-rimmed spectacles, and waited for the questions. "Oh, yes, my brother-in-law's brother," she began. "You will find out all about him in this." She produced a British newspaper with a photograph on its first page, and a lengthy article telling how William Manchester has been knighted "for political and public services in Islington for over 40 years." He was once Mayor of Islington, Mrs. Fraser added. "He is a wonderful man."

She was as eager to see and congratulate him as to get a glimpse of the new King, she said. In fact, she was going back home to see her own family rather than to be an eyewitness to the coronation. "But since I shall be there when it takes place, I shall try to see as much of it as I can," she said.

When she sets sail next week—on February 18, to be exact—she will be starting her sixth trip back to England, since she left there 27 years ago with a friend who was coming to America on a short trip. A native of Scotland, she planned to spend her life there. "I certainly never expected to stay here so long," she said. "But now I feel as much at home here as in Scotland. More so, really. I am an American citizen, you see. I have worked for Mrs. Leitter for 20 years. I am coming back in May."

Step Up Close, Hear the Fish Conversation

Meet Hippocampus, He Has a Face Like a Horse, Talks to Himself.

known as the "sea horse." They are found all over the world, Mr. Ginsburg said, wherever there are growths of sea vegetation.

"They have provided the models of some of the nightmare monsters of the human imagination," reported the Smithsonian Institution. "Actually they are small defenseless creatures."

The sea horse "talk" by making almost inaudible snapping noises with their jaws, says Mr. Ginsburg. He watched them so long he is convinced they beat out code messages to each other when their jaws begin to wag.

Mr. Ginsburg, when he started his studies, knew that fishes do not have necks and he is pleased to report that what looks like a neck on the sea horse isn't a neck at all.

"Fishes have no necks, and hippocampus is no exception," reported Mr. Ginsburg. "What looks like a neck is the front part of its abdomen, considerably contracted."

Mr. Ginsburg, on the whole, doesn't seem to have much respect for the sea horse—neither would we if we had to look at one for months—but he gives it credit for being able to look forward and aft at the some time. Its eyes move independently of each other, you see.

"It would be difficult for a predacious organism to take it by surprise, but on the other hand it would have little ability to fight back or flee if attacked," says Mr. Ginsburg's report.

What Mr. Ginsburg describes as "the greatest anomaly of the hippocampus family" is the way the young are born. The process, so far as is known, is unduplicated in nature, he said. Here's how it's done. Unfertilized eggs are laid by the female. She places them, a few at a time, into a pouchlike organ on the under side of the male's body. In some manner still unknown to biologists (they fooled you there Mr. Ginsburg) the eggs are fertilized in the transfer. Within the pouch the eggs are incubated and there the young ones remain for some days after they are hatched. Then out they pop, fully equipped to take care of themselves.

The sea horse is a poor swimmer, reported Mr. Ginsburg—rather contemptuously we thought—and spends most of its time with its tail wrapped around the stem of a water plant. From this vantage point it snaps up other tiny sea animals floating within reach.

Jurors Asked About Squirrels In Poisoning Trial of Korean

Peculiar Questions Propounded as Houseboy Faces Charge He Attempted to Kill Relatives of Employer.

By the Associated Press.

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Questions unusual in Westchester County Court annals were put by the defense today to prospective Lee, 36-year-old Korean houseboy -Lee, 36-year-old korean houseboy charged with attempted murder. "Do you have dreams?" and "do you know anything about the habits of squirrels?" 18 veniremen were asked by Attorney Charles D. Lewis.

Only four jurors were seated when court adjourned for the day.

Chang is accused of attempting to kill two relatives of his wealthy employer, Mrs. L. W. Churchill, widow of a prominent Westchester lawyer, George Reeves, 50, retired Indianapolis, Ind., haberdasher, and his wife, who is Mrs. Churchill's niece, have been invalids since October, 1936, when the State charges Chang began administering poison to them in food and toothpaste. The houseboy said the guests accidentally took the poison which, he asserted he bought to kill squirrels. The prosecution contends the Korean hoped to secure an inheritance from Mrs. Churchill's estate by doing away with her guests.

Nerve Sufferer Kills Himself as Doctor Arrives

Ernest P. Schneider Dies in Emergency Hospital Bullet Wound.

As his physician ascended the front steps to arrange for his transfer to an institution, Ernest P. Schneider, 38, of 1420 Parkwood place northwest, rushed to the basement of his home yesterday and fired a bullet through his brain. He died several hours after admittance to Emergency Hospital.

Schneider, secretary-treasurer of the Ballauf Manufacturing Co., 600 block of H street northwest, suffered a nervous breakdown early in December and several days ago Dr. Walter Freeman, nerve specialist, recommended that he be sent to a private institution for observation.

Every effort was made to conceal plans for his removal from the sick man and, so far as members of his family knew, Schneider was expecting Dr. Freeman to make his usual call yesterday.

From the second-floor window Schneider saw Dr. Freeman alight from his automobile and ascend the steps. Grabbing a revolver from a chest, Schneider rushed downstairs to a basement garage and as the physician entered the house fired a .32-caliber automatic revolver bullet into his temple.

Schneider was married. He lived with his wife and father.

Bandits Get $25,000 In Gems in Holdup

Lindberghs Reach Sicily From Rome; Delayed by Storm

Palermo, Sicily, Feb. 8 (AP).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Bocco di Falco Airport today after bucking storms that slowed their speed to an average of less than 60 miles an hour on a flight from Rome.

The couple alighted a few minutes after officials, apprehensive over the lapse of time, had ordered emergency airports to be on the alert for the Lindberghs.

The Lindberghs were expected to remain in Sicily for a day or two before taking off across the Mediterranean, probably with Tripoli and Cairo as destinations.

Frank Asks Amendment To U. S. Constitution

New York, Feb. 5 (AP).—Dr. Glenn Frank, storm center of the recent University of Wisconsin presidential controversy, today proposed an amendment to the Constitution as a "more honest, more direct" method of vesting President Roosevelt with greater powers to deal with increasingly difficult economic problems.

Scoffing at those who cherish the "stubborn idea that the Constitution is a sacred revelation," Dr. Frank declared he was in "almost unqualified agreement with the broad objectives outlined by the President."

High School Operettas Delayed Until March

The spring series of operettas to be presented by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group in Roosevelt High School Auditorium under the auspices of the Community Center Department will begin early in March instead of in February as originally announced.

The first opera to be presented will be Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" in which the Wentworth singers have been heard many times in the past, and which is being revived by them at this time, due to countless requests.

Symphony to Play Again for Schools

Drawing its selections from "The Music of Latin Countries," the National Symphony Orchestra will begin its second group of students' concerts in high schools here this week.

Hans Kindler, conductor, and his men appear tomorrow afternoon in Central; Friday in Eastern, and February 16 in Western High Schools.

An authentic Spanish dance by Miss Gardiner, one of Washington's most widely known dancers, will be a feature of these programs. The music which Dr. Kindler will conduct and explain before his young audiences will be from the pens of Berlioz, Corelli, Lully, Delibes, Bizet, Franck, Debussy, de-Falla and St. Saens.

Capital Man Re-elected Rifle Group Secretary

C. B. Lister, of 6608 Thirty-second place, has been re-elected to his eleventh consecutive term as secretary-treasurer of the National Rifle Association by the board of directors, in their annual meeting held here.

Other officers chosen were: Gustavus D. Pope, big game hunter from Detroit, who replaces Brig. Gen. A. B. Critchfield, of Shreve, Ohio, as president; Lieut. Col. L. W. T. Waller, jr., of Philadelphia, first vice president, and Lieut. Col. N. C. Nash, jr., of Boston, second vice president. Maj. Gen. M. A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, was again chosen for the eleventh consecutive term as executive vice president.

Anti-Church Rioting Breaks Out in Mexico

Mexico City, Feb. 8 (AP).—Anti-religious violence at Orizaba gave fresh evidence tonight that Mexico's long-standing church problem remained unsolved.

Police at Orizaba, Vera Cruz State, raided a private home where they alleged a religious service was being held yesterday contrary to law and killed a woman, wounded several persons and arrested 70 Catholics.

Hirohito's Brother To Attend Coronation

Tokyo, Feb. 8 (AP).—Prince Chichibu, eldest of Emperor Hirohito's three brothers, who will represent the Emperor at the coronation of King George VI, will start February 11 on a tour of the national shrines to report his mission to the gods of Japan, it was announced today.

The Prince, accompanied by his wife, will sail from Yokohama March 18 and cross Canada and the United States on his way to London for the coronation ceremony May 12.

Princess Chichibu, the former Setsuko Matsudaira, daughter of a former Ambassador to the United States, received part of her education in a Washington school.

Man's Fatal Fall Called Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald after an investigation into the fatal plunge of Robert Green, 55, of Alexandria, Va., who died Sunday in Emergency Hospital.

Green fell 75 feet in an elevator shaft of a building under construction at 2929 Connecticut avenue northwest, on Friday. He was working on the seventh floor as a bricklayer's helper when he lost his balance.

Green is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Green, and two children, Jesse Green and Mrs. Ruth Ellicott, all of Alexandria.

relief of a gasping reporter—lace and valentine frills are quite a way off.

"Colored evening clothes were introduced a year ago," Foley explained. "The pace-setters went crazy about them. They're very popular. I've sold several to Washton men for wear in Florida."

"Several!" interjected a New York tailor. "Say, I can't sell a black one any more.. 'S'afact, all my customers want nothing but colors, nothing!"

Sport Clothes Lively.

The birds of paradise get-ups for gents aren't restricted to evening clothes either. You should roll your eye along the rows of sports clothes, which were never noted for their conservatism, but which now have gone completely aurora borealis. They're as different from the old stuff as your Christmas pajamas are from dad's white nightshirt.

Adjectives fail to describe the colors, the buttons, the collars, the pants, the materials. Silks are being shown for gentlemen's summer costumes for the first time. The old vest has been replaced by bull-fighter's stomachers. Ensembles of shirt, tie, shoes, suit and hat in various lovely shades—of blue, for instance—are proposed. Mercy!

Business suits are not exempt. Four-inch shepherd plaids only slightly less startling than the kitchen lineoleum were being worn at the exhibit. The poor old blue serge is done for.

Not quite so conspicuous as the color innovations were the changes in cut. There is a noticeable trend toward the "chesty" style which gives a man a rather Lillian Russell frontal expanse. It is achieved by bulging roll collars, wide padded shoulders and a nifty flair at the waistline. Pants seem to keep on being just pants. No change in length, width, pleats or pockets.

Wagner explained how it is the general public gets new styles a year after the pace-setters. "It takes the ready-made manufacturers six months to make up their stocks," he said. "They copy what the designers show one year, but can't get their goods made up for sale until a year later."

Delineator Purchased By Pictorial Review

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Richard E. Berlin, executive vice president of Hearst Magazines, Inc., announced today that the Pictorial Review Co. has purchased Delineator magazine from the Butterick Co., Inc.

Effective with the May issue, Berlin said, the two will be merged with the names of each retained on the cover. The Butterick Co., he added, retains its business of designing and selling patterns.

A Thomas expert will examine your scalp and determine which of the 14 local scalp ills (responsible for almost 90% of all cases of baldness) are attacking your hair-growing structure. He will then specifically overcome those local disorders by adapting the Thomas treatment to meet your precise needs. Your dandruff will disappear; scalp itch will stop; and normal hair growth will be promoted on the thin and bald spots.

Call today for a complete scalp examination. No charge is ever made for a scalp examination or for consultation (always in private). If you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment you will be frankly told. Remember—the scalp examination is free.

PALL MALL

THE MODERN BLEND

What should a cigarette taste like?

According to the English tradition of blending, the only flavour of a cigarette should be that of fine tobaccos. The Turkish Pall Mall, long famous as "A Shilling in London, A Quarter Here," has always observed that tradition.

The new Pall Mall, at 15¢ for 20, is blended in the same simple manner. There is no artificial flavouring in Pall Mall—no sweetening under which to mask imperfections. Pall Mall brings you the flavour of selected domestic tobaccos, enriched by fine Oriental types. It is the only cigarette of its type without artificial flavouring.

The special English wrapping provides a tab on the back with which to open the corner easily. This leaves the remainder of the cellulose for protection.

Scouts Praised By Roosevelt In Radio Talk

Service Ideal Never Dies, President Declares on Anniversary.

Invitation to hold a jamboree in Washington next June 30 to July 9, to afford "a practical demonstration of the principles of self-reliance," which he said scout work developed, was extended more than 25,000 Boy Scouts yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke in a radio address on the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Boy Scout organization.

He asserted he believed in the effectiveness of "trained boyhood," and added the ideals of scouting were not simply ideals for boys, but also men.

Ideals Always Remain.

"For the ideal of service to others," stated the President, "can never be outgrown, however often it may be lost sight of by some."

The jamboree was to have been held here two years ago, but, because of an outbreak of infantile paralysis it was canceled.

During the gathering here, American youths and scouts from other countries will live in tents.

The President stated he was glad to hear of a greater increase in the scout membership last year than in 1935 and for reports of "practical aid" scouts were giving in co-operating with flood relief workers.

In preparation for the forthcoming scout program, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, yesterday inspected the scout troop at Stuart Junior High School.

Text of Address.

The text of President Roosevelt's address to the Scouts follows:

"Fellow Scouts:

"Today we are celebrating our twenty-seventh anniversary. From one end of the country to the other we are taking stock of what has been accomplished during all these years and paying a deeply felt and well deserved tribute to the ideals of scouting.

"I like to think on such occasions as this that there are many thousands of men—some young, some entering middle age—who, though not actively participating in our celebrations, have, nevertheless, found it to be true that "once a Boy Scout, always a Boy Scout." The ideals of scouting are not simply ideals for boys. They are ideals for men. For the ideal of service to others can never be outgrown however often it may be lost sight of by some.

"Tonight I am especially happy to renew my invitation for the Boy Scouts to hold a jamboree here in the Nation's Capital in the early summer. We were all of us greatly disappointed because the jamboree to which I had invited the Boy Scouts in 1935 had to be canceled. But now we are going ahead with plans which I am confident will result in a demonstration on the part of boyhood the like of which has never been seen before in this country. I am glad that this is going to be an encampment because it is fitting that a movement such as ours should hold its first great national demonstration in the out-of-doors."

City of Tents.

"Yes, we are planning to have a city of tents rise here in the Capital actually within the shadow of the Washington Monument. On a site only a short distance from the room from which I am speaking to you today 25,000 boys will live together under canvas from June 13 to July 9. It stirs my imagination and I am sure that it gives all of you a genuine thrill.

"Our country was developed by pioneers who camped along the trails which they blazed all the way from the Atlantic Ocean to the slopes of the Pacific. To the American people for generations camping was a way of living—it is in our very blood. I believe that this jamboree is going to be a great success because I believe in the effectiveness of trained boyhood. Incidentally, I am gratified to know that there was a greater increase in Boy Scout membership in 1936 than in any previous year. And, as showing that true scouts always rise to every emergency, I am glad to say that I have received gratifying reports of the practical aid they are extending in co-operating with flood relief workers in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys."

Representative Group.

"Our jamboree, besides being an event long to be remembered by the boys who participate, will afford a practical demonstration of the principle of self-reliance which Scout work is developing in all of you. There will be gathered together a thoroughly representative group mobilized from all parts of the country. Other countries will send delegates to meet with us. Scouting is now organized in almost every civilized nation in the world. The camp here in Washington will afford an opportunity for us to extend our horizon and enlarge our friendships on the basis of the ideals expressed in the Scout oath and law.

"I extend to you all my greetings and my good wishes for the year ahead. And now our chief Scout executive, Dr. James E. West, will lead you in rededicating ourselves to the Scout oath."

Wallace Offers Storage Plan For Farm Aid

Loans Would Insure Price of Commodities Sealed by Producers.

By Russell Smith.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday offered American farmers Joseph of Canaan's storage program as the Administration substitute for the invalidated AAA.

To a conference of 60 national farm leaders and the chairmen of the House and Senate Agriculture committees, he proposed the sealing "on the farm" of surplus production, insurance of its price by commodity loans and its use as a reserve to balance lean crop years with fat.

Substantial agreement of a heavy majority of the farm representatives wit hthis program was obvious, but they made it clear that two important questions respecting it will require an answer. They are expected to frame their recommendatoins today on these questions.

More important immediate problem of the two is the extent to which the Administration is prepared to guarantee prices by means of commodity loans. The agricultural leaders are of the opinion that such loans should be at the full "parity value," that is, at the index figure fixed in the AAA act as a fair price.

The long-range issue which Wallace mentioned without clarification is that of direct crop control. The Secretary proposed to apply such control only as a last resort, if the proposals he offered today failed to achieve a stabilized agriculture, omitting, apparently by deliberation, any reference to how such control can be achieved in the light of Supreme Court interpretation of the Constitution.

Recommendation of a specific program on this point is not anticipated at this conference, in view of the Secretary's clear indication he is not prepared to do so himself. At a November, 1936, meeting called to discuss crop insurance substantially these same representatives requested such crop control. It is doubtful if that recommendation will be amplified at this time.

In his address to the conference here yesterday Secretary Wallace again indicated his coolness toward crop insurance on a large scale, despite the fanfare which greeted the original proposal of President Roosevelt last fall. Hence, it is regarded by the visiting farm group as certain he will go along with such proposals as those outlined yesterday in a bill introduced by Senator Pope (Democrat), of Idaho, but will not promote actively any program.

Senator Pope's bill would apply a crop insurance program to wheat and establish a $100,000,000 corporation to manage the program. He said it was written with advice of Agriculture Department experts, who have contended such insurance should be tested upon wheat alone before application to other crops.

Under Wallace's proposal of yesterday the Government turns definitely from regulation of production to marketing as the handle with which to stabilize the farming industry.

In this newest agricultural experiment, the Government, when supplies of any major crop are above normal demand, would offer loans to farmers which would enable them to hold as much of their output as they desired. This, according to Wallace, would "put a plank" under the price. The method is simply application of the old corn and cotton loans to all major commodities.

The conference today will hear reports of commodity subcommittees in the morning. The general committee will report at 2 p. m. its recommendations for the conference as a whole, which will then draft its resolutions.

SEC Demands Brokers' Men Change Tactics

Stock Exchange Asked to Tighten Control; Bonding System Advocated.

The recent tactics of high-pressure "customer's men" in the New York Stock Exchange has caused much "concern" to officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission here, it was learned last night.

The SEC has asked the New York Stock Exchange to tighten its control over the 8,000 customers men, lest there be a revival of the abuses so prevalent in the days before the 1929 crash.

Thus far the Stock Exchange, it was learned, has ignored the request, and SEC officials are contemplating drastic action unless its suggested reforms are adopted.

The SEC, it was learned, is weighing two drastic proposals in connection with the regulation of customers men, as follows:

1. Establishment of a bonding system for customers men, under which the buyers of securities could obtain damages in the event they could show they were the victims of fraudulent practices.

2. A revamping of the present responsibility of brokerage firms to make them liable for the activity of their custmore's men. This reform would be so broad that a firm could be suspended from the stock exchange for the activity of a customers' man.

Former Aides Of Townsend Sentenced Here

2 Plead Guilty to Charges of Contempt; Author of Plan Appears Today.

In a rapid flurry of events in District Court yesterday Dr. Carlton Wunder and John B. Kiefer, erstwhile aides of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, elderly directing head of the Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with contempt of the House of Representatives and received suspended sentences of a year in jail and fines of $100 each by Justice Peyton Gordon.

Meantime, Dr. Townsend, who is under indictment as a result of stalking out of the House committee that was investigating his organization, announced through his attorneys he would appear in court today to plead to the charge. His trial was fixed definitely for February 23 by Justice Gordon. He is accused of refusing to answer questions and with having left the committee before he had been excused.

Both Dr. Wunder and Kiefer informed Justice Gordon they had severed their connections with the Townsend group six months ago. They said they had expressed their "regrets" and "apologies" to the House for refusing to come here in answer to subpenas calling for their testimony. At the time, Dr. Wunder was head of the New York office and Kiefer was in charge of the Chicago office.

Before he passed sentence, the jurist inquired of the United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett if the nonappearance of the two had impaired or impeded the work of the committee. Col. Garnett said he did not know, but that, despite their absence, the committee had been able to conclude its report.

At this juncture, Justice Gordon said he could see no purpose in sending the two to jail and he evinced a feeling that since both men, having no prior records, had "shown contrition and penitence" they should be granted probation.

Joseph A. Cantrel, who is associated with Elisha Hanson in defense of Dr. Townsend, asked for the continuance which was granted the elderly physician. He said that his duties as a member of the Maryland Legislature were taking much of his time, and that Hanson was engaged in the trial of another case.

Government Fraud Indictment Scored

Alleging that an indictment charging them with conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with the non-apeparance of Frank E. Speicher before a House Military Affairs Committee several years ago did not either in law or in fact charge them with an offense, Joseph Silverman, jr., Nathan Silverman, Thomas Jefferson Ryan and Alexander E. Williams yesterday petitioned Justice Peyton Gordon to dismiss the presentment.

Speicher, according to Irvin Goldstein, assistant United States Attorney, was being sought by the House committee and was never found. He was an automobile tire salesman who had had dealings with the Army which was then actively engaged in motorizing its war machinery.

Justice Gordon refused to rule on the question yesterday. He asked attorneys representing the quartet to present within ten days, briefs supporting their contention that the indictment did not set up an offense against the Federal laws.

James Wetherholt Burial Tomorrow

Funeral services for Warrant Officer James H. Wetherholt, U. S. Army, will be held tomorrow with burial in Arlington Cemetery at 11 a. m. Services will be held at the Fort Myer gate to the cemetery.

Wetherhold died Saturday at Walter Reed Hospital at the age of 62, following more than 40 years' service in the Army. Entering the military service by enlisting in the Field Artillery in 1896, he rapidly advanced to the grade of master electrician in the Coast Artillery. During the World War he was commissioned captain and later major in the Signal Corps. At the time of his death he held a commission as lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps Reserve.

Previous to a three weeks' illness which resulted in his death, he had been assistant to the C. M. T. C. officer at the Third Corps Area headquarters in Baltimore.

Bandits Rob Pennsylvanian, Then Drive Away in New Auto

Police last night were searching for two nervous youths who robbed Earl R. Weaver, 38, of Lancaster, Pa., of $150 in money and clothing and a new automobile at Thirty-first and Channing streets northeast.

Forced to drive the bandits, one of whom was armed with a pistol, around the city for more than an hour, Weaver appeared at the Ninth Precinct station nervous and worried.

"They got into my car at Fifteenth and H streets northeast," he told police. "One of them jammed the gun in my ribs and told me to drive around. We'll kill you if you yell," he quoted them as saying.

Weaver asserted he drove around in circles for about an hour, past several policemen, "but I was too frightene dto cry out; they looked nervous and might have shot me."

At Thirty-first and Channing streets northeast, the robbers made Weaver stop and took $65 in bills, $15 in dimes which Weaver said he has been saving, and about $70 worth of clothing. They forced him out of the car and drove away.

A representative of the American Oil Co., Weaver said he was stopping at the Ambassador Hotel.

An armed colored bandit held up a Sanitary Grocery Co. store in the 1500 block of Eleventh street northwest yesterday morning and escaped with about $25 after forcing the manager into the basement.

Eugene Wemple, of 4306 Third street northwest, manager of the store, told police the man entered and threatened him with a revolver. Emptying the cash register, the intruder made Wemple go into the basement while he fled through the front door.

Mary H. McCarthy Rites to Be Today

Funeral services for Miss Mary Helen McCarthy, of 1935 Summit place northwest, supreme deputy of the Catholic Women's Benevolent Legion in the District, who died Saturday after a short illness in Homeopathic Hospital, will be held at 9 a. m. today in St. Martin's Church, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Miss McCarthy, who had been associated with the organization for many years and was organizer and president of Liberty Council, No. 162, of the organization, died just one week after her brother, William McCarthy. She had been identified with several other organizations in Washington.

Surviving her are a niece, Mrs. H. E. Young, and a nephew, Eugene McCarthy.

Mrs. May Snyder Dies in California

Word was received here today of the death in Los Angeles of Mrs. May Snyder, 76, wife of the former mayor of that city.

Mrs. Snyder, a native of Washington, who was the daughter of W. W. Ross, counsellor to Abraham Lincoln, succumbed to a heart attack.

In 1888 she was married to Snyder, her husband began in business in Los Angeles when it was merely an embryonic Western city in 1880, and for many years he was active in politics there. He served for four terms as mayor, between 18887 and 1921.

O. R. Evans Seeks Divorce From Wife

Oscar R. Evans, electrical supply dealer, yesterday asked District Court to award him a limited divorce from his wife, Mrs. Grace W. Evans, 2323 Fortieth street northwest because of her alleged cruel treatment. The Evans were married Valentine Day, 1907, and have three children.

In his complaint, Evans said he had been attacked and beaten by some one who slipped into his room the night of January 30 and he said he feared that if he returned home further attacks might be made on him. He has been living with his brother ever since, he said. He said he and his wife have occupied different rooms, for several years.

Communication between them, he charged through his attorney, E. C. Dutton, has been through notes written on the walls of the bathroom.

Taxi Strikers Battle Police In Baltimore

Pickets Lay Down Barrage of Bottles as Drivers Take Cabs on Streets.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 8.—Police armed with night sticks charged today into a gauntlet of pickets who laid down a barrage of bottles and rocks on a fleet of cabs in a new outburst of the taxi drivers' strike here.

Forty policemen entered the melee and arrested 13 men. The pickets had been on duty at the garage of the Yellow Cab Co. and attempted with their barrage to prevent the company from sending some of its cabs into service.

Stalled for a time by an automobile the pickets drove into their path, the cabs eventually got away, but most of them had broken windows and windshields.

The outbreak occurred as a number of cabs rolled out of the company's main garage. The pickets charged the cabs, hurling missiles and the police waded into the midst of the strikers.

Another flare-up occurred near the Pennsylvania station. Pickets there heard the cabs were en route to the station. A number of men rushed from the sidewalk and began to smash the windows of five cabs that had been held up in traffic.

A woman armed with an umbrella joined the men in smashing all the windows on one side of a cab. Police arriving on the scene arrested three men, but the woman disappeared in the crowd.

There were reports that cab operators were to confer with officials of the union that called the strike in an effort to gain recognition, but these were unconfirmed.

Husband in Prison Romance Is Jailed

Blackstone, Va., Feb. 8 (AP).—C. P. Abernathy, whose honeymoon with Kathleen Phelps was curtailed by police here several weeks ago when he was arrested on charges of passing worthless checks, was sentenced to two years at the State prison farm today.

He met his wife, the 18-year-old girl charged with the Hopewell "date-on-a-bet" slaying of her brother-in-law, while the two were confined to the Hopewell jail last fall. The romance that blossomed behind prison bars became known only after the two were released and married at Williamston, N. C., early last month.

Abernathy pleaded guilty to the charges.

Mrs. Abernathy will go on trial Wednesday for the second time for the pistol-slaying of Howard W. Watkins. A first trial conviction and sentence of five years was set aside by the court. She is now under bond.

Quake in Walla Walla.

Walla Walla, Wash., Feb. 8 (AP).—An earth tremor, with rumbling noise, was reported in the Ferndale district on the Oregon side of Walla Walla Valley, six miles south of here, at 12:16 p. m. today. No damage was reported.

What's Best Way To Lose Fat

It's the slender, vivacious woman—no matter her age—who gets the best things out of life—admiration, stylish clothes that'll fit—EVEN BETTER HEALTH.

But modern women are fed up with freak diets, hopeless exercises and harmful drugs. They are at last very intelligently going in for gradual, safe reduction—a method like the following that not only helps regain normal weight but improves health and physical attractiveness—

Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning. Cut down on fat meats, butter, cream and sugary sweets—wonderful to help kidneys, liver, bowels and gall bladder function properly. Just watch fat vanish! Jar lasts weeks and costs but few cents.

Mrs. J. Millar of Portsmouth, N. H., writes: "I lost 11½ lbs. in a month. Were size 46 dress, now wear size 40." (Adv.)

Liberalization Of Red Rider Voted in House

Compromise Would Permit Teaching D. C. Children Facts of Communism.

hereof as a condition for payment of salary."

In brief, this amendment eliminates the ban on "teaching" of communism and aims at relieving school teachers of the responsibility of signing an affidavit that they have not violated the law before obtaining their monthly pay.

House proponents of outright repeal immediately tagged the amended versions just as dangerous as the "red rider."

The amended bill now goes to conference with the Wheeler measure, passed by the Senate and providing for repeal of the "red rider." Members of the House District Committee predicted that the McCormack amendment will be voted on again by the House as the Senate is expected to reject it.

If the Senate insists upon outright repeal, the House conferees will return and move that the House recede in its amendment, and another roll call will be taken.

The House acceptance of the McCormack came as a surprise to Cormack Amendment came as a surprise, to members of the District Committee, because throughout the afternoon debate members unanimously denounced the "red rider," and only a handful arose to ask whether their vote for repeal might not be misinterpreted back home.

Cites Home Disapproval.

Representative McCormack himself swung the tide in his favor in a last-minute warning that members would be held accountable in their home districts to local patriotic and religious organizations.

He said several times that "the red rider never should have been enacted into law," but he added that for members to vote for its repeal would cause them embarrassment.

Vainly did proponents of repeal argue that communism was not the issue at stake, but academic freedom. This argument gained substantial support when Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, added his voice to those denouncing the red rider.

Fish's attack on the "red rider" as "a travesty" and "a mockery" came as the biggest surprise of the debate. An ardent foe of Communism, he was expected to defend the rider. Instead, he charged that the law is "an insult to the teachers of America" and promotes Communism by concealing the facts about it.

The name of President Roosevelt was injected into the discussion when Fish said he was "ashamed of some of my Republican friends during the recent campaign" because they had started a whispering campaign that the President was a Communist.

President No Communist.

"I know the President very well," he said, "as he comes from my section of New York, and I know he is not a Communist."

Even House leaders, such as Representative O'Connor, of New York, were unable to shake loose from the members the fear that they might be labeled procommunistic if they voted for repeal of the rider. They laughed as he ridiculed the bugaboo of communism, but they voted with McCormack.

Democratic and Republican ranks split on the roll call vote, but the Progressives and Farmer-Laborites voted for repeal almost solidly, only one Progressive vote going for the amendment.

The vote was divided: For—171 Democrats, 62 Republicans, 1 Progressive. Against—96 Democrats, 7 Republicans, 7 Progressives, 5 Farmer-Laborites.

Chairman Norton opened the three-hour debate with an explanation of the history of the rider and the growing demand for its repeal from national as well as local educational organizations.

Because teachers have been afraid to mention communism in the classrooms, Mrs. Norton said, pupils have become curious about it and the sale of communistic literature has increased.

Lack of Courage Cited.

"It is absurd and stupid to believe," she said, "that your committee would bring to the floor of this House a bill that would in any way suggest our sympathy with communism, and I as chairman of the District Committee resent the charges that have been flung at your committee and also at the public school system of Washington."

Mrs. Norton chided the members for their lack of courage in admitting a mistake and voting to rectify it.

"Women have been accused of being without courage," she said, "but it seems to me that any member who is afraid to vote for repeal of the 'red rider' because they might be called procommunistic is much more lacking in courage than any woman I know.

"By voting to repeal this law we are merely righting a wrong, restoring the confidence in the Board of Education of the District that each member here has in the board of education of his community."

When McCormack opened his attack on the Kennedy bill to repeal the rider he prefaced his remarks with the statements that he was "for academic freedom" and "the red rider never should have been passed in the first place."

Address by Mrs. Norton

The text of the remarks made by Chairman Norton of the House District Committee in bringing up the Kennedy "red rider" repeal bill yesterday in the House follows:

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House:

"We have heard a great deal about this bill during the past year. It has been the subject of much discussion in the press, on the street, in the clubs of the city—in fact, everywhere throughout the District. It has even been discussed in our own cities and by the National Education Association in convention assembled. At first it seemed strange that a bill concerned with the District of Columbia and apparently local in character could arouse so much intense feeling everywhere, but upon examination of the bill, the peculiar method used to bring about its enactment and the far-reaching consequence it has assumed with regard to our public school system, we can readily understand the reason for this intense feeling on the part of every liberty-loving American.

"Let us examine this so-called 'red rider' and the effect it has had upon this community. At the same time, let us bear in mind that it is only because of the peculiar type of government in the District that such a thing could happen. In your city and mine we have a Board of Education responsible to the people. It is either elected by the people or appointed by the city mayor or council and, therefore, either directly or indirectly responsible to the people, who have the power of the vote. The people of the District, having no power, must accept the direction of Congress, and that brings me to the point that we are responsible for this ridiculous 'red rider' and the circumstances surrounding it.

Absolutely Unjust.

"Today it is my purpose to bring to your attention the evil caused by this thing we have heard so much about and ask you to join with me in repealing this law that is absolutely unjust and offends every person who believes in the public school system of America.

"What is the 'red rider' and what has been its effect on our educational system in the District?

"It is a rider in the appropriation act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1936, under the heading 'Public Schools,' and provides: 'That hereafter no part of any appropriation for the public schools shall be available for the payment of the salary of any person teaching or advocating communism.'

"The Board of Education being unable to decide exactly what was intended by the words of the statute submitted same to the corporation counsel, Mr. Prettyman, for interpretation. Mr. Prettyman examined the bill and submitted a well-considered and complete opinion on the meaning of the statute, which you will find in the committee report on page 2. This opinion is clear and logical and was accepted by the Board of Education. Subsequently Controller McCarl ruled that all employes of the public school system of the District of Columbia must sign a statement, before receiving their monthly pay check, that they have not 'taught or advocated' communism, but failed to define his meaning of the word 'teach.' The effect of this has been that the teachers of the public schools and the Board of Education were completely confused and as a result mention of the Russian form of government in teaching history has been avoided. This has led to an amount of curiosity on the part of pupils and has resulted in the sale of much communistic literature very dangerous to the adolescent mind.

Authority of Board.

"For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the peculiar set-up in Washington, I would like you to know that the Board of Education is appointed by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia. The board is charged by law with the responsibility of supervision of courses of study in the schools. Said board is invested with full authority to dismiss any employe who violates his oath of office or disobeys the rules of the board. All employes of the school system are obliged to take the same oath that we take as members of Congress, "to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States." The members of the Board of Education here as in our own communities are fine, patriotic citizens, contributing their services to the community, and would no more tolerate the teaching of communism in our public schools than we would of supporting bills suggestive of anything contrary to our form of government. It is absurd and stupid to believe that your committee would bring a bill to the floor of this House that would in any way suggest our sympathy with communism, and I as chairman of the District of Columbia Committee resent the charges that have been flung at your committee and also at the public school system of Washington.

"Dr. Ballou, the superintendent of schools, came to Washington from the State of Massachusetts with a splendid record of school service. He is recognized by the National Education Association as one of the most outstanding educators in this country. Our teachers all are well qualified American citizens. They have been selected because of their ability, integrity and loyalty to American principles. With this background it can be readily understood why there is so much confusion, because the rider is not only an innovation in that there is no legislative body which prescribes courses of study in the several States, but it is contrary to our traditional American system of conducting public schools.

Parents Uncomplaining.

With all the agitation of the past year it seems strange that your committee has not received one complaint from a parent in the District, and I have been advised by the Board of Education that it has no knowledge of any complaint concerned with the teaching or advocating of communism in the public schools. Every civic organization in the District of Columbia has expressed strenuous opposition to the rider. The people here are practically unanimous in asking its repeal.

"Considering the fact that no other State has any similar law it is apparent that this rider reflects not only on the loyalty of our teachers but the competence of the Board of Education. It would have been repealed in the last session of Congress were it not for the fact that certain people succeeded in making it a political football. No sane person believes that a member of Congress would advocate communism, but it has been made to appear that those voting in favor of repeal of this ridiculous law are advocating teaching of communism in our schools. Nothing could be more absurd. By voting to repeal this law we are merely righting a wrong, restoring the confidence in the Board of Education of the District of Columbia that each member here has in the Board of Education of his own community.

"I have attempted to present to you briefly the facts concerned with the situation that has arisen since the enactment of this rider to the appropriation bill. I am firmly convinced that the majority of the members of the House feel as I do—that Congress overstepped its prerogative when it passed this unwarranted legislation. I am hoping that we shall have the courage to acknowledge our mistake today and do our duty not only to the public school system of Washington, but to the American principles of public school education, by joining with the Senate to repeal this unwise and unnecessary rider."

fic problem, Capt. Whitehurst said. For many years, he added, the highway department has been studying and analyzing street and highway problems in efforts to find a remedy.

"Preliminary plans for many important projects have been worked out," Capt. Whitehurst declared, "and sooner or later a definite and comprehensive construction and financial program will and must be mapped—out so that improvements in highway conditions, in the interest of traffic flow and greater highway safety, may be accomplished."

Omit Tunnels.

Capt. Whitehurst's report, however, did not include recommendations of the Carpenter committee for pedestrian tunnels at three downtown intersections—Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest and Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Although Capt. Whitehurst failed to comment or provide estimates for these proposed projects, it is known that a recent study showed such tunnels to be impractical for Washington. They would require pumping plants for water drainage in addition to other needless expenditures, engineers believe.

Investigation of pedestrian underpasses in several other cities revealed that they are not used sufficiently to warrant construction, it was reported.

"We have enough trouble forcing pedestrians to cross intersections on proper traffic signals—let alone make them walk up and down steps to cross the street," one official commented.

Economic reasons also brought vetos on the sub-committee's recommendations for overpasses at Thirteenth street and Florida avenue northwest, and New York avenue and Florida avenue northeast, Capt. Whitehurst pointed out.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth
tells how Senators choose a light smoke... considerate of their throats

"I often lunch in the Senate restaurant at the Capitol. Nearly every Senator and Representative there smokes, and the number I see take out a package of Luckies is quite surprising. Perhaps surprising is not the word. Because off and on, ever since 1917, I myself have used Luckies for this sound reason: They really are a light smoke—kind to the throat. It's simply common sense that these Senators and Representatives, whose voices must meet the continuous strain of public speaking, should also need a cigarette that is considerate of their throats . . . a light smoke."
Alice Roosevelt Longworth
In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.
Mrs. Longworth's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

$18,424,669 Now Donated To Flood Fund

Contribution of $5,000 Swells Red Cross Collections Through Nation.

Total contributions to the Red Cross flood relief fund reached $18,424,668 yesterday, Admiral Cary T. Grayson announced, as a contribution of $5,000 from the American Can Co. swelled the coffers.

In 17 Middle Western States 1,510 Red Cross chapters reported contributions, and 1,135 had exceeded their goals set in the original appeal from headquarters for $10,000,000.

Boys and girls of the Junior Red Cross in Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Denver, Omaha, Kansas City and Webster Grove, Mo., were collecting toys, games and story books and expected to send tens of thousands of them to the children in the Red Cross concentration camps in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas flood areas.

A slight increase in the prevalence of pneumonia and respiratory diseases was reported by the Red Cross and medical authorities.

Red Cross medical units are established in all concentration camps, and to date more than 56,600 persons in the Memphis area alone had been given innoculations against typhoid.

Meanwhile, no information was available in Charles Town, W. Va., as to who was the sender of a $750 diamond for the relief of the sufferers. The gem was sent in an ordinary envelope. Its value was fixed by a well known jewelry firm.

All receipts from the sale of an exhibit of paintings, block prints and craft work by members of the Arts Club, on the seventh floor of Garfinkel's, will go to the Red Cross.

Floods Threaten England, France

London, Feb. 8 (AP).—Sections of France and England were menaced by floods today after torrential rains sent many rivers out of their banks and threatened further depredations.

North central France and Normandy were hardest hit, while St. Denis, Paris suburb, had water 6 feet deep in its lower sections. Three streams overflowed there, covering 300 acres.

The situation was serious at Lille and at Armentieres, where flood water swirled into the outskirts. The swollen rivers were carrying floods into Courtrai, Belgium. Some parts of Etain, on the River Orne, were under 5 feet of water.

Numerous English highways were closed to traffic as the Thames continued to rise. Hundreds were forced to flee to safety in Dorset, on the English Channel, when rising streams isolated many villages.

Mardi Grass Madness Seizes New Orleans

New Orleans, Feb. 8 (AP).—Gay New Orleans went joyously mad tonight on the eve of its century-old Mardi Gras celebration.

Proteus, god of the sea, brought 20 glittering floats in a pageant depicting Spanish fairy tales. The carnival season will be climaxed tomorrow—Mardi Gras Day—by a mammoth street fete.

French Envoys Flee Before Russian Rats

Warsaw, Feb. 8 (AP).—The French Embassy beat a strategic retreat from its new building today before an advancing army of rats.

Unable to repel the invaders with dozens of cats and fox terriers and a complicated system of traps, the members of the embassy decided to evacuate the building so a last desperate effort could be made to rout the rats with poison gas.

of Army engineers in this district, reported after a survey that "sand boils" and seepage continued, but prompt action by field forces kept the situation well in hand in every instance."

A slide was reported along the Reelfoot levee, between Hickman, Ky., and Tiptonville, Tenn., but workers quickly repaired the damage with sandbags. A slight earth movement at Tiptonville left the levee system unaffected.

At Cairo, where the Ohio River joins the Mississippi, the flood waters began a more rapid recession after increased water from the upper river had retarded the fall for several days.

With the water receding, New Madrid turned to one of the tragic instances of the high-water period, the sinking of a barge and the death of at least 24 levee workers.

By the Associated Press.

The West last night emerged from a week-end weather melange snowdrifts and bitter cold.

Flood water subsided rapidly from the San Joaquin and Salinas valleys in northern California. Between Los Angeles and San Diego, Ohio, pointed out, after a White House visit, that the 1936 provision, sponsored and fought for by Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, had been impossible of enforcement. Authorities have not been able, he said, to determine what portion of the cost of land needed in a control project in one State should be levied against, for instance, a city in another State farther down the river. In some cases, it was pointed out, States in which sites for projects must be obtained will benefit not at all from the resulting flood control farther down the valley.

Senator Copeland, himself, has said that his provision of last year is now encountering "hard sledding." He said that even members who voted with him against the onslaught of Southern Senators seeking to kill the State-aid clauses were going over to the other side. Senator Copeland last year even invoked the threat of a veto for the omnibus flood control bill unless the State-aid required was retained in the measure, which he termed the "first porkless flood control bill in the history of the country."

Representative Vinson (Democrat) of Kentucky, also predicted that the 1936 act would be amended to eliminate the requirement that States and communities bear the cost of obtaining land for sites and rights of way for projects.

Senator Bulkley predicted yesterday that President Roosevelt would support a national program based on a series of powerful Federal agencies similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority. Bulkley has a bill pending for creating such an Ohio Valley Authority, empowered to reforest, build dams and curb soil erosion, and he represented the President as sympathetic toward his bill.

originally to carry on the regular relief work for the rest of this fiscal year.

Meanwhile, flood relief and flood control were given increasing attention in the Capital.

Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, reported to the President on the findings of the President's special flood relief commission which has just concluded a tour of the stricken area.

He said that he has about 150,000 WPA workers engaged in relief and rehabilitation work, some 130,000 being extra employes. A half-million refugees still are in the relief camps, he said, but the camps probably can be demobilized in another week.

The extent of aid to be given by the Government in re-establishing the people in their homes has not been determined. To one class of sufferers, who need financial aid to repair their homes, banks are expected to make advances to protect other loans already made on the properties. A second class, unable to obtain commercial credit, is being given rehabilitation grants or loans by the Red Cross. For a third class, unable to obtain bank accommodations, but probably able to make good on loans, a temporary lending agency is needed, it was pointed out.

As numerous flood control provisions and bills were being considered, it becaeme clear yesterday that the provision in the 1936 flood control act, requiring co-operative action between States and localities to help bear the cost burden, is doomed in whatever new legislation is enacted. It became assured, apparently, that the Federal Government will be called upon to bear the full cost.

District Physician Sentenced to Year

Dr. MacPherson Crichton, physician and clubman, was sentenced to an indeterminate term of from a year to 18 months yesterday when he was brought up before Justice Peyton Gordon following his conviction several weeks ago of a charge of having performed an illegal operation. Justice Gordon also revoked the physician's license to practice.

ABOUT GLASSES . . .

NERO'S EMERALD . . .

As early as 50 A. D. the Emperor Nero used a highly polished Emerald to view the gladiatorial combats. We do not know the shape of this Emerald or the exact way Nero used it, but we do know that it was regarded as an aid to weakened eyes in ancient times. How strange it would seem today if we had to use a large Emerald in attending sporting events and reading. Nevertheless Nero's idea was a good one, because we cannot fully enjoy recreation if our eyes are weak and not functioning properly. We can all learn a very important lesson from this ancient ruler and his unique use of a precious stone. Our modern scientific knowledge in the care of eyes is one of our greatest blessings. We should take advantage of it.

No Openings For M. C.'s.

As an indication of how little the Constitution is really understood, it is interesting to note the widespread assumption that several members of Congress might be appointed to the Supreme Court if the President's plan to enlarge it were adopted. This erroneous belief is not confined to the "man on the street." Some very capable observers have jumped to the conclusion that Senator Wagner, Representative Sumners and other Congressmen might forthwith be beneficiaries of the court-packing scheme.

In Article I, Section 6, the Constitution specifically forbids appointments of this sort in the following language:

> No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time.

If the attitude of the Administration toward the Supreme Court should force the retirement of some justice, a member of Congress could be nominated for that seat. But there is no indication that any member of the court is ready to step down. Contrary to current suggestions, therefore, it would be impossible for the President to grease the legislative way for his measure by promising judicial appointments to legislators.

In writing the constitutional provision quoted above the founding fathers no doubt had in mind just such situations as that which now confronts Congress. The fact that none of the high positions that would be created by the White House judiciary bill could be granted to their members should help both the Senate and House to view this measure more objectively. And in a matter of such vital importance to the future of the Nation that is a major consideration.

The Root Of The Problem.

Interest in various local improvements has been aroused at a time when the District is faced by a prospective deficit of over $10,000,000 in its 1938 budget. Mrs. Roosevelt and Senator Capper have discovered disgraceful conditions at the jail. Representative Collins is especially impressed by the deficiencies of the Metropolitan Police headquarters and the Children's Receiving Home. For a number of years these conditions have perturbed local authorities, but unfortunately they have no control over the District's purse strings.

Evidence of similar neglect may be found in many local institutions. Inadequate space and equipment, excessive hours of work for the staff—that is the common complaint of Gallinger Hospital, Lorton Reformatory, the libraries and the Health Department. And of course all these conditions trace directly back, as Mrs. Roosevelt noted in the case of the jail, to the problem of District finances.

The Jacobs committee found that residents of the District "receive service roughly equal to the average of 17 comparable cities." But it took merely a bird's-eye view of the situation. If it had examined conditions in detail it would have found that public health, education, care of prisoners and other purely local functions have been woefully neglected here. At the same time, parks, streets, the zoo and other items in which the Federal Government is especially interested have been liberally financed.

In short, it may be fairly said that the District lacks a decent jail because it has been compelled to pay about two and one-half times as much as the average comparable city for the maintenance of elaborate parks. Local funds have thus been diverted to what, in part, are national purposes—the building and maintenance of a beautiful Capital City.

Students of the local government have frequently pointed out that Washington would need no contribution from the Federal Treasury if its revenues could be devoted entirely to local functions. But use of such revenues for semi-national purposes without a sufficient offsetting allowance from Congress has left the District in a very serious predicament. Those who are interested in modernization of Washington's municipal institutions can render the greatest service, therefore, by urging Congress to provide an allowance commensurate with the national interest in the Capital City.

Essentially A Rider.

Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, like Representative Pettengill of the same State, has gone on record as favoring separate legislative consideration for the two separate parts of the President's proposals for judicial reorganization.

This attitude on the part of two prominent Democrats accords with the fundamental principles of law-making and may be expected to receive steadily increasing Congressional favor. For the most satisfactory legislation is always that which treats clearly, and so far as possible concisely, with a single subject.

The device of the rider, as those interested in Washington's educational system have recently had good reason to realize, is by nature deceptive and in results almost uniformly regrettable. It has been tolerated by public opinion only because usually devised to achieve some relatively petty objective. There is little doubt that the country as a whole would revolt against changing its basic institutions by procedure similar to that employed by Mr. Blanton in persecuting District school teachers.

And the more the President's message of last Friday is analyzed the more apparent it becomes that the proposal for enlargement of the Supreme Court is essentially a rider of what is otherwise a generally constructive proposal for improving and expediting the work of the Federal judiciary.

The proposal is not necessary for meeting, at least in large part, the "four present needs" with which Mr. Roosevelt said his message was primarily concerned. On the contrary, it threatens to jeopardize prompt achievement of desirable reforms by introducing a highly controversial issue which has little or nothing to do with "the effective functioning of the Federal Judiciary."

Judging from the wording of the President's message, speedier justice in the lower courts is the objective which weighs most heavily on his mind. Another reason for believing that the proposed enlargement of the Supreme Court was merely an afterthought is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt did not feel it necessary to raise any such issue in the recent campaign. Obviously the major purposes of the message could far more easily be attained if the Supreme Court proposal were given separate consideration.

As protest swells against packing the Supreme Court by methods painfully akin to those of the legislative rider, Mr. Roosevelt may himself see the wisdom of Senator Van Nuys' suggestion.

That will be the case if he continues to be keenly alive to the trends of public thought. A poll by the Institute of Public Opinion, taken a month after its final and virtually exact prediction of the election results, showed a three to two majority against "limiting the power of the Supreme Court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional." The opposition to accomplishing this end by surreptitious methods would probably be much greater.

Nor is Senator Van Nuys the only supporter of the President in the upper house who clearly realizes that desirable judicial reform may be jeopardized by introdution of the Supreme Court issue. Senator Norris feels that the recent message does not make the question of outright constitutional amendment any the less pressing. And by his statement to this effect he indicates a distaste for circuitous and devious legislative bypaths which is shared by every straightforward member of Congress.

Mr. Cooke's Resignation.

Roughly speaking, the experts who hold administrative positions of importance in the Government service may be divided into two classes: those who have specialized knowledge but lack judgment and those who not only have knowledge but are able to put it to good use. The latter combination of qualities has made Morris L. Cooke, retiring head of the Rural Electrification Administration, an extremely valuable addition to the small official group who man important New Deal agencies.

In spite of his recent sharp warnings against overcharging by the privately owned utilities, Mr. Cooke has followed a conciliatory policy in administering the office which he is now relinquishing. He has encouraged co-operation between the private utilities and the Government as an alternative to destructive competition. Proceeding upon the theory that there is no necessary conflict between public and private interests, he has been very successful in overcoming hostility to the extension of rural electrification systems with the aid of Federal loans.

The loss of Mr. Cooke will be especially felt at a time when conciliatory tactics are greatly needed to prevent the Government's power yardstick policies from becoming a weapon of assault.

In addition to his work as head of the REA, Mr. Cooke also served on the committee which surveyed the drought area last summer and was made a member of the National Power Policy Committee, whose report has not yet been released. While in this and other ways his special knowledge has been heavily drawn upon, his own organization has not been neglected. The position he held calls for a type of ability that is always rare and seems to be conspicuously lacking at the present time within some of our Federal agencies.

Realizing A Dream.

The vitality of the Zionist movement was exemplified in the two-day meeting of the National Conference for Palestine, held here Sunday and Monday.

In the face of discouraging developments in the Holy Land, where the Arab Nationalist campaign of terrorism has produced grave tensions, the conference decided to go full speed ahead with the plan of building up Palestine into a real homeland for the Jews. In this task non-Zionists as well as Zionists are co-operating. The conference decided to seek $4,500,000 among the Jews of America for Palestine reconstruction purposes.

With the Jews of Germany ground down remorselessly under the iron heel of Hitler, with the Jewish communities in Poland and elsewhere in Eastern Europe in desperate plight because of anti-Semitism, Palestine today has more than ever become a haven for the persecuted of that race. During the 20 years that have elapsed since the Balfour declaration, the Jews of America and elsewhere have poured large sums of money into the land of their forefathers. The desert has been made to bloom and all Palestinians, Jew and Arab alike, have shared in the benefits.

The feelings of millions of Americans of all faiths were felicitously expressed in the message sent to the conference by President Roosevelt, when he said:

> The American people . . . have watched with sympathetic interest the effort of the Jews to renew in Palestine the ties of their ancient homeland and to re-establish Jewish culture in the place where for centuries it flourished and whence it was carried to the far corners of the world.

The 20 years since the Balfour declaration have witnessed, as the President pointed out, "a remarkable exemplification of the vitality and vision of the Jewish pioneers in Palestine." It is good that the work is to go on with redoubled zeal.

It is good, too, that in the face of great provocation the conference has seen fit to reaffirm the pledge that "Jews neither wish domination of Arabs nor will accept domination by Arabs," but will strive only "for harmonious co-operation for the peaceful development of a land common to both peoples."

Fall And Sprain Clothes.

About this time every year, women's magazines are full of costumes for every type of sports—from gabardines for snow-covered ski slides to noncrushable linens for Florida courts. But for all this emphasis on the strenuous season, up to now no fashion editor has taken account of the inevitable toll of mishaps incident to it. If a girl got a bad break—arm, leg or neck—she was supposed to take it and grin though she looked like a bandaged mummy.

Now all this is to be changed. Harper's Bazaar devotes two full pages this month to accessories guaranteed to set off the always painful combination of black-and-blue. A "pink beaded jacket," according to this magazine, is the ideal costume for a fractured arm. For a broken leg, suspended from pulleys, a "raven blue pyjama" will make a doctor lay down his splints. And, on the left-hand side of the page, a sweet young thing actually "flaunts her broken arm by supporting it in a large red Colcombet silk handkerchief printed with flowering crowns."

This very thoughtful article should open all manner of new horizons. Harper's Bazaar might even make this a permanent feature, entitling it "Fashion Forecasts for Fractures." And think what a lot of fun the self-appointed judges would have every year, picking the ten best bandaged women.

A bully is a person who is afraid you'll think he's afraid.

"Kissing isn't what it used to be," declares Dorothy Dix, who isn't what she used to be.

A novelist says one must live in order to write. Perhaps so—and some of us have to write in order to live.

In a matrimonial bureau publication a widow advertises that she wants to marry a man who weighs not more than 130 pounds. After the thin man.

When a New York inventor was demonstrating a robot female figure, it suddenly thrust out its steel fist and knocked him down. Just a sister under the tin.

Thank goodness, we live in a free country where a man may say what he thinks if he isn't afraid his wife, the neighbors or his boss will criticize him, and if he's sure it won't hurt his business or his reputation.

"The people of the world were never dumber than they are today," opines a minister. Oh, we don't know. Once upon a time Noah and his little bunch were the only ones on the globe who had sense enough to come in out of the rain.

The Proposed Judicial Reform

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been an ardent supporter of Mr. Roosevelt and his policies since 1932, because I have believed that his whole purpose has been to act as the instrument of the people's wishes, in restoring to them that measure of justice and equality of rights consistent with a democratic form of government. But with his recent Supreme Court proposal, I believe that Mr. Roosevelt is about to usurp the most fundamental of rights guaranteed to the people by the Constitution—that of the right of constitutional amendment. And I must say that I cannot go along with him on this, no matter how honest his intentions may be.

What is the President's purpose in increasing the number of justices on that court to 15? Is it, as he states in his message to Congress, that the court dockets are congested? The docket of the Supreme Court is not congested and has not been for several years. Is it because a man is naturally senile at the age of 70, that he would appoint other, younger justices to help with the work of the older ones? Hardly, for senility is not confined to any age limit. Many of our ablest jurists have done their best work past the age of 70, and many people are more active at 70 than others are at 35. There must be some other reason.

The facts briefly are these: Several of Mr. Roosevelt's measures, passed Congress with little or no deliberation on the part of Congressmen, were declared void by the justices of the Supreme Court (now nine in number), because they were in violation of the fundamental principles of the Constitution; accordingly as that document has been interpreted by the Supreme Court for the last 100 years and more.

Mr. Roosevelt's clear purpose in wanting to "pack" this court is to revive this same unconstitutional legislation, or other that there may be any doubt about, and have it approved by this court. In a situation such as this, what is there to prevent a chief executive from striking a "reign of terror" throughout the land. It has been done in Germany, Italy and Russia under similar circumstances. It can happen here!

It is not expressed, nor can it be implied, that the makers of the Constitution ever intended that the remedy against void legislation should be placed in the hands of the Chief Executive. Yet that is actually what Mr. Roosevelt is asking for. It is the people's right and their's alone. Else why did the makers specifically provide for amendment by the people directly? For Congress to give the President this power to pack the Supreme Court for his obvious purpose, is to create a dangerous precedent which may easily culminate with the people never being given the chance again to amend their Constitution. That would be the destruction of a fundamental right of the people and a severe blow to our democratic form of government.

So it would appear that Mr. Roosevelt has misconstrued the popular mandate he received in the 1936 election, for I am sure the American people never intended to surrender their constitutional right of amendment when they so heartily endorsed his program. Congress will do well to reflect twice on this proposal, if not on some of the others they pass.

A FEDERAL EMPLOYE.
Washington, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Most people concede that President Roosevelt was re-elected by an avalanche of votes from the medium and low income groups. He was given a mandate to do just what he has done. Yet you take him to task for keeping faith with the electorate.

If five men out of nine on the present Supreme Court can nullify the will of 46 out of the 48 States, then clearly we do not have a democracy in this country, but an oligarchy of said five justices.

Also, if Congress pulls a "boner," then in two years the American people can get a new Congress to undo the harm. But under the present set-up, when five justices deny justice to the masses of the people, the shackles stay put for 20 to 30 years. The British Parliament is a law unto itself. In theory, it is true, the Lords can over-rule them, but in practice fear of increasing their jealously valued membership has always sufficed to bring them into line. Likewise, if we believe in rule by a majority we can trust our Congress. The same arguments which you are using against President Roosevelt's court proposals savor of arguments used when the late Speaker Joseph G. Cannon was shorn of his power, and also of the time when the late William Jennings Bryan was advocating popular election of United States Senators.

SUBSCRIBER.
Washington, Feb. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to President Roosevelt's message to Congress recommending reorganization of the Federal judiciary, one only needs to read the next to the last paragraph of his message to ascertain the full meaning of its contents: "If these measures achieve their aim, we may be relieved of the necessity of considering any fundamental changes in the power of our Government."

In plain English he informs Congress that if they will furnish him with the power to appoint six more Supreme Court judges, he on his part will appoint judges who will render decisions according to his demand, therefore it would not be necessary to consider any fundamental changes in the power of our Government (meaning the Supreme Court).

Will Congress give to the President the absolute power to control the decisions of the Supreme Court? I sincerely hope that they will not grant his request.

EDWARD HUBBELL.
Washington, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Not so long ago, that adept politician, former Gov. Curley of Massachusetts, in his zeal for the health and comfort of aging justices, tried to retire all those on the State bench who were over 70 years old, filling their places with his own appointees. The resultant wave of disapproval obliged him to drop the plan, but even so, it had no small effect on his final defeat. Comparisons will be interesting.

A. J. S.
Washington, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I cannot help expressing my opinion of all the criticism which Mr. Roosevelt is getting at this time over his recommendations for the overhauling of the Supreme Court. Anyone with good common sense ought to be able to see that such an important department of this Government should not be above renovating.

Why should we mistrust our President? Hasn't he already proven himself? Why worry for fear of President Roosevelt being a Communist and a dictator? Grant him these privileges; then if it's not satisfactory to the voting public of this country, they can cause his removal. I am sure they would never have an occasion to do this.

DEMOCRAT FROM MISSOURI.
Washington, Feb. 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I, a laywoman entirely ignorant of politics, congratulate you on your editorial in The Post of February 6, "Time For A Showdown." Your fair statement should stir reflection in all minds now so static under the spell of the words and personality of Mr. Roosevelt.

Surely this gesture, to bring the highest tribunal in our land under the personal direction of the Chief Executive, will fail by its ill-concealed subtlety.

Mr. Elderman's cartoon is no less convincing.

"Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed that he is grown so great?"

P. J. S.
Warrenton, Va., Feb. 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just finished reading your very scathing criticism of the President's message to Congress advocating reconstruction of our judicial system. I also read Raymond Clapper's reaction to the same message in the News of the same date.

I find myself wondering how two views of the same message can be so diametrically opposed, while both of them were supposed to be written by fair-minded and intelligent citizens.

I am also wondering what would be the attitude of the same two writers were conditions reversed in our political set-up. In other words, supposing the Republicans were in control of the two Houses of Congress, with a Republican President in office, all of whom had been re-elected by the largest majority in the history of America. Suppose all laws passed by said Congress and signed by the President that were of a liberal and constructive nature were declared unconstitutional by five or six old Democratic Supreme Court judges, most of whom were more than 70 years of age and have lived in a different age and were not in sympathy with the progress of the times.

In such a case how long would it take Congress to pass laws circumscribing the powers of the court or to "pack" the court with new members (like Grant did in 1867) to get a favorable response to their policies? Just about two months!

If Congress and the President are not capable of making and executing laws for this country, and are subject to have their laws invalidated by the Supreme Court, we had just as well disband Congress and emasculate the President of all power and let the Supreme Court make laws and run the country to suit themselves.

WELLINGTON SMITH.
Washington, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The time has surely come for a little plain speaking about Mr. Roosevelt. He is—and we are constantly reminded of the fact—the President of the United States. In prestige and moral influence his position ranks first in the whole world—not even excepting the anxiously protected throne of the British Empire. And Mr. Roosevelt's great personal charm has made this prestige, this influence, the most potent force for good or evil in our land today.

Many wild things were said during the recent campaign, but there seems to have been only sober truth in the warning that the New Deal was corrupting the moral sense of the people by its constant resort to indirection. Philanthropic ends justified despicable means. And now we have this latest exhibit of the new moral climate in a message which everybody is to accept as an honest effort to improve the judiciary, but which a competent journalist can overnight show up as perhaps the most disingenuous document in our political history.

Legal wiseacres assure us that the President's designs on the Supreme Court will probably miscarry, but nobody seems much concerned about the moral miasma that is choking the Nation. The old verities have a way of coming home at last, and when they do come home we are in for a big jolt.

R. D. MILLER.
Washington, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been a Democrat all my life, an original Roosevelt man, and one of his most loyal supporters. But when he comes forward with a proposition to pack the Supreme Court with "yes men," Mr. Roosevelt and I are parting company, which I think will be the attitude of plenty of Democrats like myself.

If Mr. Roosevelt has had this intention all along why didn't he tell the voters before the November election? If he thinks that the people of the United States gave him a supreme mandate on matters like this, let him submit the proposition to the people by amending the Constitution with existing procedure.

I predict that there will be many a Senator and Congressman who will never come back to Washington if they give succor to President Roosevelt in what appears to be a deliberate attempt to make illegal legislation legal.

The Post Impressionist

Mental Music.

IT is alleged (said Casual Smith) that there is more talk and less conversation in the world today than ever before; but that may be merely one of the obsessions that afflict Old Timers; just such another as the conviction that the younger generation is not what it should be; that the boys do not measure up to their daddies and the girls lack some of the graces of their mothers. But if you bulked the individual exceptions you'd find that the Old Timers had very conclusively confuted their own arguments. And something of the kind may be true of the fine art of conversation. At least it is on record that Dr. Samuel Johnson once said of an evening's entertainment that there had been much talk and little conversation; and we know that conversation thrived then and afterward.

If there is more talk in the world, and there is, it is because there are more people. If there is less conversation (which need not be conceded) it might conceivably be because there are fewer thinkers; though there is no reason to believe that the average is lower than in the past. Possibly a better reason would be that the thinkers have found other mediums of expression.

A conversation, as Dr. Johnson indicated, is something more than mere talk. Talk may be anything; but conversation, informal dialogue, is just as definitely a creation as a battleship, an essay, a pie or a house of cards. It may be strong and graceful or simply a delight to the senses and not expected to endure.

Every creation, whatever its nature, holds a familiar spirit; something that marks it for its own. That something, in conversation worthy of the name, catches the ear and pleases it, holds the attention, stirs the mind, arouses the imagination, gives life and voice to dormant thought, and induces a glow of satisfaction in any group that generates it.

• • • •

One of the most wearisome persons I have ever met was continually making wisecracks. My principal objection to him was that he never listened to anything I had to say; and that's less a confession, let me tell you, than a just criticism. One of the essentials of pleasing conversation is ability to listen. This bird never listened. When he wasn't talking he was thinking of the next wisecrack to get off on the spur of the moment.

Now that man in a salon, passing from one group to another, and painstakingly preparing his impromptu remarks as he traveled, might very easily have achieved the reputation of being a wit.

The only man who needed to be a real conversationalist at an old time salon was a fat man who found it easier to sit than to move around. Benjamin Franklin was such a conversationist (I prefer the shorter word), a roly-poly diplomatist who accomplished more in Paris with a pretty speech to a pretty lady than ever a straight-laced, rule-ridden formalist could with solemn talk. If it were not for fat men conversation as a fine art would be dead and buried and beyond resurrection.

Because B. Franklin had business to attend to he kept the conversational ball rolling, listened as well as talked, sparred carefully and pulled his punches.

• • • •

One of the best verbal boxers I have ever known, a man with an amazing background of book knowledge, is perforce a monologist. There is nobody quite in his class at quick give and take; and so he indulges in shadow boxing, poking fun at himself with ribald skill. A quieter man would find relief in writing; but his thoughts freeze when he faces blank paper.

Yes, writing would help. Consider Shakespeare's dialogues, Beatrice and Benedick for a taste. Will Shakespeare never heard anything like that in a taproom.

But conversation is not dead. Did you ever hear a salesman, a mechanic and a garage attendant discuss cars? Or sailors talk of ships? Or anglers argue over bait? Or golfers wax warm over their game? This does not, perhaps, come under the head of polite conversation, but at least it fills the requirements I mentioned a few minutes ago. It catches the ear, holds the attention and arouses the imagination—if, of course, you are interested in the subject under discussion.

And why wouldn't they be interesting? The man who talks shop speaks on the subject, save one, he knows best in the world; and the man who talks of his hobby speaks on the subject, save one, he loves best in the world; the exception in both cases being himself.

There are thousands of subjects for conversation today that were undreamed of in the old days, and every conference of experts proves their fascination. Times change and methods with them. The conference has succeeded the salon; short radio talks substitute for high-flown orations; but it is still possible for men to get together and exchange ideas.

• • • •

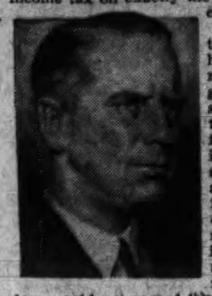
Income Tax Exemptions.

Chicago, Ill.

I DISCOVERED great resentment among persons drawing salaries from city, county and State at the very suggestion that they should pay the Federal income tax on exactly the same basis as other people earning that same amount.



One woman, a school teacher, points out that she has sometimees paid as much as 15 per cent of her gross wages into the pension fund and seems to think of this as a tax. The fact is, of course, that this is no tax, but an unusually sound system of providing against old age. A person in private employment, earning the same amount, might also pay 15 per cent into an endowment policy or annuity subject to greater risks, but the income tax law would not regard that as deductible.

Another teacher, drawing $1,450, has waited some years for stated increases in salary which have been defaulted, however, owing to the depression, and perhaps, in part, to the overloading of the public service with deserving politicians who pay no tax, either. This income of $1,450, if the teacher is unmarried and not the head of a household, would be subject to a small tax, both Federal and State, if she were privately employed.

• • • •

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that her salary did not improve according to her expectations during the years of the great panic, but there are many people in private employ whose wages have failed to advance but are compelled to shower down, nevertheless, with their share of the cost of citizenship.

The Federal income tax specifically applies to all income from whatever source derived, and the exemptions which protect city, county and State employes in vast number is the remote result of a very fastidious interpretation of the United States Constitution in cases which were not based on the income tax law at all. The decisions were given long before the income tax existed, and later were construed to exempt all members of the greatest aggregate pay roll in the world, including thousands of big-shot deadheads who get from $5,000 to $25,000 a year.

Some individuals seem to have confused the case, so it may be repeated that State, county and city employes are exempt from the Federal income tax, that Federal employes are exempt from the State tax, and that certain officials of State, county and city are exempt from both.

There are no tables which show how many salaries are exempt from either or both taxes or the amount of the loss in revenue to the Federal and State governments through this exemption. However, there is great interest in the situation, if I may judge by the volume of my mail on this subject, and possibly one of those percentage bureaus which compile statistics on every conceivable subject will presently come up with approximate totals.

• • • •

SCHOOL TEACHERS, policemen and firemen seem especially sensitive to the proposal that they should pay the same dues to the Government as other people who draw the same income. I see no reason for this indignation, however, even though I readily grant that the income tax return from their salaries would be comparatively small. The point is that the tax was designed to affect all income from whatever source within the brackets established by law. They have no more moral or legal right to exemption than any other person earning the same wages, and it is a strange awe of the Constitution which exempts them at a time when the Constitution is being ripped to tatters to accommodate the impatience of the Administration.

The Supreme Court decisions which are held to establish this exemption to the great detriment of those who work in private and unprotected industry also hold against taxation upon taxation. Yet the State income tax laws airily dismiss that phase of these decisions.

The States levy income tax on the money which is paid to the Federal Government as income tax. In other words, you pay the Federal Government a tax and then pay a tax on that to the State. The Federal Government, however, has a slightly more active conscience in the same circumstances and exempts the money paid as State income tax. There is an important inconsistency there.

The case is plain. An enormous class of parasites in the public service enjoy all the benefits of government while claiming exemption from the cost. They may be, for the most part, conscientious workers giving good service, but that is debatable and beside the point anyway.

However, everybody knows that they do include hundreds of thousands of stupid, lazy, incompetent loafers stuck away in public offices on the recommendation of local political leaders. This class is deadweight and it is little enough to ask that it pay an income tax in the same proportion as the people who support them.

A Congressman Takes His Stand

Ladies Return Favor By Sending Prize Dessert Recipe.

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

By Louis M. Jiggitts,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

The Petunia Ladies Upward and Onward Club, of which I have just been elected president, has decided to hold a forum within the next few weeks and the subject selected is "What Shall We Do to the Supreme Court of the United States?"

I have been chosen to lead the discussion and need your help. I am anxious for you to give me some information on the subject, as I am afraid that my ideas about the Supreme Court are perhaps a bit vague.

Thanking you for this favor and trusting that it will not be of any trouble to you, I am yours truly,

(Miss) PRIMROSE POTTS.

P. S. My Cousin Poke, whom you helped secure a position in Washington writes that he has already gained 10 pounds and been mistaken 3 times for a congressman when off duty. He says he believes if he gains 20 lbs. he may be mistaken for a senator. We all want to thank you for giving him this opportunity.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My dear Miss Potts:

Allow me to congratulate you upon the honor which you re cently received in being elected President of the Ladies Up and Up Society. I am always pleased to learn of honors bestowed upon my constituents and I want to assure you that it has been a pleasure to hear from you. In fact, receiving letters from constituents is one of the few joys of a Congressman's life.

The matter you mentioned is one which is beginning to be discussed somewhat and I am giving it close study, as I always do all important subjects.

I assure you that I shall appreciate your ideas as I know they will be of valuable assistance to me.

With best regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

P. S. I see your cousin, Poke, quite often. In fact, he drops by the office nearly every day to give me his good advice on pending legislation.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I thank you for your congratulations, but please permit me to correct you about the name of our club. We are rather proud of it as it expresses our purpose so well, and, therefore, we are perhaps just a bit sensitive about it. The name is the Petunia Ladies Upward and Onward Club.

I am glad to know that you are giving close study to the subject I mentioned as I feel that I am not troubling you now.

Trusting that I will receive the desired data at an early date, I am

Yours sincerely,
(Miss) PRIMROSE POTTS.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My dear Miss Potts:

I hasten to beg your pardon for confusing the name of your deserving club. At that time I had just finished a very important conference with a few other leaders, and in dictating the letter to you I fear I had a sudden little lapse of memory which, I am glad to say, does not often occur.

Of course I remember your club. I have not forgotten the magnificent reception given me when I addressed you two years ago on the subject of "Congressional Duties." It is one of my fondest recollections.

Assuring you that I am always glad to receive your interesting letters, I am Yours sincerely,

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I am delighted that you remember our club so well and I am glad to know that you have such fond recollections of your reception here.

I hope that you have now completed the data for me. We have been reading in the papers about your suggestions to curb the power of the Supreme Court and other matters and we want to get information that will lead us to form an intelligent opinion. Because of our great respect in your judgement we would appreciate your telling us your position in the matter.

Trusting that I will hear from you at your earliest convenience, I am Yours sincerely,

(Miss) PRIMROSE POTTS.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My Dear Miss Potts:

The Congressman has been called out of the city on official business, but he left some memoranda and marked Congressional Records. I notice in glancing over this that he has suggested reading Madison v. Marbury. I am sending you under separate cover the Congressional Records with the places marked which will be of interest to you.

The Congressman is happy that his constituents are taking such interest in vital problems and I know that he will appreciate hearing from you.

Assuring you that it is always a pleasure to serve the Congressman's constituents and regretting that I cannot be present to hear your discussion, I am,

Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I received a letter from your secretary suggesting that I read Madison V. Marbury. Not having the book myself, I went to our public library and was astonished to learn that our librarian had never heard of Mr. Madison V. Marbury. I wish you would please send me the book at my expense, if it's not too expensive.

The Congressional Records arrived, but when I looked at the marked places I found that one was in the Extension of Remarks containing a paper by Prof. Cornswigger on the Culture of Rana Caterbiana, which I found by reading further was a paper on the life of the Bull Frog. The other place marked was an insertion of a paper by the same professor on Locusto Migratoria, which seems to be the 17-year Locust, although I am not positive.

These are very interesting, but I don't think that they will be very helpful in discussing the subject we have in mind.

Please send me more data and give me your own personal opinion on the subject.

Yours sincerely,
(Miss) PRIMROSE POTTS.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My Dear Miss Potts:

I regret that the matters in the Congressional Records will not assist you in your discussion. It is just possible that there has been a mistake somewhere.

I am afraid that I did not make myself quite clear in my recent letter. There is no Mr. Madison V. Marbury. Madison v. Marbury is a case decided by the Supreme Court in President Jefferson's time and is found in 1/Cranch. 175. I am sure that any lawyer will have this.

I regret that the Congressman is still out of the city, but his official duties have been very pressing of late.

Assuring you that this office is delighted to serve you, I am,

Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I am sorry to hear that your official duties keep you out of Washington so much. But I hope that you have been able to return and can now send me the information on the subject I mentioned some time ago.

I must lead the discussion in a few days and I need this at once.

The only lawyer here in Petunia is Squire Wooster, who quit the practice of law at the turn of the century to become Justice of the Peace. I asked him if he had the case of Madison v. Marbury, but he said he didn't use Supreme Court reports in deciding his cases as the Supreme Court of the United States doesn't have anything to say about what he decides.

I am afraid the case could not be used anyway, as the discussion is limited and I will not have time to go back as far as Jefferson.

In view of the few days remaining before the forum is to be held, I think it would be very helpful if you would just explain the matter to me in your own simple words. It will be a pleasure to read your letter to the members.

Yours sincerely,
(Miss) PRIMROSE POTTS.

LETTER CONTAINING EXPLANATION MAILED TODAY.

WILLA DOOLITTLE, Secretary.

Fulpan Explains Supreme Court For Petunia Club.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My Dear Miss Potts:

I beg your pardon for the delay in answering your recent inquiry. I have, I regret to say, been extremely busy during the last several days. There are so many conferences that a Congressman has to attend about which the public rarely hears.

But first please let me correct any impression you might have about my being absent from Washington. It is true that my official duties have kept me on the run during the past few weeks, but in the long time which I have served as your Representative, I think that I can take pardonable pride in the fact that I have earned the sobriquet of "Old Faithful." In fact, I have been on my seat most of my many years here.

And now to the matter in which you are particularly interested. I regret that I have temporarily misplaced your letter mentioning the subject you want to discuss, but if my memory is correct, and it usually is, the subject is "What Will the Supreme Court of the United States Do to Us?" And you want to know about the power the Supreme Court has in passing on Congressional legislation.

This power of the court is one which has been exercised since the days of Thomas Jefferson. The court has declared that it has the power to hold acts of Congress invalid when the said acts are in conflict with the Federal Constitution, in the court's opinion.

Perhaps I can make this clearer by giving you an example. For instance, when A seeks judgment against B under X Act, and gets a judgment in the lower court and B appeals on the ground of the unconstitutionality of X Act, the question arises whether or not X Act is in conflict with the Constitution. If X Act is in opposition to the Constitution then A cannot recover judgment against B, and B prevails over A because X Act is void ab initio, in which event the cause is reversed and remanded or judgment given the appellant B as the case warrants.

Or, if the Government tries to punish C for violation of Z Act, then, if C appeals, the court decides whether Z Act is in opposition to the Constitution. If Z Act is not in conflict, C stands convicted, but if Z Act is in opposition, then C is declared free and his appeal bond is held for naught because Z Act is unconstitutional.

I hope this will give you a clear understanding of the court's power.

Assuring you that it has been a pleasure to explain the matter to you and to give you my viewpoint, I am Yours sincerely,

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

As requested by you I am glad to give the results of our interesting forum. In the first place, I am glad to tell you that we had a splendid crowd for Petunia, including a number of invited guests from Biddlesville.

We read your interesting and informative letter, and then discussed the court generally. But we decided to postpone a definite decision for the time being, as some of the members couldn't quite understand where you stood on the matter, and they were reluctant to come to any conclusion which might affect the country without having a clear understanding of your opinion.

After we discussed the cour and arrived at our indefinite conclusion, we then took up another interesting item on the agenda, which was simple recipes for Sunday night suppers. I feel sure that you will be interested to know that a charming dessert won first place, and I am glad to let you have this recipe.

You should have one package of marshmallows, ½ cup of cream, ¾ cup of cut dates, 1 cup of graham cracker crumbs and ¾ cup of pecans or walnuts, and ¼ cup of diced green cherries. You cut the marshmallows in small pieces and soak in the cream for ½ hour. Then add the dates, cracker crumbs, nuts, and green cherries. Place this in a proper sized loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Chill for several hours, over night if possible. Then serve with whipped cream, decorated with red cherries.

I have given you this recipe in detail, as it was suggested by a number of members that you give it to the manager of the House Restaurant and request that he name it for our little city. You might call it Dessert Petunia.

Some of the ladies suggested that if the restaurant didn't care to use this you might insert it in the Extension of Remarks in the Congressional Record where it seems so many important matters are printed.

The members of our club gave you a vote of thanks for your letter. They seemed particularly pleased that you have made such a record that your fellow-members call you "Old Faithful."

Yours sincerely,
(MISS) PRIMROSE POTTS.

Washington, D. C.

Miss Primrose Potts,
Petunia.

My dear Miss Potts:

I was very interested in the results of your discussion. I certainly appreciate the information you have given me, and I assure you that it shall have my closest consideration.

With best wishes for the continued success of the Petunia Ladies Upward and Onward Club, I am

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

A Precedent?

By Barnet Nover

THE CONSTITUTIONAL difficulties which the President and Congress have encountered in attempting to put through a far-reaching program of social legislation have caused many New Dealers to cast envious glances in the direction of the British system.

The source of much of our basic law and many of our political institutions, Great Britain, nonetheless, has a constitutional system that differs from ours in many important particulars. Among these not the least fundamental, in all its implications, is the absence in Great Britain of any institution resembling the Supreme Court of the United States. Of course, one would not expect to find such an organ of government in a nation with a unitary, as opposed to a federal system, and with an unwritten rather than written constitution.

The British do have a supreme court, the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, which is the highest judicial authority for Great Britain and Northern Ireland. But this tribunal has no authority to rule acts of Parliament unconstitutional. And while there is still another court, the judicial committee of the Privy Council, which rules on imperial constitutional questions (as it did recently on the question of the constitutionality of certain Canadian "New Deal" measures) its authority, in Great Britain itself, is limited to hearing and acting on appeals from ecclesiastical courts. Its function as a supreme court for the British Empire has been greatly curbed by the statute of Westminster and by the actions taken by various of the Dominions in prohibiting appeals to the Privy Council.

A MEASURE enacted by Parliament is ipso facto constitutional no matter how contrary it may seem to be to the spirit of British institutions and age-old practices. Yet it is worth while to recall that in our century it took successive British governments a considerable period of time, after first receiving a mandate from the people, to put through a program of far-reaching social measures similar to the Roosevelitian New Deal.

The obstacle in Britain's case was not a written constitution and a supreme court interpreting that document in a manner deemed unsatisfactory by the national legislature and the executive, but the House of Lords.

The struggle began after the most startling political overturn in British history up to that time. The election held in 1905 after the formation of the Campbell-Bannerman government was a complete rout for the Conservatives. The incoming House of Commons was composed of 397 Liberals, 57 Laborites, 83 Irish Nationalists and only 157 Conservatives.

Following this landslide the Liberal government sought to enact a series of measures designed to improve the lot of the British people, but denounced by conservatives as revolutionary. They fought these measures tooth and nail, by fair means and foul. The attack on social reform began as a campaign of obfuscation. The election of 1905 was played down as essentially meaningless, simply as a reaction to overprolonged Conservative rule and anything but a mandate for social reform. But the second as well as the third and final line of defense was the House of Lords.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS, wrote Walter Bagehot early in the '70s, "does not attract so much reverence as the Queen, but it attracts very much." By the time of the Campbell-Bannerman government its prestige had remained even if its powers had waned. It had taken a stand in opposition to the reform bill of 1832. When the monarch, William IV, promised the ministry of the day to create sufficient new peers to compel acceptance of this measure, it decided to bow to the inevitable. But even as "a revising and suspending" house, to use Bagehot's phrase, it possessed very considerable powers.

These powers of amending and rejecting measures approved by the House of Commons it persistently employed in the period following the 1905 election. No doubt, sincerely, the members of the House of Lords regarded themselves as the bulwark of the British system, the last dike holding back the revolution.

Thus it was that the program sponsored by the Liberals which might have been enacted in one session of Parliament took years to put over. In 1906 the trade disputes act was passed. It placed trade union funds outside the scope of the law in cases involving infringement of property rights produced by strikes. In 1908 a system of old-age pensions was enacted. The following year saw the establishment by statute of labor exchanges, the inner core of the British unemployment insurance system.

BUT THE REAL struggle began in 1909 with the introduction by Lloyd George, then chancellor of the exchequer, of what was known as the people's budget. That measure imposed a super-tax on large incomes and estates and a tax on unearned increment of land. The bill was thrown out by the Lords.

All through 1910 the battle raged. Two elections were held that year to sound out public opinion. While these marked a recession from the great Liberal tide of 1905, the Liberals, with the addition of the Laborites and the Irish Nationalists, were able to continue in control of the House of Commons. It was then that the Asquith government (Asquith had succeeded Campbell-Bannerman on the latter's death) decided to come to a showdown with the Lords.

A bill was introduced curbing the veto power of the upper house. All that was to be left to the Lords was the right to hold up, but only for a limited time, measures approved by the popularly elected body.

THE LORDS resisted. The struggle became tense. But at long last Asquith threatened to play his trump card. He asked the monarch, George V, to consent to create a sufficient number of new peers to create a Liberal majority in the House of Lords. That would have meant an addition of 400 to 500 peers. That threat had worked in 1832. It worked again. The House of Lords gave way and approved the controversial measure. From that point onward no obstacles stood in the way of further social legislation. The year 1911, therefore, saw important additions made to the social reform program sponsored by the Liberals six years earlier, in particular the health insurance act.

Since then, while there have been sporadic proposals for the reform of the House of Lords, to make it a more effective brake against radical and half-baked legislation, nothing has come of them. More and more has it sunk, as Wilhelm Dibelius has pointed out, "into the thankless role of a mere controlling body." Just as Parliament is supreme in the nation, so the house is now supreme in Parliament. Its ascendancy dates from the Puritan revolution. But this process was enormously accelerated, in the last century, by the threat to pack the Lords. "The power," as Bagehot pointed out, "was not used, but its existence was as useful as its energy."

With so much New Deal legislation coming up before the Supreme Court in the very near future, the threat to pack the court may, aside from the possibility of its actual application, have been designed, some fear, for a similar purpose.

Statement by General Motors Defends Conference 'Walkout'

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Feb. 8.—The text of a statement of Gov. Frank Murphy's strike settlement conference issued tonight by General Motors Corporation follows:

On behalf of General Motors Corporation, Messrs. William S. Knudsen, Donaldson Brown and John Thomas Smith, authorize the following statement:

In view of the fact that negotiations which we have been carrying on with United Automobile Workers of America under the auspices of Gov. Murphy of Michigan have not as yet resulted in the solution of the difficulty, it becomes important at this time to state all the facts and circumstances as to the calling of the conference, what has taken place so far, and the status of affairs, at this time, for the information of all concerned.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, met with Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan and John L. Lewis, Wednesday morning, February 3. Subsequent meetings have been held practically every day since that date. In subsequent meetings other associates of the respective parties have joined. The conferences have been held as a result of the request of the President of the United States, conveyed to us through Gov. Murphy. The fact remains that at the time the sit-down strikers were still in possession of certain of the corporation's plants. The position of the corporation from the beginning has always been that it was willing to negotiate with representatives of the union as soon as the strikers discontinued illegal occupancy of its plants. The request of the President of the United States left no alternative other than to meet Mr. Lewis with Gov. Murphy.

Recalls Injunction.

It will be recalled that on Tuesday, February 21, the circuit court at Flint, Mich., issued an injunction and ordered the strikers to evacuate the plants within 24 hours. It has always been clear that the seizure of the plants was illegal, and that their continued occupancy was solely for the purpose of forcing the corporation to accept the union's demands. The strikers have refused to obey the order of the court. Now they are not only violators of the law but, in addition, are in deliberate contempt of the court. They have openly stated they will not obey the law. Naturally, such a situation is entirely beyond the province of General Motors. It is a challenge to law and order and to the authority of the State, which those charged with authority must deal with according to their responsibility. Such were the general circumstances under which the first meeting was held.

In the course of the first meeting on Wednesday, Knudsen was informed by Lewis that if a satisfactory arrangement could be reached as to the extent of recognition to be accorded the union, he would immediately put the strikers back to work, following which negotiations could be undertaken on the remaining points raised by the union in its letter of January 4.

Gov. Murphy informed Knudsen that it was at the request of the President of the United States that General Motors should enter into negotiations on this point. Accordingly, such negotiations have taken place. No other issue has been discussed and no agreement has been reached on this or any other point.

The union claims it is entitled to exclusive bargaining rights for all workers in plants on strike, even those outside its membership. This position really means that if 500 workers sit down and throw 10,000 other workers out of employment, this act of violence is sufficient authority to permit the union to speak exclusively for the 10,000 employes thus deprived of work. Furthermore, the illegal possession of the plants to make this effective is to be reinforced by defiance of both the law and the mandate of the court.

General Motors cannot subscribe to such coercion, and agree to deliver its workers into such bondage. General Motors must obey the law, must respect the rights of all its workers and the public that it serves.

Statement Often Repeated.

In recognition of these obligations, the corporation has repeated time and time again its willingness to bargain with the union on behalf of its members, after evacuation of the plants, but it is restrained, both by law and in equity, from depriving any of its employes of their right to self-organization, by requiring that they be represented by this particular union without regard to their own desire and over their protest, in tens of thousands of cases.

The C. I. O. affiliated unions have settled all their recent strikes, such as Libbey-Owens-Ford, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Hercules Motors and others, on the basis of recognition for their members only, as offered by the General Motors Corporation.

In order to determine the proportion of the workers who wish to be represented by the union, as against those who wish to be represented otherwise, the corporation offered to submit the question to its workers, by means of a secret ballot to be conducted under the auspices of the Governor of Michigan. This was not satisfactory to the union representatives.

The corporation has insisted upon what it believes to be a fair and honorable policy, i. e., to give opportunity to the representatives of any group of workers to negotiate any questions with the management, with the understanding that any advantages accorded to one group would be accorded to all—conditions being the same.

Rights of 125,000.

Out of all the conferences and discussions which have taken place, the fundamental issue again asserts itself—is the power of the union to prevail based as it is on violence, disregard of law and order and contempt of the courts; or are the legitimate rights of over 125,000 workers to be considered, thus reassuring the forces of law, order, justice, reason and civilization?

In appreciation of the unremitting efforts of Gov. Murphy, we have assured him of our readiness to respond to an early call by him to resume conferences, if in his judgment any good could result therefrom.

seven points in the union's original demand could be started.

"No other issue (than recognition)," the statement said, "has been discussed and no agreement has been reached on this or any other point."

Through a day filled with reports that his efforts at conciliation would be disrupted by an apparent deadlock over the extent of union recognition, the Governor kept corporation officials and representatives of the striking United Automobile Workers of America in conference.

Late in the afternoon, William S. Knudsen, executive vice president heading the General Motors conferees, donned his hat and coat and was ready to leave the conference room.

Washington Hook-Up.

At this point, a telephonic hook-up was arranged, with Knudsen and John L. Lewis, bushy-browed director-general of the strikes, speaking from Detroit on the same line with one or more unidentified parties at Washington.

Less than an hour afterward, Knudsen emerged smiling from the conference room.

As the conference opened today, Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, clung to his demand that the union be named sole bargaining agent for employes of the 20 General Motors plants; the corporation held to its original position that the union leaders could speak for their members only.

The Governor said there would be no change in his policy designed "to use the power of the State to obtain settlement, without violence or bloodshed."

Guardsmen Held Off.

Defiance of a circuit court injunction by "stay-in" strikers who have occupied two Fisher Body Co. plants at Flint, Mich., since December 30 has been a complicating factor in the conversations. Gov. Murphy has withheld an answer to a request that some of the 3,300 Michigan National Guardsmen on duty at Flint after riots near the plants, be used to enforce a court order for the strikers' eviction and arrest.

General Motors has contended a large majority of its workers are opposed to the union; the U. A. W. A. has advanced a claim that it represents a majority without naming any figures for its membership.

General Motors continued to delay the filing of injunction proceedings at Flint against sit-down strikers who are holding a third unit of the corporation—the Chevrolet motor assembly plant No. 4.

President, Guests Eat Pheasants as Press Cools Heels

Hungry reporters nervously paced the corridor outside the White House executive offices.

Their lunch hour had come and gone, but they dared not leave their post. Inside the Presidential work room an important luncheon conference was under way, too important for them to dare risk missing the story when the session was concluded.

Nervously they paced, and watched the clock. The President was talking with Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, and Representative Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas, the chairman of the Judiciary committees of Senate and House. Undoubtedly the talk was on the legislative program for enacting the President's epochal recommendation for reorganizing the judicial system. It could hardly be about anything else.

Reporters Fire Queries.

Finally the door was opened. Ashurst and Sumners appeared. Immediately they were surrounded by the hungry reporters. What was discussed? When will the judiciary committees act on the court proposal? What did the President say?

And the answers—

From Sumners: "The President had several fine pheasants and he wanted me to come down and help him and Ashurst eat them."

From Ashurst: "I have just had what every man in public life delights in—a free meal."

That was all. They departed for the Capitol.

Hungry reporters went around the corner to get some lunch.

Wagner "Down for Lunch."

Incidentally, there was some mystery about whether Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, also shared in the Presidential pheasant feast.

Shortly before the lunch period the New Yorker appeared at the executive offices. Reporters asked him why. He said he was "just down for lunch."

"But you're not on the list," they told him. "Only Ashurst and Sumners are on the visitors list for lunch."

The Senator insisted that the President had invited him by telephone last Friday. He disappeared into the secretarial offices to check up. He didn't come back out and the guess was that a place had been made for him at the table.

If it wasn't, he must have gone out the back door.

Duce Attends Wedding Of His Nephew in Rome

Rome, Feb. 8 (AP).—Vito Mussolini, Il Duce's 23-year-old nephew, was married today to Silvia di Ross, 27, in the same church where the Premier's eldest son, Vittorio, was wed Saturday. Mussolini attended the wedding at the little parish church near Villa Torlonia, his Rome residence.

Vito is the editor of Il Duce's newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, and the son of the premier's brother, the late Analdo Mussolini. Like Vittorio, he served in the Italian air force in Ethiopia.

Hair-Dress Held Second To Hat Style

Simple Fashion Is Called Best for Daytime Affairs.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The age-old controversy, which comes first, the chicken or the egg, was brought to light again in a modern version at the luncheon-meeting of the millinery and cosmetic divisions of the Fashion Group this week. Representatives of each faction were on hand to discuss the importance of the hat versus the coiffure, which should be planned and created first. While there was a diversity of opinion as to the relative importance of the coiffure over the hat, the general consensus seemed to be that it was imperative for the milliners and hair stylists to work together if the complicated coiffures and the varied hat fashions were to be harmonious.

EHLEN.

Say the milliners: "Hair must be dressed according to the lines of the hat." And the hair stylists reply: "Hats must conform to the new styles in coiffures."

In an informal and unplanned general discussion among the guests, the smartly gowned women agreed almost unanimously that hats should take precedence over coiffures, and hair should follow the hat styling. That is "because there are so many and varied types of hats from which to make a selection, and even the woman on a limited budget likes variety in her millinery."

Simple Coiffure Urged.

It also was agreed that a simple, yet definitely chic coiffure, should be chosen for daytime to insure neatness and trimness. Also, that formal evening gowns should be complemented by an entirely different and more complicated hairdress. This idea, follows a trend which decrees almost tailored simplicity by day and glamour and femininity for evening.

Since women do dress to please the men, these fashionists and stylists declared the main consideration at all times should be neatness—that is the male's synonym for attractive grooming. With this tremendous question settled, it was decided that where budgets had to be consulted, it was much wiser to purchase one sleek evening gown of good lines to wear an entire season, and the balance on grooming for each occasion. Such technique was considered much better than a number of gowns, accented by straggly hair unkept skin and incorrect make-up.

Spring Styles Listed.

Among the highlights of the spring coiffure and hat styles were: the angel roll which is generally becoming and can be worn with both daytime and evening clothes; hair curled in the front and at the sides for the popular off-the-face hats; the "up-and-away" styling in coiffures to offset hats which expose the back of the head. For the woman who feels that she cannot wear a hat which exposes too much of her face and head, experts suggested the small hat with a decorative veil, extending from the sides and front of the hat, down over the face. Both coiffures and hats are going feminine in their styling, receiving inspiration from the modes of 1880.

However the individual may feel about all this hat and coiffure controversy, authorities decree the two must be harmonious. Your old hat will not complement a new hairdress, and a newly styled coiffure will definitely not coincide with a last season's best seller in the realm of millinery.

Gowns More Formal

Paris (U.P.).—Evening clothes are becoming more colorful and more formal with the advance of early spring fashions. There are fewer trailing frocks than we are accustomed to, but most of the gowns are low-cut and formal.

Curls Form Frame for Toque

Hair is dressed to complement the hat in the photograph above. Because the hat covers part of the forehead, the hair is drawn back from that part of the face. In order to form a frame for the small toque, the coiffure is curled high on the sides and in a series of rolls up the back of the head.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

AFTER a close inspection of this year's crop of Valentines, it seems to me that a concerted drive against old-fashioned sentiment is going on.

ALICE HUGHES.

The thought of the old time remembrance was along the line of "When This You See, Remember Me." Now the attitude seems to be, "Well, if I see you it will be nice, but don't get crow's feet worrying about it!"

The 1937 Valentines have definitely gone modern—though I don't precisely know what that means. Wisecracks, puns and flip-niffies of all kinds have replaced the tender thoughts that used to be swathed in lace. I suppose it's all right; certainly some of the old timers were plenty silly and mawkish.

The only real novelty I saw in my inspection of the current crop was a package of flower seeds attached to the valentine, the notion being to roll up the sleeves at once and start a window-box-garden.

A certain sissiness is noted among the new Valentine colors, too. A good forthright red was good enough for your parents and mine, but now I find them in smoke blue, dusty pink, leaf green, orchid, gold and silver! What kind of a love, I ask you, is expressed by a smoke blue Valentine?

• • • •

Personally, I'll have none of this orchidaceous foolishment. I want a red heart with a lot of lace around it, and if my unhappy wretch of a spouse turns up with a dusty pink Valenine for me, I'll simply have to dig me up another Valentine, that's all!

Whenever she appeared in public mobs trailed her, and she had a hectic time during her stay here. But the kid took it in stride—after all, she has been a widely-hailed public figure ever since she first strapped on a skate and grew those dimples. . . .

I'm always finding out odd bits of fact in my daily scooting, and now I learn that most of the loving cups you see being handed to people in papers and the newsreels come from the studio of L. and C. Mayer & Co. out on Fifth avenue. Their ace engraver is a Dane named Christian Toraldson, and it takes him a whole day to put the recipient's name and titles on a silver mug. Moreover, he doesn't really care a hoot about whom the cup's for—it's just a number to him. Odd life, Toraldson's . . .

Whenever the press agents reach the head-scratching stage, they come out with a list of ten something. Now a local scalp-architect has come through with a lit of ten modern women having coiffures suitable to their types and personalities. Queen Mother Mary of England tops this ten, and a few others are Wally Simpson, Marlene Dietrich, Amelia Earhart and Jeritza. Maybe, with Mrs. S. on the list, Queen Mary will refuse to serve. But let the press agent fret!

Leather Gloves Now Easy to Wash

Washable leather gloves have been improved until they are almost as easy to wash as your own hands. There are just a few rules for the novice to remember.

Don't wait until they become badly soiled. Use plenty of soapsuds. Avoid harsh rubbing and squeezing and keep both washing and rinsing waters an even lukewarm temperature.

As chamois and doeskin gloves become slippery and soft in water, it is best to wash them off the hands. Otherwise the seams may weaken and split. Suede, kid, and other washable leather gloves may be washed on the hands with ease and safety. Finger tips and other badly soiled spots may be gently scrubbed with a nail brush well lathered with soap.

Be careful in removing the gloves from your hands, otherwise the stitching may break. Turn them gently inside out, and wash the inner surface. Use one soapy rinse followed by three clear rinses.

Roll the gloves in a towel for a moment to absorb as much of the moisture as possible. Use a wire glove form for drying or blow into Waterproof, spotless velvet is the newest material to be used for a raincoat. It is made up in black in a tailored coat that has a high neck topped by a small pointed collar. Leg-of-mutton sleeves jut up above the normal shoulder line and a smart waterproof velvet belt encircles the fitted waist.

Big patch pockets, over each hip, are practical as they are large enough to stow away a purse and gloves.

Young Women Should Arise For Older One

Tact Necessary to Avoid Injury to Someone's Feelings.

By Margaret Wallace.

"I AM VERY much puzzled by the question of rank and precedence which I have had to struggle with since I came to Washington this winter as the wife of a minor government official," one woman writes to this department.

"I do not know when I am supposed to rise as mark of respect to rank. Do you think I should rise when a Senator's wife comes to speak to me in a hotel restaurant. A Senator's wife who is no older than myself—about 35—stopped at our table in a hotel restaurant recently. My husband rose at once and another woman in our party got up, too. But I remained seated. Of course, I always stand up for an elderly person. When I am calling and some guests come in the drawing room should I rise when my hostess does to greet them?"

When one woman stops to speak to another woman who is seated at a restaurant table it is not necessary for the latter to arise unless the woman who is standing is an elderly one.

Young girls always rise at once when an older woman stops to speak to them or to anyone at the table. Of course, men always rise when a woman stops at his table but his wife does not have to.

Tact Is Important.

However, for a woman, young or old, to jump to her feet in the presence of a woman only a few years older than herself shows a lack of tact and a violation of the principles of consideration on which good manners are founded.

When guests arrive while one woman is calling on another one, the caller remains seated while the hostess receives the guests. Both host and hostess should rise to receive their guests.

When a guest has been invited to the drawing room to await the hostess she should rise when the hostess comes in the room to welcome her.

It is proper to rise when Mrs. Roosevelt or any other First Lady comes into the room, unless it is at a large party or reception and she takes her place in the receiving line.

QUERY: "Recently a woman came to my house while I was having a reception. She seated herself on the sofa and, although my daughter took her friends up to introduce them to her, this woman did not rise from her seat. She is the mother of one of my daughter's friends. Was this polite? She was gracious and invited some of the young people to sit down and talk with her.

Should Remain Seated.

ANSWER: It was quite proper for the mother of one of your daughter's friends to remain seated when your daughter introduced her friends to her. If the circumstances had been reversed and the younger people had been seated and the older woman was standing, the young people should have risen when they were presented.

QUERY: "I went to see a man on business. He is an older man but is courteous and gallant to young women when he is at a social function with them. When I went into the office he asked me to take a seat near his desk, but did not rise or shake hands with me. He carried on a business conversation with me and then said: 'Very well, I will consult my partners and you will hear from me soon. Good morning.' Do you think he was lacking in politeness?"

ANSWER: Certainly not. He was business-like and courteous. It was not necessary for him to rise or shake hands when he was receiving you as a business caller.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

A LADY with a house enjoys planning a pretty party table as much as she does decking herself out in her best bib and tucker. Because being a nice hostess reflects just as much glory on herself as looking like the Queen of Sheba.

The holidays supply the occasions for tables that do a lady proud . . . that's why she's poking around the china and glass departments this time of year looking for ideas and the little extras that make table settings gracious.

We're guilty, too, of blocking the traffic in our favorite china department. Here's our problem: We have Italian pottery plates in fruit design and we adore them . . . with them we have soft, cloudy green ground pottery bread and butter plates, and for soup some interestingly shaped bowls in the same color of cloudy green except that they're without design. Our salad plates have darling old music designs on them and our tea cups have an all-over flower design that is inside the cups as well as outside. But what glassware would be best with that assortment—and what for dessert plates?

We looked and looked and finally decided on some fat unusual looking amber tumblers, and for dessert, plates of creamy color with open fret work edges—not a bit practical, but we're planning to wash them oh so carefully. And when we have ice cream to serve, we'll set amber sherbets on these creamy plates. For our Christmas table with this service, we're going to use a natural linen Deruta cloth with a centerpiece of blue spruce and fruits in the colors on our plates.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl, 18, Tells Beau, 25, to Read Books on Personality, Charm, Etiquette; He Wonders if He Should.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a very distressed young man and would like your advice and help. I am 25 years old and very fond of a young lady 18 years old. She is the best girl I have ever had and I would hate to lose her. I have been going with her for eight months—the last six of them steady, at her suggestion. For the first few months she seemed to care for me very much but recently she has seemed more indifferent, although we are still seeing each other regularly.

• • • •

Perhaps I should say right here that she is the first nice girl I have ever gone with for any length of time, as most of my former girls lacked both ideals and manners. She is a very frank person and has said a few things that have been embarrassing to me, so I decided to talk things over. We did and she told me her attitude had changed because of my manners toward her. She also said she liked me well enough but did not love me and wasn't thinking of it, as she doesn't expect to marry for at least five years.

She says she admires men with high ideals, polished manners and pleasing personality, and that my manners and personality could be improved upon. Most of all, she says she wants me to stop trying to embrace her, as she doesn't like it. She advised me never to try to kiss her while driving or in any public place. She had the audacity to suggest that I get some books from the library on etiquette, personality and charm. This, of course, hit me between the eyes and hurt me a great deal. Also, she says she can only see me on week-ends from now on, as she is starting a night school course.

I would be willing to do anything in the world to win her, but I am inclined to believe all my efforts would prove fruitless. What do you suggest? Would you advise me to follow her suggestions to the letter and pray that some day she may love me, or should I try to forget her? Do you believe when persons really love they accept and overlook the loved one's faults, as a result of being drawn together by some unknown, irresistible force? Have you ever known of cases like mine, where a girl fell in love with a man quite a while after they had met? I shall appreciate your advice? Sincerely, TROUBLED.

Excellent Advice.

DEAR TROUBLED: The young lady has given you excellent advice, which you will do well to follow. In pointing out your social and cultural deficiencies and suggesting methods for overcoming them, she has demonstrated a real interest in you. If she weren't more or less interested, she wouldn't have bothered to tell you those ways in which you disappoint and repel her. She would have broken off the friendship without further ado. I imagine she shares, although possibly in a lesser degree, your own devout wish that a better psychic adjustment may be worked out, so that all that is worthwhile in your friendship may be retained and enhanced. Whether this adjustment is achieved depends entirely on you, I believe.

The possibility that you may not win this girl's love by following her advice to the letter should not deter you from entering on a systematic course of self-improvement. You admire the girl because she possesses certain ideals and grace of manner—things you have never met in a girl before. It stands to reason if you can't win her heart, you probably couldn't win the heart of any girl who lived by similar fastidious standards. And it seems obvious your fundamental preference is for the high-type woman. Therefore, if you are ever to find love with that sort of woman, you must equip yourself to be her social and cultural equal, at least; and, if possible, her superior.

Pocket your false pride, summon your courage and ask the readers' advisory service at the Washington Public Library, Eighth and K streets northwest, to suggest a course of instructive reading on the subjects of etiquette, personality and charm. Buy a copy of Emily Post's "blue book of social usage" and discover the close relationship between fine manners and sound morals. It is a fascinating volume, written with charm, humor, wit and authority. The introduction alone, headed "Manners and Morals," and written by Richard Duffy, is worth the price of the book. There is another book, Donald Laird's "Why We Don't Like People" (the author's tactful way of saying, "why people don't like us") which throws the spotlight on universal errors of omission and commission in social interchange. Dr. Laird is a psychologist at Colgate University, and his book is both entertaining and informative. You might be greatly benefited by enrolling in a certain school of self-expression here in Washington, the name of which I shall be glad to give you on request.

It is too much to ask of love, or even friendship, that it condone crude or ignorant offenses against beauty. Uncouth deportment (such as embracing a girl against her will, or attempting to kiss her in public), careless or vulgar speech, insensitivity of mind and spirit (of the sort which does not intuitively realize when it has offended and why, and how), are inexcusable offenses against that beauty of spirit which makes for real and enduring love between two persons. For, make no mistake about it, love is more psychic than physical.

That "unknown, irresistible force" you speak of is probably physical attraction, which is short-lived unless sustained and reinforced by coequal mental and spiritual attraction, either existing from the first or gradually developed between two persons thus drawn together. Your devotion to the girl has been intensified because she possesses and represents certain psychic intangibles which you seek; while her interest has dwindled as a result of failing to find these qualities in you, or any definite promise of them.

• • • •

Fine manners bespeak a gentle heart, an aristocratic spirit, a genuine love of beauty and the desire to create it, in thought and word and deed; and that is why fine manners are regarded as so important by persons of sensitive perceptions. Manners are the garment of the soul, and no amount of expensive tailoring can render a man socially acceptable into selective company unless his spirit is equally well appointed. M. H.

Shrove Tuesday Correct Time For Pancakes

Celebration, Originating in England, Has Become World-Wide.

By Rebekah Blake.

TODAY, SHROVE TUESDAY, is known as "pancake day" in England. It is one of the outstanding holidays of the month in that country, and has spread throughout the world.

It is known as "Fools" evening in Vienna, and great crowds gather on the French Riviera at Nice to witness the burning of His Majesty, King Carnival. In Italy, the peasants agther to invoke blessings on the crops about to be sown.

In England, at Onley, in Buckinghamshire, a "Pancake Race is held, while at Westminster School in London the students celebrate with the "Tossing of the Pancake." This is often the only time of the year when families eat these hot cakes.

Why don't you carry on the custom and include pancakes in your menu today?

Learn Dancing At Home

BLYTHE and buoyant! That describes the dancing that makes Bob and Mary the center of admired attention.

No matter what tune the orchestra strikes up—waltz, fox-trot, tango or rhumba—they skim across the floor, making smooth, graceful turns in just the right rhythm.

Claire and Ed are conspicuous for quite a different reason. After a siege of tedious tugging Ed crashes down on Claire's pet corn.

Ten to one, it's a girl's own fault if her foot is stepped on. Long backward steps, swinging gracefully from the hips rather than from the knees, are guaranteed toe protectors.

But the unfortunate habit some men have of leaning back—off-balance—and leading with feet instead of shoulders, causes girls to duck behind the palms at their approach.

These and other annoying faults can be corrected at home. Practising from easy diagrams like the box waltz above gives sureness and lightness in no time! It's easy. Count 1, step forward with left foot. Count 2, diagonally forward with right foot. Count 3, close left foot to right. Then repeat the 3 steps, as 4, 5 and 6 in the diagram show.

This is a basic step. Our 40-page booklet, SOCIAL DANCING SELF-TAUGHT, shows how to combine it and other diagramed steps into popular ballroom dances. Learn, waltz, foxtrot, rhumba and tango as well as posture and balance at home. No expensive lessons, no critical eyes to watch.

Send 15c for our booklet, SOCIAL DANCING SELF-TAUGHT, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Nail Tips Chip Easily, So Leave Off Polish

June Travis, movie actress, has several tricks to keep her fingernail lacquer from peeling and chipping between manicures. For one thing, she doesn't have the polish extend over the whites of the nail, as it is the tips that are most apt to chip. Another thing, she doesn't use a stiff nail-brush to scrub the fingertips. Instead she goes under the nails with a damp orange stick.

Part of the chipping of lacquer is also due to brittle nails. June keeps her nails in good condition by the frequent massaging around them with an oily cream.

Soviet Envoy Entertains At Musicale in Embassy

M. Troyanovsky Is Alone in Presenting Distinguished Russian Composer and Pianist in Program of Own Works.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics M. Troyanovsky last night presented their distinguished countryman, Serge Prokofieff, composer and pianist, in a program of his own compositions at a musicale at the embassy.

Mme. Troyanovsky, who is recovering from a recent operation, was unable to be present.

Mr. Prokofieff, acknowledged as one of the foremost modern Russian composers, appeared glad to be the guest artist for so responsive an audience.

He was introduced by the Ambassador, who brought him to the front of the ballroom. Chairs had been there arranged for the guests, and also in the adjoining salon and some in the reception hall.

Mr. Prokofieff played a varied program, illustrating his versatility in composition. He included among his numbers, "Musique d'Enfants," not before played in this country, which is a composition for children—music to the writing of which he has recently been devoting considerable time. He also played his Andante, op. 29; Ten Visions Fugitive, op. 22; Trois Gavottes op. 12, 25 and 32; Etude, op. 2 No. 4 and Suggestions Diabolique, op. 4.

A number not on the printd program was ballet music written for "Romeo and Juliet" which he played from the orchestra score with Dr. Hans Kindler, director of the National Symphony Orchestra, turning the pages for him. This number, with sharply defined rhythm and more flow of melody than the former compositions, was particularly enjoyed and the performance was its first as a piano composition. He explained to the amusement of his audience that his étude "was composed about 98 years ago." He played as an encore a prelude originally composed for the harp.

Mr. Prokofieff, who is only slightly past 40, is of more than medium height, of fair coloring, and wears glasses. He plays with effortless composure and a crisp, brilliant style.

Following the program the guests went into the banquet hall, where a long buffet table was set in the usual lavish manner characteristic of all parties at the Soviet Embassy. Down the center was a sturgeon fully 5 feet long, garnished with fresh vegetables. There was also caviar and salads, and in another room beverages were served.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Germany Herr Lans Luther, the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. MacWhite, in black velvet who sat in the same row with the Siamese Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri, she wearing a gown of white satin with pearl straps over the shoulders, and the Counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation Dr. Joseph Nemecek. Behind them sat the Minister of Czechoslovakia Vladimir Hurban with the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jarnefeldt, who wore a tunic frock with a red and silver lame blouse over black velvet, the Minister of Rumania Mr. Charles Davila and Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, who wore peach colored satin and had a coat of ermine.

Nearby were the minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Close, who wore a gown of silver gray with a green ostrich scarf. Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Goodwin in a moire taffeta frock which matched her auburn hair, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Mme. Pastoriza, Mme. Saito in a gown of black lace with a long strand of Japanese pearls and the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro.

In the doorway of the ballroom sat Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife o fthe Attorney General, between Representative Caroline O'Day and Mrs. Sol Bloom, next to whom sat the Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Mehimet Ertegun. Mrs. Cummings wore a gown of black with a black beaded top and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. O'Day, who was in black and white crepe, carried a black feather fan and Mrs. Bloom wore a gown of heliotrope taffeta. Opposite them sat Representative Bloom and the Minister of Austria and Mme. Pochnick, the latter wearing black taffeta with a gold design and a gold ornament in her hair. Mme. Ertegun was seated in the front row and Miss Vera Bloom also was among those who had gone nearer the piano. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Miss Josephine oRche were among the interested listeners. Mrs. Willebrandt wore a gown of black and Miss Roche, green and silver lame. The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace were joined by the Secretary's sister, Mme. Wijkman, wife of the Commercial oCunselor of the Swedish Legation, who had come alone. Mrs. Wallace wore a black gown with a sequin jacket and Mme. Wijkman a flowered print in which roses predominated.

Among other guests were Mrs. William E. Borah, who wore a gown of white; Representative and Mrs. Imhoff, she in blue velvet; Representative and Mrs. Bierman, the Minister of Panama and Senora de Boyd, Miss Mary Senate Howes with Mr. John Stewart, Mrs. Robert Jackson, in red chiffon, accompanied by her son; Mme. Dimitriu, wife of the Assistant Counselor of the Rumanian Legation, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. John Bennett; Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose in blue velvet studded with rhinestones, and Senator Arthur Capper.

Invitations to Wedding Of Miss Rolfes Issued

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edward Rolfes have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances Hildegarde Rolfes, to Mr. Sidney Walker Rawlings. The ceremony will take place Saturday, February 27, at 4:30 o'clock at St. Alban's Church.

After March 10, Mr. Rawlings and his bride will live at 1725 New Hampshire avenue.

Mobile Greets Carrie Fulton At Masquerade

Capital Debutante Named Maid of Honor for Mardi Gras in Southern City.

A round of parties greeted Miss Carrie Roper Fulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fulton and one of this season's debutantes, when she arrived in Mobile, Ala., last week to be the guest of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craighead. It is carnival season in Mobile, and tonight the climax of the festivities will be the coronation of the queen of the Mardi Gras, Miss Cornelia McDuffie, who will have Miss Fulton as one of the ladies of her court.

Thursday night she attended the double rush masquerade ball of the Athelstain Club, dressed in a dark green Turkish costume trimmed in gold and silver and red shoes. Saturday evening she attended the banquet at Battle House, one of the functions of carnival week, with Mr. E. H. Bixler as her escort. Preceding the banquet there was a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perrin Bestor. From the Bestor residence to the Battle House, the cars carrying the carnival queen and her court were led by a police escort.

Rehearsals for the coronation ceremonies, dinners, luncheons, teas and visits to noted azalea and japonica gardens have filled her time. Miss Fulton will visit in Birmingham, Tuscaloosa and Raleigh, N. C., before returning here in April to act as a page at the D. A. R. Congress.

A book, "Mobile, Fact and Tradition," by Mr. Erwin Craighead, traces the history of the Mardi Gras in the Southern city as far back as 1831. Miss Fulton is of an old Mobile family. Her grandfather, Dr. Robert Fulton, was a native of Alabama and was for many years chancellor of the University of Mississippi.

Nursing Service Unit Will Meet

Committee Will Gather at Mrs. Groner's Home Today.

Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, chairman of the Washington Committee of the Frontier Nursing Service, which is under the direction of Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, will hold a meeting of the committee this morning at 11 o'clock at her home in Massachusetts Avenue Park, 2600 Thirty-first street.

Among members of this committee are Mrs. George Hewitt Myers, Miss Louise Myers, Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, Maj. Julia Stimson, Miss Gertrude Bowling, Princess Margaret Boncompagni, Mrs. Norman Smith, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, Mrs. Sidney F. Taliaferro, Mrs. Beale Bloomer, Mr. Robert W. Woolley, Miss Marguerite T. Woolley, Mrs. Malcolm McConihe, Judge D. Lawrence Groner and Miss Marion Shouse.

The following Washington girls visited the service during the past year: Miss Shouse, Miss Christine Ekengren and Miss Louise Myers as couriers, Miss Marguerite Woolley and Miss Josephine Rice were volunteer staff members. Headquarters of the service are at Wendover, Leslie County, Ky.

Miss Beckinridge, who visits in Washington every year, is expected to arrive in March or April for a brief stay.

THE MERRY WHIRL
by MARYLYN

Lyla Townsend can certainly handle her long black limousine with the greatest of ease and without all of the wheel-mauling and face grimacing that usually attends tricky traffic tie-ups. Saw her the other day when the streets were slick with ice. Lyla pleasantly smiling to herself was a symphony in gray with a chic felt hat, squirrel coat, crepe frock.

There are enough events on the social calender to make all of these threats of the approaching end of parties and promise of the quiet season, seem utterly absurd. In addition to the formal affairs that are continuing, (thank goodness) there are gay afternoon and evening soirees one of which will be the buffet supper which the Cornelius Seoanes are giving in honor of that popular couple, the Dominican Minister and Mme. Pastoriza.

Once again there will be seagoing expeditions in the Smith household. Horace, now back here on duty, is making marine plans. Someone asked him the other day whether or not he would buy back "The Lucy," trim little craft he sold when ordered to New York. Horace said no, but that he will soon be getting a new boat and will start a contest for an appropriate name. His interest in water sports, which is intense, rather evens up the score here with the several Naval officers—Dick Tuggle, for instance—who dote on equistrian pastimes, something one somehow does not associate with the Navy any more than sailing with the Army.

There is a corner of the Washington tap room that has come to be known as Mariners' Corner. Everyday at noon shipping men arrive by twos and threes and gather there for luncheon. Some who may be seen there are Lee Poe Hart, Eric Bark, Clinton Doggett, Jim Barnes and Eugene Leggett. For sometime their domain was sacred and never invaded by members of the other sex. But, alas, that is a thing of the past and the bold pioneers who broke up the tradition are Mrs. Kvale, wife of Representative Paul Kvale, and Mrs. Delano, wife of "Captain Bud" Delano.

Miss Helen Peeples, Mr. J. V. Summerlin Will Wed Saturday

Miss Helen Payne Peeples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howell Peeples, will be married Saturday afternoon at Washington Heights Presbyterian Church to Mr. John Vandergrift Summerlin, son of Mr. George T. Summerlin, United States Minister to Panama.

Their engagement was announced some time ago. Mr. Summerlin, who is secretary to his father and is now in Washington on leave, is the son of Mrs. Blair Spencer, of Gloucester, Va. The wedding will be quiet, with only members of the immediate families present. The ceremony is to be performed at 3:30 o'clock, and the only attendants will be Mrs. B. W. Dudley, jr., of Summit, N. J., who will be her sister's matron of honor, and Lieut. P. T. Seaborn, of Magion, Va., who will be best man.

Oreon E. Chapman Is Party Honoree

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chapman last night entertained friends and playmates of their daughter, Oreon Elma Chapman, at a party on the occasion of her ninth birthday. The affair was given at their home, 2512 Wisconsin avenue. Decorations were in keeping with the Valentine season. The guest of honor is a niece of Oreon Marie McKee, writer and poet.

The guests included Peggy Hurley, of Hyattsville, Md.; Mary, Donald and Jack Murphy, Mary Rouzino, Alice Davis, Ruth Harris, Peggy Patterson, Warren Robinson, Bernard Shark, Taro Okaxokia, Ruth Wagstaff, Margy Fields, Virginia Wilhelm and Caroline Tompkins. There were dancing and games for entertainment.

Tallulah Bankhead To Be Honor Guest At Club Tea Friday

The presence in Washington this week of Miss Tallulah Bankhead, daughter of the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William B. Bankhead, has caused a change in the program of the Congressional Club for its regular tea on Friday afternoon. Miss Bankhead and Mrs. Bankhead are to be guests of honor and the entertainment which was to have been presented by Miss Margaret Blish has been postponed until February 19.

The tea will be at 4 o'clock, instead of at 3, the usual hour for the club, and Mrs. Daniel Reed, president, will receive with the guests of honor. The affair is for club members only.

President's Court Plan To Be Topic of Lecture

Miss Janet Richards, will open her weekly review of "Public Questions: Home and Foreign," tomorrow morning at the Sulgrave Club, with a discussion of the reactions of press and people to the President's surprising proposal for enlarging the Supreme Court.

Omitting further reference to the floods and the Spanish War, she will touch upon a number of interesting "miscellanies" in the week's news, which pertain to international relations. The talks will begin at 11 o'clock.

Staying at Wardman Park.

Lottie Lehmann Sings For Monday Musicale

Mrs. Roosevelt Attends Final Concert of Series; Many Luncheons Are Given at Close of Affair at Mayflower.

The final musicale in the series given Monday mornings by Mrs. Lawrence Townsend at the Mayflower was held yesterday, with Mrs. Roosevelt in the audience and Lotte Lehmann, noted German singer, and Caspar Cassado, Spanish cellist and composer, as the concert artists.

With Mrs. Roosevelt were Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Countess Potocka, wife of the Polish Ambassador; Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador; Mrs. Franklin K. Lane and Mrs. Adolph Miller.

The last concert, like the first, brought out a capacity audience of regular patrons, and this time, with the season closing, they seemed almost reluctant to leave the auditorium. Several luncheons were given following the program.

Entertains Artists.

Mrs. Townsend had the artists of the morning concert as guests of honor, as she always does. The Ambassador of Ecuador, Senor Capitan Colon Eloy Alfaro, was the ranking guest and others at the luncheon were the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik, and the Minister of Colombia and Senora de Lopez, Miss Zazi Aranha, Mme. Gueno do Brado, Mr. Paulo G. Hasslocher, Baron van Breugel Douglas, Mr. Otaker Kabelac and Mr. Michal Budny.

Others included Mrs. Sumner Welles, Lady Lister Kaye, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ellery Taylor, Mme. van Kaathoven, Mrs. Walter H. Schoellkopf, Mrs. Eugene Roberts, Mrs. William L. Crounse, Mrs. Andrew Wheeler, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Miss Rebecca G. Wellington, Miss Alice Tuckerman, Miss Janet Richards.

Mr. Ralph S. Hill, Mr. Walter R. Tuckerman, Marquis Edward Pallavicini, Mr. J. Clement Dunn, Mr. Robert T. Pell, Mr. Wyant Johnson, Count de Castellane, Mr. Waverly Taylor, Mr. George Thorpe, Prof. Urban Wolpert and Mr. Erno Balogh.

Princess Boncompagni's guests in her box were Mrs. John Holcomb, Mrs. N. Price Witaker, Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, Mrs. Lowndes Jackson and Mrs. Sophy C. Stanton.

Mrs. Leahy a Guest.

Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, was the guest of honor for whom Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Stevens entertained at the Mayflower after the concert. The table had as a centerpiece a model of the Merrimac, which had been loaned by the Navy Department. The favors at each plate were miniature battleships and the Navy colors, blue and gold, were carried out with jonquils in blue glass vases.

Senora de Alfaro was the ranking guest and others included Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia; the Minister of Greece, Mr. Dimitrios Sicilianos, Senora de Boyd, wife of the Minister of Panama; Frau Boetticher, wife of the Air and Military Attache of the German Embassy; Dr. Josef Nemecek, Counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation; Mr. Anis Azer, Counselor of the Egyptian Legation; Mr. Rastko Petrovic, Secretary of the Yugoslav Legation; Herr Ernest Meyer, First Secretary of the German Embassy.

Also among the guests were Dr. John B. Nichols, who was observing his seventieth birthday; Mrs. Nichols, Mr. Frederic Delano, Senator David I. Walsh, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Daniel Reed, Mrs. Frank Crowther, Mrs. Charles J. Colden, Mrs. Vincent Miles, Mrs. John R. Beardall, Commander and Mrs. Alexander Witherspoon, Commander Ralph Spalding, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, Mr. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, Mrs. Alonzo Tyner, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Charles J. Williamson, Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mr. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mrs. Henry A. Albers, Mrs. Louis Shapiro and Mrs. Arthur Wright.

Mrs. Fulton Entertains.

Mrs. Harry Fulton entertained at the Cosmos Club at luncheon following the musicale in honor of Mrs. J. A. Leavitt, whose husband was a former member of Congress from Montana. Her guests were Mrs. Houghton P. Fulmer, of South Carolina; Mrs. Will Whittington, of Mississippi; Mrs. Jeff Busby, Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton, Mrs. Melvin Merrill, Mrs. Frank Leetch, Mrs. F. V. Rand, Mrs. H. T. A. Lennon, Mrs. Merton B. Waite, Mrs. Errett Wallace, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. Clyde Leighty, Mrs. J. W. T. Duvel, Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, and Mrs. Paul Myron Linebarger.

Mrs. Fulton later took her guests to the music section of the Twentieth Century Club.

Mrs. Ralph Williiam Close, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa, was the guest of honor at luncheon at the Mayflower given by Miss Margaret Delano Gage, following the concert.

The company included Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps; Mme. Louis Sable, wife of the French Naval Attache; Countess de Castellane, Mrs. Charles M. Lea, Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d, Mrs. James D. Lynch, Mrs. Sheridan O'Connell, Mme. Fortunato Porotto, Mrs. Edwin S. Puller, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Baroness von Below, Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, Mrs. Francis Whitman, Mrs. Blackiston Wilkins, Miss Claire Elizabeth Lynch, and Miss Alice Garrett Wilkins.

The Bankheads See Daughter's Play at National

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead sat in a box at the National Theater last evening to see their daughter, Tallulah Bankhead, in "Reflected Glory." Mrs. Bankhead wore a long gown of black velvet and she and the Speaker were accompanied by Representative and Mrs. James R. Claybürgh and Representative Sam Rayburn, majority leader of the House.

Others in the audience were the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy and the Marchioness of Sant 'Orsola, the latter wearing a mink coat over her black satin gown; Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, with a party of friends; Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, the latter in a long blackvelvet wrap with a wide collar of white fur and gardenias in her hair, and Miss Elizabeth Sibley, daughter of, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley, in a green frock of sequins and a green velvet evening wrap.

At the end of the play, Miss Bankhead made a short curtain speech in which she said that although she'd played in this production for seven months, she'd never before had such a critical spectator in the audience. Whereupon she blew a kiss in her father's direction.

Miss Erin Samson, director of the Paris Study Group and daughter of Rene Samson, director of modern languages in Washington schools, arrived at her home, La Casita, McLean, Va., yesterday.

Gerard Swope Brother's Usher

Washingtonian Attendant at Boston Wedding February 27.

Mr. Gerard Swope, jr., of Washington, will be an usher at the wedding February 27 of his twin brother, Mr. David Swope, and Miss Sarah Porter Hunsaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Clark Hunsaker, of Boston. The ceremony will take place in King's Chapel in Boston, the Rev. Palfrey Perkins officiating.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, who is head of the department of aeronautical and mechanical enginering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Her sister, Miss Alice Hunsaker, will be maid of honor, and the other attendants will be Mrs. Rupert MacLaurin, Miss Louisa Spruance and Dr. Henrietta Swope, sister of the prospective bridegroom.

Mr. Gerard Swope will serve as his son's best man, and the ushers will be Mr. Isaac Swope, another brother; Mr. Jerome Clarke Hunsaker, jr. and Mr. James Peter Hunsaker, brothers of the bride, and Herbert Bayard Swope, jr., cousin of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip Mr and Mrs. Swope will live at the Swope estate in Ossining, N. Y.

Washingtonians Visit in Florida

Dr. and Mrs. Grosvenor and Miss Boardman Are Among Vacationers.

The exodus of Washingtonians to the South has been increasing every day, depite the fact that winter has paid the Capital only a passing visit this season.

Miss Mabel Boardman is visiting Mrs. E. Hope G. Slater at her Palm Beach villa and over the wek-end Mrs. Henry Rea gave a luncheon in her honor at the Gulf Stream Golf Club. Miss Boardman will return to Washington the middle of the month

Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor have arrived in Cocoanut Grove, Fla., to visit the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. David Fairchild, also of Washington. They will return to the Capital February 15.

Mrs. W. Royce Powell has returned to her home in Alexandria after an extensive visit to Miami Beach and Havana. In Cuba she was the guest of Mrs. Theodore Walmsley, whose husband is vice consul there. Mrs. Walmsley is the former Teresa Rennert, of Washington.

During Mrs. Powell's stay in Havana she saw many former Washington residents, including Senor Freitas Valle, formerly of the Brazilian Embassy, here, and now Minister to Cuba. Mrs. George Grant Mason, the former Jane Kendall, of Washington, entertained at a dinner in her honor.

Mrs. Roosevelt Guest Of Sponsors of Navy

Many Washington Admirals Also Present at Society's Annual Luncheon; Mrs. Russell C. Langdon Presides.

By Dudley Harmon.

Mrs. Roosevelt was guest of honor and almost every admiral in Washington was present yesterday at the annual luncheon of the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy. The group is made up of women, who have christened one of Uncle Sam's fighting ships.

Each year the society meets in Washington, combining business and pleasure. Business includes making arrangements for preparing for Annapolis sons of naval officers, who, without financial aid, might not be able to get there, and aiding the families of enlisted men. Under "pleasure" come yesterday's luncheon and the Army and Navy reception at the White House this evening, to which all members are invited.

Mrs. Emory Land, one of those in charge of arrangements for the luncheon, yesterday added at the luncheon a few facts to things we never knew before about the society of sponsors, saying:

"The wives of most Presidents are asked to join the society, whether or not they had a distinguished ancestor in the Navy.

"Sailors think it unlucky to sail on a ship whose sponsor has 'missed the boat' when trying to break the champagne bottle. To guard against this possibility, the bottles now are tied securely to the prow, and if they do not break the first time, some anxious sailor will run after it and complete the job.

"During prohibition charged water was made to do duty for the traditional champagne. Mrs. Coolidge christened a ship with this mild substitute."

Mrs. Russell C. Langdon, of New York, for several years president of the society, presided at yesterday's luncheon in the Patio room of the Carlton Hotel. There were about 130 guests present, seated at long tables decorated with jonquils, iris and other spring flowers. On a balcony overlooking the tables, the Navy Band played softly.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave a short talk after the luncheon, praising the work done by the society. She emphasized the need for patriotism, interpreting it as "the desire to have our country represent what we think it should represent." This, she said, could be accomplished in one way by taking steps to help the less privileged.

The First Lady wore a gown of pale blue silk with a pattern of darker blue design and a black velvet hat. The society presented her with a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Langdon wore a black frock with three-quarter length sleeves and a corsage of spring flowers.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, who sat at the speakers' table, wore a corsage of orchids presented her by Capt. Newton White, commander of the Enterprise, which she christened last year. Others at the speakers' table included the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison; Representative Nan Wood Honeyman, a cousin of Mrs. Langford, and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, in black with green ribbons on her peaked hat.

Both the next-to-youngest and the oldest members of the society were present yesterday. The former is Mrs. Buist Rivers, of Charleston, S. C., and the other is Mrs. Ella H. Micou, one of the founders of the society. Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, the youngest member, was unable to be there.

Among other guests was Mme. Lombard, wife of the Military Attache of the French Embassy, herself a sponsor, who wore a black hat with a feather pompom with her red silk frock. Others were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Henry Hough, Rear Admiral Land, Capt. and Mrs. Paul Bastedo, who were accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. John Greenslade; Mrs. James Helm, another sponsor, with her White House colleague, Miss Malvina Scheider, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary; Capt. Forde Todd who, as commandant of midshipmen at Annapolis, brought greetings from the Naval Academy; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Alfred W. Johnson, and Mrs. George T. Pettingill, wife of the Commandant of the Navy Yard.

Yesterday was quite a day for Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, another guest at the luncheon. Her first novel, "Encore for Love," made its appearance on the book stands in the morning. Another writer present was Mr. Paul Wilstach.

Others present included Rear Admiral and Mrs. George Rock, Mrs. Austin Kautz, in black, with a velvet beret; Miss Ethel Bagley, sister of Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the former Secretary of the Navy; Miss Nannie Barney, and Capt. and Mrs. Chester Nimitz.

Builders Map Low-Cost Home Program in U.S.

Group Discusses Construction of 1,000 Dwellings for Models.

The first step in co-ordinating the activity of units in the small home building field was taken yesterday at a meeting at the Raleigh Hotel, attended by more than 70 representatives of building material and home products industries.

The meeting was called by Dr. Wilson Compton, secretary and manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, to develop co-operation in the small home demonstration program launched recently by the lumber industry under the spnosorship of the Federal Housing Administration.

This program has for its purpose the construction of 1,000 small home units in 1,000 communities to show that it is possible to build attractive, comfortable homes in a price range of $2,000 to $4,500. More than 500 building material dealers in as many localities have signed "count me in" pledges to participate in the program, making a total of 1,060 houses already assured in this Nation-wide building project.

Bruce Wilson, director of education in the FHA, reviewed the activities of this organization in the small-home field, saying that the present campaign is the main-spring of FHA's promotional work for 1937.

Co-operation Sought.

Frank Carnahan, secretary of the National Lumber Dealers Association, through which lumber dealers are co-operating in the construction of the demonstration homes, urged all persons and industrial groups having substantial interests in the small homes market to get behind the present drive.

I. N. Tate, president of American Forest Products Industries, Inc., spoke of the subject before the conference as "more house for the dollar" and emphasized "delivering the finished structure" and "making the house easy to buy." He insisted that the "more house for the dollar" slogan has been theory long enough and must henceforth be made a solid fact.

Dr. Compton stated as his purpose in inviting this varied group of businesses represented in the gathering "the idea, the need and the opportunity of low-priced homes is bigger than any industry; that our purpose is to promote modern low-cost building. We are willing to our chance in competition with other materials for our fair share in the small homes building market." The gathering included accordingly the whole field of housing and public group interests such as chambers of commerce and the Government itself."

Need Is Stressed.

"There is," he said, "a national need for meeting the low-cost house problem within the limits of the existing building industry. The small homes demonstration program is partof a national movement to meet immediately the demand for residences corresponding to requirements of 70 per cent of the housing market."

A co-ordinating committee was apponted to develop ways and means for the participation in this program of all units in the building material and home products industry. This group, headed by Dr. Compton, includes B. A. Wilson, A. F. H. Scott and Theodore E. Damm, all of the Federal Housing Administration; D. M. Forgan and Lyle Harvey, representing the heating industdy; John A. Hall and C. C. Lowry, representing plumbing; H. M. Brundage, jr., American Gas Association; J. H. Speer nad C. M. Snyder, electrical; A. P. Haake and F. Stuart Fitzpatrick, miscellaneous group industries; C. E. Roxorough, Clayton Grandy and Stanley J. O'Connor, building matterials, and Frank Carnahan, National Lumber Dealers Association.

Policeman's Trial For Murder Opens

Somerset, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—Ten jurors were selected today for the trial of State Policeman Stacey Gundermen, first of 12 persons to face prosecution in connection with the death of Frank C. Monaghan, 64-year-old Uniontown Hotelman.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, chief prosecutor and personal investigator of what he termed the "dark ages" slaying of Monaghan while being questioned by police, said he expected to make the Commonwealth's opening statement to the jury tomorrow.

D. C. Area Liquor Tax Total Soars

Revenue from the liquor collection district which includes Washington and Maryland rose from $19,758,022 in 1935 to $33,075,495 in 1936, statistics yesterday showed.

The report was made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and it showed that the total liquor taxes for the country increased during the same period from $458,494,721 in 1935 to $569,081,879 in 1936.

The nearby State of Virginia reported a total such revenue had increased from $593,114 to $1,148,770.

Ohio Cupid's Assistant Retires From Judiciary

Bowling Green, Ohio, Feb. 8 (AP).—Cupid's assistant, venerable Probate Judge B. O. Bistline, is going to retire tomorrow, surrendering voluntarily the bench which he has made famous through issuance of marriage licenses.

In 20 years, Judge Bistline said he had issued more than 32,000 licenses, usually waiving the Ohio five-day notice requirement, so that Bowling Green has become synonymous with "Gretna Green" to the lovelorn. Now, at 65, he intends to travel, he said.

THE RULES
Please Read Them Carefully

1. OLD GOLD'S PUZZLE CONTEST is open to everybody with the exception of the employees of P. Lorillard Company, Inc., and its advertising and sales promotion agencies.

2. A group of not less than 90 puzzles which will become increasingly difficult as the contest proceeds will be offered for solution. Each puzzle will represent or in some definite way contain clues which will convey the idea of a name. The name may be that of a person, book, song, movie, city, state or nation. The earlier puzzles will be of the more elementary type, in order to assist contestants in familiarizing themselves with the principles for solving this particular kind of puzzle.

3. OLD GOLD will pay a First Prize of $100,000.00 and 999 other cash prizes (a grand total of 1,000 prizes aggregating $200,000.00) to the one thousand contestants who by their submissions achieve the one thousand highest scores through solving puzzles they are called upon to solve under these rules and who in all other ways conform to all of these Official Rules.

4. The puzzles will be issued for solutions in weekly series of six, and contestants are asked to solve and submit solutions EACH WEEK. The 1st Week's Series of 6 puzzles bears the release date of Monday, Feb. 1, 1937. Each Monday, for fourteen additional weeks, there will be another weekly series to solve. Contestants should solve the puzzles and submit solutions to same during the week following issuance date of each series. In submitting the solutions for any current series, a contestant is privileged to submit solutions for preceding series. Thus, a contestant entering the contest during the 2nd week should submit both the 1st Week's Series as well as the 2nd Week's Series; and a contestant entering during the 3rd Week should submit both the 1st and 2nd Weeks' Series as well as the 3rd Week's Series, and so on. All series should be qualified in accordance with Rule No. 7.

5. Contestants are requested to mail their solutions EACH WEEK, in series of six. The various current weekly series of puzzles, together with Entry Forms, may be obtained FREE at any place where OLD GOLDS are sold, or puzzles and ENTRY FORMS may be clipped from newspapers, magazines or circulars and will be equally acceptable.

6. Neatness will not count. Do not decorate your solutions. Just solve the puzzles in accordance with the rules. In case of ties as many of the prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied before any prizes are awarded for a less perfect submission; that is, if two or more persons tie in submitting the correct solutions to all of the puzzles then the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them and these two or more prizes will be awarded in the order of the accuracy of the submissions to a first or, if necessary, a second group of tie-breaking puzzles, the second group of tie-breaking puzzles to be accompanied by a letter as hereinafter specified. In event a second tie-breaking group of puzzles is necessary, contestants eligible to solve same will be required to accompany their solutions to this second tie-breaking group of puzzles with a letter of between 100 and 200 words on the subject: "The Increased Popularity of Old Gold Cigarettes in My Community as a Result of the Old Gold Contest." Only in case of ties still existing after submissions to the second tie-breaking group of puzzles have been checked will the accompanying letters be considered, and in that event prizes will be awarded on the basis of originality in description and general interest of the letters. In case two or more letters are judged of equal originality and equal general interest then duplicate prizes will be awarded.

7. To qualify for a prize, the contestant is required to accompany each series of solutions with three OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers, or three reasonably accurate hand-drawn facsimiles. Either will be equally acceptable. It is not necessary to make a purchase in order to compete. A contestant is privileged to enter more than one complete set of solutions, but each entry must be individually identified as entry "A", entry "B", etc. Each entry will be judged as a unit. No contestant is eligible to win more than one prize, the highest prize won by any individual entry submitted by that contestant.

8. Upon entering this contest and by the submission of solutions to the puzzles, the contestant agrees that the decision of P. Lorillard Company in all matters affecting the conduct of the contest, the acceptance of submissions, the making of awards and the measures invoked to insure individual effort in fairness to all contestants shall be final and conclusive. The P. Lorillard Company will establish an individual file for each contestant, but will not be responsible for submissions or communications unduly delayed or lost in the mail either from or to the contestant.

9. Each weekly series of solutions together with 3 OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers or facsimiles as specified in Rule No. 7, should be addressed to OLD GOLD CONTEST, P. O. Box 9, Varick St. Station, New York, N. Y.

Be sure you have familiarized yourself with these rules. Read them over again and then solve the puzzles.

A Rose For You

They took the talisman rose, the sweet peas, gardenias and buttercups and fixed them on desks or in coat lapels and brightened a winter's day. And then the office force asked Durward F. Fisher, refrigeration specialist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, how the idea ever was developed—who worked out this curious means of picking flowers in California, packing them in ice, loading them in airplanes and rushing them to a colder East to bring a fragrant, false sense of spring.

Mr. Fisher answers all such questions with a scientist's deliberateness; not with the inflections of a magician who is pulling a rabbit from a silk hat. Of course he was glad the sweet peas, talisman roses and buttercups gave even a false sense of spring to the cold reality—but he was more quietly glad that the ice-packed flowers had arrived fresh—that out of a test tube, so to speak, had come a successful experiment.

Explanation: Shipping flowers by air express isn't a new thing, but has endangered the blooms during winter months. The blooms would freeze in the unheated compartments. In the high altitudes, ordinary wrapping and insulation was ineffective. Shippers came to Mr. Fisher for a solution. What resulted embodied the "heat of fusion of water" principle.

Method: First, the flowers were packed in the ordinary shipping box, which was wrapped tightly with wax paper. Then 30 thicknesses of ordinary newspaper—which had soaked up about 10 pounds of water—were applied. This was wrapped in a wax paper again to hold the moisture, and then was slipped into a corrugated paperboard shipping box that in turn was bundled with 15 thicknesses of newsprint and one thickness of stout wrapping paper. Recording thermometers were fixed inside and outside of the package.

After reaching cold, rarified atmosphere, the water-soaked paper began to freeze and liberated the latent heat of fusion of the water. The heat was released, slowly, inside the package and retained by the outside wrapping or insulation of the dry newspapers. The safe temperature was gained.

Mr. Fisher thinks it's all quite simple, this magician trick of pulling a rose from ice and the office force thought the flowers were lovely things to fix in the lapel of winter.

"Lest some good custom," or "Capital" as in this case, should corrupt the political setup, Representative Wearin (Democrat), of Iowa, has reaffirmed his stand for removing the United States Capital from its present classical confines to the broader and more centrally located green fields of Iowa. He redug his heels into the idea the other day at a hearing before the Senate Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.

"I wanted to build a new one and leave this one here." Washington could become an art center, he held, but for the betterment of the political face the Capital should be in Iowa, Senator Wearin believes.

'When the Dawn Comes Up . . .'

H. A. Allard, of the Agriculture Department, says he is conducting no more experiments before dawn and this is unfortunate because a question was presented by his former experiment that never has been answered. You will recall that it was Mr. Allard, who for seven months went out before dawn to learn what birds do when they first awaken. He found out, and his findings—which embraced conclusion that birds are grouchy before breakfast—were widely publicized. But Mr. Allard never disclosed how a man can force himself out of bed, before dawn, for seven months. There would have been the story. Mr. Allard doesn't answer the question, even now. He says, merely, that he is conducting no more before-dawn experiments, which may, or may not, be significant.

Traffic Court Starts Shift Plan Monday

Staggered-Hour System Approved at Parley of Judges.

Two Drivers Face Hearings in Recent Auto Fatalities.

Traffic Court will begin operating on a "staggered hours" schedule Monday, Presiding Judge John P. McMahon announced yesterday following a conference of Police Court judges and police officials.

Under the plan, first proposed by Judge Edward M. Curran in his seven-point program for improving the efficiency of the lower courts here, traffic violators and policemen will appear in Traffic Court in three shifts.

Offenders who are arrested or "ticketed" in police precincts 1, 2, 4, 5 and 7 will be required to be in court at 9:30 a. m. Policemen from the Traffic Bureau and precincts 3, 9 and 10 will bring their offenders into court at 10:30 a. m. Traffic violators caught in precincts 6, 8, 11 and 12 will not be required to appear until 11:30 a. m.

At present all traffic violators are ordered to be in court at 9:30. Under this system terrific congestion has resulted with defendants standing in the corridors waiting for hours for an opportunity to enter the courtroom.

Only for Traffic Court.

Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, Inspector L. J. H. Edwards and Inspector P. H. Lamb attended the conference with the Police Court judges and expressed approval of the "staggered hours" plan.

Judge McMahon pointed out that the staggered hours will apply only to Traffic Court and will not affect any of the other branches of Police Court.

Judge Curran is at work on detailed plans for making effective two more of his recommendations which have received tentative approval of the Police Court bench. They involve establishment of a system of uniform fines and penalties and establishment of comprehensive system of Police Court records in the office of the Attorney General.

Three of Judge Curran's recommendations necessitate Congressional action before they can be made effective. They involve creation of a behavior clinic, appointment of a public defender to handle cases of indigent defendants and changing the name of the court to "City Court of the District."

Judge Curran's seventh recommendation called for appointment of a standing Bar Association committee to co-operate with the Police Court judges. Such a committee has been appointed.

Two Held in Deaths.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury held two motorists for Police Court action under the negligent homicide act after inquests into the traffic deaths of Moses Herman, 50, of 717 H street northeast, and Harold R. Randolph, colored, 16, of 708 Columbia road northwest.

Harry Hodkinson, 39, of 2009 Gales street northeast, was held responsible for Herman's death by the jury after it was testified the man was crossing H street near his home on the crosswalk. Hodkinson testified his automobile was traveling about 20 miles an hour when it struck the man.

Herman died in Casualty Hospital Saturday. The accident occurred Wednesday.

In the second inquest, the jury held Lonnie M. Brown, colored, 23, 1143 Fifth street northwest, in connection with Randolph's death.

Randolph died in Freedmen's Hospital Sunday of a fractured skull suffered when he was struck at Eleventh and Fairmont streets northwest. Witnesses told the jury the youth was bending over a wagon in the street when he was struck. Brown was first charged with reckless driving.

Ten-year-old Eldon Root, of 28 Todd place northeast, suffered a possible fracture of his skull late yesterday when he was struck by an automobile as he tried to cross the street at Lincoln road and Todd place northeast.

He was taken to Sibley Hospital, where physicians said his condition was serious. Witnesses told police the accident was unavoidable. The automobile, police said, was driven by Raymond J. O'Connell, 24, of 1940 Summit place northeast.

Mrs. Lulu E. Waltz, 55, of 1700 Kenilworth avenue, Hyattsville, Md., suffered internal injuries and a fracture of her right leg when she was struck by an automobile as she crossed the street on Defense highway late yesterday.

She was taken to Casualty Hospital, where physicians said her condition was serious. Lelis Peterson, 23, of East Hyattsville, driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving.

Auditorium Bill Goes to President

The Senate yesterday accepted the House amendment to the Robinson bill to establish a Capital Auditorium Commission and sent the measure to the White House for the President's signature.

The amendment provided for minority representation on the commission. As revised, the bill sets up a commission of five to examine the costs, sites and methods of financing a national auditorium for the Capital.

The commission comprises the chairmen and ranking minority members of the Senate and House Committees on Public Buildings and Public Grounds and the Secretary of the Interior.

District Code Revision Urged At Club Dinner

Monday Evening Group Hears Prettyman Outline Urgent Needs.

Revision of the entire District code and the launching of a major municipal building program were emphasized last night as among the Capital's most urgent needs at the Forty-first anniversary banquet of the Monday Evening Club at the Wardman Park Hotel.

E. Barrett Prettyman, club president and former corporation counsel, told 300 civic leaders assembled for the function that not only is the code revision imperative and the building program sorely needed, but also recommended clarification of the District's political status and cited the desirability of readjusting the executive branch of the city's government.

Prettyman, Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas; Representative James E. Quinn, of Pennsylvania, and Corporation Counsel Elwood Seat were the speakers at the banquet.

Tells Needs of District.

Prettyman outlined four points which he described as the District's greatest needs. These were: Determination by the legislative and executive branches of the Federal Government as to whether Washington is solely a Federal territory or whether it should be goverened as a municipality independently of Congress.

Modernization of the entire District code which he characterized as being out of date.

Initiation of a comprehensive building program to remedy existing deficiencies in the schools, penal institutions, libraries, and other local institutions.

Definition of the executive branch of the District government, which, he said, has become intertwined with various Federal bureaus in recent years.

Senator Capper said, Washington is, for its size, the Nation's best governed city, but emphatically pointed to the need of a new and modern jail and deplored the comingling of youthful and hardened criminals at Lorton Reformatory.

"And your police headquarters," he said, "is a disgrace to the National Capital."

Predicts Tax Increase.

Hhe predicted an increase in District taxes, expressing the hope that the real estate tax will not be seriously affected.

Home rule for the District was recommended by Representative Quinn, who said Washingtonians are entitled to privileges that other Americans have. He asserted, "the most vital thing to go after," is improvement of local public health conditions."

He also singled out the District's antiquated jail and its waterfront morgue for early replacement.

His suggestion to Washingtonians desireous of obtaining needed improvements was to "prapagandize" members of Congress, whom, he said, are only thinking too often of their constituents back home.

"Your job is to change them in this respect," he said.

According to Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, one of the District's most pressing needs is the granting of further powers to the commissioners.

London Times Correspondent Hits 'Sentimentality' of Press

News Feature Is 'Great Sin,' Sir Willmott Lewis Asserts; Says Papers Contribute to Individual's Standardization.

There is too much "sentimentality" and not enough unvarnished news in American and English newspapers of today, Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, said last night. He spoke at a dinner in the Raleigh Hotel to celebrate the 133d anniversary of the founding of The Churchman, oldest religious journal in the English language.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, presided at the dinner. He emphasized the importance of church journals in solidifying the ranks of the church, praised the Churchman and urged the dinner guests to support it.

"The great sin of the press," Sir Willmot said, "is sentimentality. I don't mean sentiment. Sentimentality is an emotion for its own sake—not for the worthy object.

"This sentimentality in the press is exemplified by the feature. It works like Gresham's law. Gresham's law says that bad currency drives out good currency. And so it is with the feature, which causes a progressive deterioration of the news. News is no longer written as news, but as a feature."

"The desire for sentimentality is in part an expression of the confusion that besets the individual in this day and age. The machine has standardized. It has taken away the individual's initiative and individuality. It has minimized creative effort, imposed upon men and women the doing of the same thing, in the same way and at the same time every day. It has brought uniformity, centralization and montony.

"What is the press doing in our countries to help the individual to capture and hold the essential dignity of the human being?"

The answer was, Sir Willmott said, that the press is feeding him sentimentality.

"I feel more deeply than I can say about this," Sir Wilmott continued. "I believe that there are obligations of leadership upon the press, which at this time the press is failing to take. The encouragement of sentimetnality means the corruption of that common will upon which democracy ultimately depends.

"A hundred years ago, man made the conquest of nature. But he has not yet made the conquest of himself. That is where the churchman can help."

Others who spoke in praise of the Churchman were the Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, D. D., rector of St. Thomas' Church; Mrs. Mary T. Bannerman, national chairman of the Motion Picture Research Council; Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the Washington Cathedral staff; the Rev. W. E. Rollins, D. D., dean of the Virginia Seminary; Dr. Thomas F. Opie, general chairman of the dinner, and Mrs. Richard Boekel, peace advocate and author.

Dr. Guy Emery Shipler, editor of the Churchman, told of a subscription that was lost by the publication. He said he recently received a letter from a man in Maine, who asked that his wife's subscription be canceled, explaining that he could not tolerate an editorial praising Roosevelt's inaugural speech. The letter, Editor Shipler said, concluded by saying:

"When you turn Republican again, we will renew the subscription."

'Dutch' Irwin, 4 Surrender; Sent to Jail

Five Abandon Appeal and Are Sentenced in District Court.

Abandoning their appeal to the United States Supreme Court, Morris E. (Dutch) Irwin and four others who were found guilty with him of violating the District's gaming laws a year ago, surrendered yesterday in District Court and were sent to jail by Justice James M. Proctor. Two others, Edwrad J. Gibson, who previously had surrendered, and Morris A. Mahone, who did not appeal, figured in the original conviction February 12, 1936.

Shielding his face from photographers, Irwin, who has long been a familiar figure in local sporting circles, stepped into the jail van and was whisked away shortly after his commitment had been ordered. All except Mahone, who has served his sentence, had been at liberty on bond because of the question of the validity of the search warrant which was used to raid Irwin's Fourteenth street gaming house. street gaming house.

Irwin is to serve a sentence of from 2 to 6 years; Gibson, 2 to 4 years; Wilbur S. Carroll, 1 year to 18 months; Leonard F. Hill, 1 to 2 years; Frank E. Crandall, 4 months to a year and a day, and James McIntyre, 4 months to 4 months and a day. Mahone, the seventh defendant, was given a 4 months to 4 months and a day sentence.

Last week the United States Court of Appeals denied Irwin's request for a reversal of his conviction, and the mandate was issued instructing the actual imposition of sentence. He and his associates had based their appeal on the fact the search warrant designated the "Humidor" as the place to be searched, while police raiders went all over the structure at 1121 Fourteenth street northwest in their search for gaming equipment. It took a truck to remove confiscated paraphernalia.

New Anacostia School Triples In Enrollment

The enrollment of the Anacostia Junior and Senior High School has grown from 428 pupils in 1935 to 1,170 at present, Dr. John Paul Collins, principal, told the Hillcrest Citizens Association, in session at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church last night.

He urged that completion of the present structure be speeded up to accommodate the crowds. When it is finished, the school can accommodate 1,400 pupils.

The association went on record as indorsing two-minute stop lights from Sixth street to Fifteenth street northwest, and from K street to Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Southeast Businessmen.

Creation of a new precinct for Benning, D. C., to reduce the area that at the present time must be covered by the Eleventh Precinct, was urged in a resolution adopted last night by the Southeast Business Men's Association, in session at 314 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

The group approved the erection of a new $1,700,000 bridge, approved by the Fine Arts Commission and the Park and Planning Commission, to replace the old Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge. Indorsement also was given for a Federal Auditorium. The association will hold its spring oyster roast at Annapolis March 14.

Church Group Celebrates Chimes Victory With Dinner

A dinner, attended by 20 members of the Blessed Sacrament Church chimes committee, with its main theme, "Let the chimes ring," was held last night at the Shoreham Hotel.

The dinner was held with a two-fold purpose. First, to honor the 22 men, headed by Frederick E. Altemus and Levin F. Handy, who raised $11,000 in two weeks for installation of the now famous Blessed Sacrament chimes.

Secondly, to celebrate a court battle won last week when Justice Jennings Bailey refused to issue a temporary restraining order to quiet the chimes, and to toast Michael J. Doyle, attorney, who represented the church in court.

In explaining the purpose of the dinner, the Rev. T. G. Smyth, pastor of the church, said:

"I do not want this affair to appear as though we are crowing about our victory. It is being held in appreciation of the work done by Mr. Doyle and members of the committee who made the chimes possible."

Installation of the chimes was completed in November, 1935. In May of the following year several prominent people living near the church made a complaint to the corporation counsel that the gongs were disturbing their sleep.

Father Smyth then had the Angelus, which usually is rung at 6 a. m., set back to 7. This, however, did not prove satisfactory to late sleepers and 22 persons entered complaints.

When brought up before Justice Bailey on a temporary restraining order, he said:

"I see no reason why these chimes should not be played. I, myself, live across the street from a fraternity house and manage to get a good night's rest. Those boys, I am sure, are much noisier than the church chimes."

Police Check On Assailant In Taxi Case

McLendon Left Lorton Under Conditional Release Law.

Application for Parole Had Been Rejected By D. C. Board.

While physicians at Providence Hospital fought to save the life of Roscoe W. Kirk, 52-year-old taxicab driver who was shot twice in the back Friday night, police launched an intensive check on the criminal record of his confessed assailant, Willie James McClendon, 25, colored.

McClendon, who had served a 3-year sentence for the holdup of a taxicab driver, was released from Lorton Reformatory last September after the Parole Board previously had refused to grant him a parole.

Freed Under 1932 Law.

He obtained his release under provisions of the District's conditional release law enacted in 1932 which allows prison authorities to deduct six days each month for good behavior from the sentences of prisoners serving three-year sentences. The good behavior deductions increase with the length of the sentence.

Under the indeterminate sentence law a prisoner is entitled to apply for parole after he has served one-fifth of his sentence. When McClendon applied for parole the board rejected his application because of his record and ordered him to serve his full term.

The parole board had no jurisdiction over McClendon's release when he completed his term, minus deductions for good behavior. But under the law McClendon was compelled to report each month to the parole board.

After shooting Kirk at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, when the cab driver disobeyed his command, McClendon leaped from the cab, discarding his overcoat and hat.

After Detective Sergts. J. J. Tolson, E. E. Thompson, Elmer Lewis and W. V. Christian identified the discarded clothing as that of McClendon's, parole board officers told them where they could locate the former convict. McLendon confessed readily.

Physicians said the bullets in Kirk's back are lodged in such a dangerous position they are unable to operate.

Jelleff Comments.

Frank R. Jelleff, a member of the Parole Board, in commenting on erroneous reports that McCledon was a paroled convict, said:

"It is quite important to discriminate between conditional release men and paroled prisoners. Both are under the supervision of the parole board until the end of the prisoner's full term, but the parole board has nothing to do with the time of release of conditional release prisoners. The latter are released by prison authorities at the expiration of their full time less time earned for good behavior.

"Paroled men are released previous to the end of their short term at the discretion of the parole board after being personally heard by the board and after a parole plan has been worked out satisfactorily to the board. This plan must include a job, satisfactory living conditions and the willingness of a citizen to act as parole adviser to the applicant.

"It is unfortunate that conditional release prisoners, who are not required to have a job, whose living conditions outside are not a part of the condition of his release, and for whom no adviser is required, should so often be confused in the minds of the public with paroled men. Often conditional release men are men who have been denied parole because of their previous records, only to go out and commit further crimes, yet the parole board is blamed for their release through misunderstanding of their status. Parole statistics for the past year in the District of Columbia indicate, I think, that parole is a wise and beneficial system for release of prisoners, and it is the hope of the board that the public, before condemning parole, will always be sure that facts in any particular case are correct."

Mrs. J. H. Ralston Dies in California

Palo Alto, Calif., Feb. 8 (AP).—Mrs. Sarah B. Rankin Ralston, 79, wife of Judge Jackson H. Ralston, international jurist, died today from pneumonia.

She was a cousin of John Hay, former Secretary of State.

The Ralstons, who spent much of their married life at Washington, D. C., had planned their golden wedding celebration for June 1.

Capital Firm Awarded Interior Building Work

A contract for $103,000 to Peterson & Co., of Washington for completion of the exhibit gallery in the new Interior Department Building was awarded yesterday by the Treasury Department.

Under the contract, the company will provide mechanical equipment, gallery cases and other facilities for the gallery.

3 Escape Flames.

Rocky Mount, Va., Feb. 8 (AP).—Three persons narrowly escaped death when fire destroyed a three-story brick building and a warehouse in the heart of the business district here yesterday.

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . . By Bob Burns

One nice thing about bein' natural is that you don't have to keep watchin' yourself all the time in order to keep up your standard. You can pretend to be somethin' you ain't and you might fool a lot of people for a while, but sooner or later somebody's gonna come along and knock the pins out from under you and down you go. I had an uncle back home, Uncle Fud, that had always been poor, but finally one day, he come into some money and his wife insisted that they move into Van Buren and build a big home. She was a social climber at heart and she was determined to crash the upper crust of Van Buren. The first thing she did was to invite all the society ladies of the town to her home so she could impress them. Everything went just as she had planned it and she knew she'd made a great impression on all the ladies when all of a sudden, my uncle came to the head of the stairs and he hollered down, "Maw, there ain't nothin' but clean towels in the bathroom. Is it all right to start one?"

U. S. Animals Being Shipped To Orient Zoos

Motley Collection to Leave New York Tomorrow; Assembled Here.

Bound for the Far East, home of strange animals that fill American circuses and zoos, a veritable "Noah's Ark" of American wild animals is leaving Washington today to show Asiatic zoo-goers that this side of the world also has its own share of queer creatures.

There's an amazing salamander that breathes through his skin instead of with lungs or gills; a tailed animal that carries its young in a pouch, and an American lion noted for his good nature.

Maybe an American wouldn't know them by this description, but they're all old friends. The queer salamander is the common "hellbender," which lives in Allegheny Mountain streams and vexes fishermen by grabbing their hooks. The animal with the pouch is our old friend the 'possum, and the lion is the well-known panther or puma.

Dr. Mann Is Leader.

So these and many other animals are voyaging to the Orient as part of the National Geographic Society-Smithsonian Institution East Indies Expedition led by Dr. William M. Mann. They will be presented as gifts to Asiatic zoos by Dr. Mann, and he in turn will collect rare animals of Sumatra and southeastern Asia to bring back to Washington's National Zoological Park. Dr. and Mrs. Mann and Dr. Maynard Owen Williams, staff representative of the National Geographic Society, have already arrived in Japan on their way to Sumatra.

The "Noah's Ark," contains 10 alligators, 2 jaguars, 2 mountain lions, 3 'possums, 2 raccoons, 2 black bears and 5 hellbenders. Like the animals in the original Ark, there is a male and female of each kind, but for the sake of peace in the families most of the animals will travel in separate cages.

Acting in the role of Noah will be Roy Jennier and Malcolm Davis, keepers from the Washington Zoo. Like Noah, they are provisioned for a long voyage, with 1,000 pounds of frozen beef, 100 pounds of frozen fish, 500 pounds of special bear bread, baked in the zoo's own bakery, a barrel each of apples, sweet potatoes and carrots.

Will Sail Tomorrow.

The "Ark," in this case to be the Dutch motorship Talisse, will sail from New York tomorrow and will take 40 days to reach Belavan-Deli, Sumatra, by way of the Cape of Good Hope. But the modern Noahs do not expect their animals will suffer from seasickness or confinement. When the ship reaches the tropic many of the cages will be placed on deck in good weather.

The alligators are expected to doze most of the way, especially if the weather is fairly cool. Like all cold-blooded creatures, the alligators' vital functions almost cease if they are kept a little chilly, and in that condition they will not need to eat much. They need no place to swim. A bucket of water sloshed over them now and then suffices.

For the two jaguars, this will be their first trip away from home, for they were born in the Washington Zoo 18 months ago.

Police Heads Investigate Crime Work

3 Inspectors Assigned to Inquiry on Orders of Maj. Brown.

Report Hints Detectives Have Lagged in Solving Crime in Precincts.

Dissatisfied by recent records for crime solution in the precincts, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday asigned three inspectors to make a survey of the work of precinct detectives, The Post learned last night.

Those named to study the workings of the precinct detective system are Inspectors Maurice J. Collins, former commander of the Seventh Precinct; William E. Holmes, who formerly commanded the First Precinct, and Edward J. Kelly, former homicide squad head and Third Precinct commander.

Inefficiency Seen.

It is understood that Maj. Brown ordered the survey after receiving a report from the department's statistical bureau which indicated that in several instances cases were not being solved and closed as rapidly or as efficiently as he deemed they should be.

Inspector Collins, questioned about his assignment, said he was not prepared to speak on the nature of the survey. He said he and his colleagues probably would begin the job tomorrow.

Asked if poor records in crime solution were the reason for the survey, Inspector Collins said that while some precincts showed excellent work in crime detection others had poor records.

Bill Has No Connection.

Collins said the bill now before Congress which would place precinct detectives under the central detective bureau had no connection with the investigation. This bill has been opposed by many precinct detectives who believe it would saddle them with additional work and longer hours.

As crime detection work is handled now, precinct detectives are in a general way responsible for all crimes committed in their precinct and are specifically assigned to the solution of minor crimes. Specific assignment of major crimes, grand larcenies, homicides, felonious assaults, robberies, housebreakings, etc., is made to detective sergeants of the central detective bureau.

Wrong Bill Passed, Senators Discover

The Senate yesterday passed and then reconsidered a District bill that it had acted upon under a misapprehension. The bill was the antigambling measure.

When the bill was reached on the calendar, Senator King, chairman of the District Committee, was called upon for an explanation. He thereupon explained a bill to provide for recodification of the District laws.

Later, while the Senate was in recess, King learned of his error. When the Senate resumed, Majority Leader Robinson stated that a merror had been made, and move that the action be reconsidered. The bill then was left on the calendar.

Miss Bankhead Given Ovation At the National

'Reflected Glory' Proves to Be a Vehicle of Diversified Mood.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"REFLECTED GLORY." Lee Shubert, in association with Homer Curran, presents Tallulah Bankhead, in a new comedy in three acts and five scenes by George Kelly. Directed by Mr. Kelly; settings designed by Norman Rock. At the National Theater.

THE CAST

Mr. Haslon ..... Clay Clement
Hattie ..... Elizabeth Dunne
Miss Sloane ..... Ann Andrews
Miss Flood ..... Tallulah Bankhead
Mr. Wall ..... Phillip Reed
Mr. Howard ..... Alden Case
O Waiter ..... Robert Bordoni
Bruno ..... Chester Miller
Stage Door Man ..... William H. Turner
Florence ..... Madeline Holmes
Mr. Omansetter ..... Edmund George
Irene ..... S. T. Bratton

The life of a stage star, it seems, is studded with vicissitudes that are varied and complex.

This was demonstrated in the National Theater last night when Tallulah Bankhead made her first Washington appearance in George Kellys comedy-drama of "Reflected Glory," a play of the stage and its people and the peculiar interlopers who have come to be known down through the ages as "stage door Johnnies." Muriel Flood was a grievous victim of these odd parasites, who seem to think that actresses are not so much human as natural prey for their romantic gallavanting.

Muriel fell desperately in love with a young bounder—and a handsome chap he was, too—only to find through the painstaking interest of her manager that he already had a wife and child, but no divorce. Then comes a huge basket of flowers from that charming chap she met in Rochester, or wherever it was, and her spirits are momentarily revived. Revived, that is, until he comes backstage after the performance to greet an old friend—and brings his wife with him!

Play of Disillusionment.

That is the sort of dissillusionment that forms the dramatic basis of "Reflected Glory." It is primarily a comedy of defeatism, but one spiced with much genial humor and occasional bursts of emotionalism that give it variety, verve and, at times, a quality of naivete that conspire to leave a final impression of an engaging, lively and wholly inconsequential play that is admirably acted by a majority of the members of the cast.

The first act, to these eyes and ears, is the least effective of the three. Its two scenes were played at a breakneck speed that destroys any possible suggestion of realism and reduces George Kelly's lines to the level of a Friday elocutionary contest in grade school—all but Miss Bankhead's. The second act, of two scenes, and the third, of one, adjust themselves a little more skillfully to the uses of realistic portraiture and are excellent in every detail.

Miss Bankhead's performance of the role of Muriel Flood, the young actress against whom the Fates seemed so persistently to shape their ends, is a variegated, vibrant, amusing and, occasionally, intensely emotional portrayal that displays her command of pace, lustiness of voice and dramatic fervor to fine advantage. She plays the role for all there is in it—and there is a good deal in it.

Takes Off Makeup.

I think I have already remarked in a daily column that Miss Bankhead takes off her makeup in the last scene of the play and becomes her persona propria again in plain view of the audience. With some actresses that might be considered heroic. Miss Bankhead is a young woman of such vibrant and dynamic personality that this innovation here becomes not a disillusionment, but an aid to tremendous personal appeal.

In the major male role of Hanlon, theatrical manager, Clay Clement contributes an interpretation that it would be difficult to excel. One suspects that he is the final choice of Muriel Flood as a partner through life and he plays the part right up to the hilt.

Phillip Reed turns in a suave delineation of the young philanderer, who cheats the object of his ostensible affection by concealing the fact of his marriage, and Elizabeth Dunne lends a gatling-gun diction to the reading of the part of Hattie, Miss Flood's inquisitive maid.

Star Makes a Speech.

Ann Andrews, cast as Miss Sloane, closest friend of Muriel Flood, plays with an elocutionary affectation that destroys every vestige of conviction the role might otherwise have had. Miss Andrews is not interpreting, she is merely reciting.

The remainder of the cast, recited in the small-type paragraph preceding these necessarily hurried midnight impressions, contribute generously to the general excellence of a play which won eight curtain calls at the conclusion of the last act last night and compelled its star to deliver a short and gracious curtain speech in response to the volume of applause accorded her by a large and representative first-night audience in which was included her father, the Hon. William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and party in a stage box.

3 Navy Fliers Die As 2 Planes Fall At Florida Field

Pensocola, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—Three Navy fliers were killed here today in two service plane crashes.

Cadet Ervin Kermitt Olsen, of Freemont, Nebr., drowned, and Cadet Ray Albert Schmidt, of Albion, Ill., narrowly escaped when the seaplane in which they were engaged in torpedo practice turned upside down and sank in Big Lagoon.

Earlier two Navy fliers were killed by the crash of a plane in which they were making flights to obtain flying condition information for the Weather Bureau.

The victims were Carl August Lind, 29, pilot and mechanist mate, first class, at the naval air station here, and William Adam Schnooberger, 39, of South Haven, Mich., chief aerographer for the station's weather bureau. The plane crashed near the country club north of the city.

Visiting in Canada.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Tallulah Bankhead Is Guest of Honor at Delightful Party at Mayflower Prior to Opening of New Comedy

Her Father, the Hon. William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House, Also Guest; Busy Week Lies Ahead; Variety Club Luncheon Is Graced by Presence of Many Notables, Including Players From the 'Hey Diddle Diddle' Company, Reopening the Belasco; News Notes and Gossip of the Current Theater.

THAT Sabbath evening cocktail party for Tallulah Bankhead, appearing this week at the National in "Reflected Glory," the new play by George Kelly, saw suite 237 in the Mayflower studded with vibrant personalities both in and out of the theater.

BELL.

Miss Bankhead, of course, was a radiant and brilliant guest of honor, glib in her responses to the overtures of the ladies and gentlemen of the press, who refrained from catechizing her with pencils and pads and sets of cut-and-dried questions. If Miss Bankhead prefers not to meet the drama desks en masse, she certainly betrayed no sign of that antipathy on Sunday night. The affair was completely and delightfully informal and cordial.

Among the latest of the arrivals, this column was a little too tardy to meet this brilliant young actress' distinguished father, the Hon. William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives. He had just left when we got there. For a moment there was a fear that we also had missed his charming daughter, but that proved a false alarm. She still was there and we finally met her in the melee of milling guests and had a brief but enlivening chat.

Asking no questions, except the one about the possibility of her and her father being at yesterday's Variety Club luncheon in the Willard, when Andrew R. Kelley, of the Times, and your reporter were the so-called "kings for the day," it still seeped out that Miss Bankhead may do "Reflected Glory" in London, where she was a reigning queen of the stage for some six or eight years, and that in this play the star has the opportunity to remove her makeup in the last act and so saves a great deal of precious time in getting out of the theater.

She deems this an heroic procedure for an actress, on the theory that makeup lends a certain glamour to any cast of features across the footlights and destroying that glamour must, perforce, destroy an illusion of picturesqueness that any player can ill afford.

This, needless to say, is a completely fallacious theory. Miss Bankhead is a vivid, vivacious and fascinating personality, regardless of grease paint and mascara.

Among those present at Sunday afternoon's gathering, in addition to the guest of honor and her father, were Claude P. Greneker, of the Shubert offices in New York; Edmund Plohn, manager of the National Theater; Jim Proctor, assisting with the promotion of the special flood relief matinee which Miss Bankhead is to give on Thursday, over and above the customary Wednesday and Saturday matinees; Betty Hudson, who broadcasts over WJSV and yesterday gave a tea for Ray Noble, headlining with his orchestra this week at Loew's Capitol, and a long list of others of importance in the amusement, radio and newspaper worlds.

All very gay, very inspiriting and very friendly. Whoever started the rumor that Tallulah Bankhead objects to being talked to, or to being companionable with kindred spirits, launched the basest of canards. Ask anyone.

Miss Bankhead, by the way, will experience one of the busiest weeks of her career in the National Capital during her present engagement. Not only has she volunteered to present the extra Red Cross flood relief fund matinee, but her social calendar is crowded with engagements with Washington's foremost political, social and professional circles. Her theatrical engagements keeping her separated from her father for months, and sometimes years, on end, she will fulfill many of her social obligations in his company. She inaugurated this filial reunion yesterday by lunching with the Speaker at the Capitol.

* * * *

The first of the luncheons of the Variety Club of Washington, Tent No. 11, in the national organization, held in the small ballroom of the Willard yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, ran itself off with some success.

Mr. Kelley, of the Times, and your reporter endeavored to assemble a group of personalities in their capacities of co-kings for the day and, barring one or two last-minute disappointments, contrived to get away with it, in a manner of speaking.

Carter Barron, chief barker of the club, opened and closed the proceedings, calling upon Dr. Abram Simon, one of the club's chaplains, to pronounce the invocation and then turning the affair over to Mr. Kelley and me. Between us, we were privileged to introduce as speakers Mr. John T. Lambert, publisher of the Washington Times; Mr. Marvin H. McIntyre, of the President's secretariat, and Mr. Eugene Meyer, owner and publisher of The Post, who made the principal address of the day.

In addition, we were fortunate in being able to introduce briefly Alice White, who took the microphonne for a moment; Lucille Ball, Martha Sleeper and Russell Hardie, all of the "Hey Diddle Diddle" company, which re-opened the Belasco Theater last night as a temple of the living drama. Jack Garrison, who returns to Washington as manager of the Belasco, and Edmund Plohn, the newly appointed manager of the National Theater, also were brought to their feet to make the acquaintance of the 125 Washington showmen assembled for the luncheon.

Altogether, a happy and a felicitous occasion, for which I wish hereby to extend my thanks to all those who so generously contributed their time and effort to make it a success.

Jim Moran, of the recording department of the Homer L. Kitt Co., made a phonographic transcript of the entire proceedings at the Variety Club yesterday and has promised to send me a record of it. Come up and we'll run it off one day.

Stephen E. Cochran, founder and president of the National Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, leaves Washington tomorrow to attend the New York premiere of "Fulton of Oak Falls," as guest of George M. Cohan, star and co-producer of the play. This production signalizes the reunion of the partnership of George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris and is one of the important events in the season of legitimate drama. The play opens in the Morosco Theater, New York, Wednesday night at 8:40. Mr. Cochran will be sitting in a front pew.

Appears in New Play at Belasco

In the cast of "Hey Diddle Diddle," which reopened the Belasco Theater last night, many former stars of the screen are prominently cast. Among them is Alice White, whose likeness appears above, a former vivacious player before the cameras for First National. Although Miss White has previously made personal appearances in Washington, this is the first time she has appeared here in a stage play. Anne Nichols, of "Abie's Irish Rose" fame, is the producer.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—If you only realized how foolish most Hollywood scandal-rumors are, you would laugh them off. Unfortunately, Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen have no way of knowing. Results of a recent bit of sleuthing may amuse you, as well as help you appraise the next salacious Hollywood gossip that shocks your ears.

NELSON EDDY.

Rumor 1: That Conrad Nagel was drunk in public. Truth: He is one of our upstanding citizens and churchmen. It seems that a drugstore messenger dropped a bottle of rub alcohol in a hotel lobby. Two women passed, sniffed the odor, spied Nagel leaning against a post—assumed the rest.

Rumor 2. That a certain actress takes dope (I delete her name, because the implication was so rotten that even to use her name in denial would be unsporting). Truth: a hair dresser told a customer the "dope" story. Said she had actually seen the "needles." I went to the star's dressing room, where there really were needles. She had been bitten by her dog, and a studio doctor had given her two injections (not dope) as an antidote against rabies.

I could provide other examples, but since every story I traced was equally untrue (and unfair) further proof would only b repetition. Gossip is uncontrollable, and each person in re-telling a story adds new spice. That is why a trivial family argument, when relayed through a dozen mouths, builds to divorce rumors. Remember that, next time you hear a dirt-laden Hollywood report.

At Nelson Eddy's home the other evening, he showed me the most amazing scrapbook of the season. It contains 26 snapshots of houses in Beverly Hills and Hollywood, all marked "Home of Nelson Eddy." These pictures were sent to him by fans who had toured the town with "movie guides," and had kodaked various homes which had been pointed out as residences of stars.

Not one of the houses identified as his home by the 26 fans was ever occupied by Eddy! Seems that the guides, since their customers knew no different, simply pointed to any house and said, "That's where Nelson Eddy lives." And as this was done in Eddy's case, the information given out was probably unreliable in other instances.

This town goes into such frantic frenzies. The latest is over color photography. Of all the mumbo-jumbo, mystery and technical direction I have ever seen, efforts to make color movies certainly take the cake. Watching such a picture in production is remindful of the early days of talkies, when a dozen inefficient men trying to look wise cluttered every set. Now these same men run in and out of scenes carrying sheets of tin painted various colors, while other "experts" spend their time peering at actors through trick lenses. Any minute, I expected a cameraman to reach into his magic box and pull out a pink rabbit.

Thought: Wonder if that tourist who finally talked Eddie Cantor into autographing the side of her cheek has discovered that Eddie's reticence included an indelible pencil?

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Joint recital by Lotte Lehmann, soprano, and Gaspar Cassado, violoncellist, in Mayflower Hotel ballroom Monday morning.

In excellent voice and in an eloquent vein of lyricism, Lotte Lehmann delighted her hearers yesterday morning with lieder singing of a superlative kind. The crisp precision of her diction, the clarity and warmth of her tone, the certainty of her phasing, and the persuasiveness of her emotional projections were matters to satisfy the connoisseur of vocal technique. For the layman there was the enjoyment of splendid singing by an artist whose vitality permeates a song and makes it seem a personal emanation.

Mme. Lehmann has a personality of magnetic radiance, and her artistry is such that she uses that magnetism legitimately in the service of music. Never is one conscious of any deliberate artifice, any seeking for effect, in her modeling of a song; her sincerity speaks in every coloring of a phrase, in every dynamic stress. The one disappointment in her program was the familiarity of the songs. From so consummate a musician one would have preferred a generous sheaf of Hugo Wolf.

Gaspar Cassado, insofar as one could judge from the limited disclosure of his ability in the short pieces that he played, impressed one as a violoncellist of distinction. It is not by such things as the Paderevski and Rinski-Korsakov transcription that his quality should be assayed. His technique is assurred and masterly, and his playing is a well-balanced combination of poise and fire.

In the occasional use of a slashing stroke of the bow one sees a reflection of Pablo Casals, with whom Senor Cassado has other affiliations of style. His tone is rich and vibrant, although not invariably perfect in intonation, and it has a notable smoothness in cantabile passages. He has at command a virtuosic brilliance.

Washington Chamber Music Society presents the Pro Musica Quartet (Bernard Robbins, Jeno Sevely, Hendrik Essers and Sidney Hamer) and Edith Schiller, pianist, in Phillips' Memorial Gallery Monday afternoon.

In the perennial hope of raising den, Leipzig and Berlin. Little Mamoney, Mozart in 1789 visited Dresterial profit resulted from his concerts, but he brought back from Potsdam a commission from King Friedrich Wilhelm for six string quartets and another from the Princess Friederika for a set of pianoforte sonatas. Only three of the quartets and one of the sonatas were written.

The B flat quartet is the lightest of the three in quality, and it is easy to imagine in the prominence of the violoncello part a flattering gesture toward the royal patron, who played that instrument with a skill not usual in kings. Notable in this quartet is the exceptionally long minuet, a delightful movement with a trio that anticipates a scene in "Die Zauberfloete."

Schubert's E flat quartet is in his happiest vein; the scherzo is positively impudent in its gayety, and the high spirits are only moderately subdued in the adagio. In contrast to this ebullience, Erno von Dohnanyi's second pianoforte quintet seemed, for all its robust vitality, an utterance of nostalgic melancholy.

Full of melodic invention and flavored with Hungarian idiom, it is richer in harmony than the C minor quintet and more consistently poetic. It was very competently played, and served to introduce as an ensemble Pianist Edith Schiller, who is so adept at the keyboard and so capable a colorer of tone as to be a valuable acquisition.

A top wave of Hollywood insanity curled right over last night's audience at the Belasco and left them both giggling and gasping. "Hey Diddle Diddle" is a bold, bold show, let it be known, even though sponsored by Miss Anne Nichols of pure "Abie's Irish Rose" fame.

But the fun is all good, even though unsterilized. Ancient but unrespectable Anglo-Saxonisms are flung hither and thither gleefully. The double entendres will crack your unbelieving ear drums. It's Hollywood at its nutiest.

Incipient stardom and incipient mumps provide the pivots for a story that is more original in its handling than its patterning. A threesome of little extra girls trying so hard to get along, and not too particular about the methods of their progress, a big director, afflicted, with jitters and temperament, and a producer of the former pants-presser type are the chief tanglers of the plot.

Elements of Success.

"Hey Diddle Diddle" has three of the important factors of big success—pace, a wealth of rich lines and a toppingly good cast. Last night, opening night, when all sorts of difficulties are the lot of the usual production, this play sailed through a full two and a half hours with not more than 10 lagging minutes.

Some of the biggest names in pictures appear in the cast, and it is a pleasure to say that these deserters from Hollywood appear to great advantage on the stage. Conway Tearle, as the super-temperamental director turns in a more exciting performance than he offered as God's gift to women in celluloid.

Alice White, whose name used to gleam over movie theaters in huge letters, plays a Southern sweety-pie—from North Dakota—with a luscious accent you couldn't cut with a buzz saw. Martha Sleeper, Hollywood graduate, has the romantic lead and does well by herself, smoothly and convincingly.

Lucille Ball Clicks.

But if there is one young person who is going to add to her professional stature in "Hey Diddle Diddle" it is Lucille Ball, just about the slickest trick you ever saw in slacks. Lucille has a fruity part to help along.

Gordon Berkowitz gives the authentic touch to the role of the producer who is always pulling such abdominal laugh-lines as, "Such an abdominal thing to happen to me!" Right next to him comes Don Beddoe as the poor guy who has to chase after the director and feed him liquor o rsejdlitz powders as the case requires.

Altogether, this "Hey Diddle Diddle" do-funny of a show bears all the ear-marks and other stigmata indicating a warm welcome on Broadway. It sizzles.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Feb. 8.

ROBERT E. SHERWOOD, now working for Sam Goldwyn, has written "The Adventures of Marco Polo" as a starring vehicle for Gary Cooper. One of the roles—that of Achmed, the cillain—seems ideal for Basil Rathbone, but he refuses to play any more villainous parts . . . The Goldwyn group therefore ganged up on Rathbone and described what a splendid role he'd have. "You'll be dressed all in white, riding a beautiful white charger at the head of a battalion of brave Arabs. Then you" . . . Then followed the most glorious description of what Rathbone would do in the story, and a roseate picture was painted for him. "So what do you say?" they urged, "Okay?" . . . "Just one thing," Rathbone replied, "Tell me—what does Gary Cooper do?"

Frank Albertson, who has been performing in "Brother Rat" eight times a week for the past eight weeks, broadcast part of his role on the Kate Smith program. Albertson, who never errs in his memorized stage lines, messed up his broadcast when he read those same lines from script.

CARSON KANIN, George Abbott's assistant, who was graduated from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts only three years ago, has been appointed a member of the Academy faculty . . . Kanin had arranged to direct a show for Harry Oshrin, the theatrical attorney.. During the negotiations he introduced his father, David M. Kanin, to Oshrin—and mentioned that his dad was a builder. Last week Garson approached Oshrin with regard to their drama deal. "Not for a long while yet," the attorney answered. "I'm busy now, on a Baldwin real estate deal. Your father and I are building a development there!" . . . Will Mahoney will go to the Coast for picture work . . . Ray Noble broke the record at the Paramount, where Harry Kalcheim's band policy is drawing dividends . . . When the President met Jean Harlow, what he said exactly was: "We've seen those photos of you kissing Senator Reynolds. I'm glad to meet you in the flesh."

HAROLD PEMBERTON, famed British aviation expert and son of Sir Max Pemberton, was killed in a London crash Thursday. Pemberton was the motoring and aviation correspondent for the New York Times until the depression years removed that added source of income. Last year the British income tax men examined his return and suddenly remembered that the New York Times revenue no longer was included. They wrote him, asking: "How about additional foreign work?" He replied: "If you hear of any, would you nice income tax people say what a nice motoring expert I am?"

SPORTS — The Washington Post — SPORTS

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

"I would say that the emotional hysteria attendant to college football is vastly overdrawn and——"

Sounds mighty like Prof. J. Thackeray Winklepuss, A. B., B. S., LL. D., etc., about to launch into a scholarly dissertation on the correlation of campus life and competitive sports as the guest speaker for the Old Fogies Luncheon Club, huh?

POVICH.

And now if Cliff Battles will pardon the interruption, for it was Cliff Battles who was talking, we will let him continue: "——and in professional ranks we have come to realize that those inspirational pregame pep talks by our college coaches were pure hooey designed to appeal to the undergraduate mind. That type of false courage, built around the duty of the team to alma mater, is distinctly out in the professional league."

This fellow Cliff Battles is a living lie to the popular supposition that two of the chief requisites of a professional football player are a strong back and a weak mind. The greatest star in the ranks of the Washington Redskins, currently here to discuss his 1937 contract with Owner George Marshall, is a scholarly sort himself.

This Battles is Phi Beta Kappa. He was, in fact, appointed to a Rhodes scholarship before he chose the ready money that a professional football contract offered him. The raging terror of the professional gridirons is quite something else again in mufti—a modest, earnest, ambitious young man on the watch for the niche in life that will be his when a broken leg, or a battered shoulder, perhaps, terminates his football income.

To Washington fans, the star of the National Professional League is unforgetable as the surprising young fellow in the backfield of West Virginia Wesleyan University, whose cleats probably carved a greater share of gridiron glory from the turf of Griffith Stadium than any other player who ever set foot on that gridiron.

Even as Washington football fans have been given to wondering what might have been the limits of Tuffy Leemans' distinction had he been playing with a nationally ranked team, fans here have always speculated what might have been the bounds of Cliff Battles' fame were he operating behind even a fair line or been given the benefit of anything but the insufferable blocking he received from his West Virginia Wesleyan teammates.

Fans here who saw Battles lay waste to the capable Georgetown teams in the early 30's like to picture him performing with a team that could truthfully set off his talents. But they are agreed that had he been given an even break in his supporing cast he would have been taken into the company of Grange and Heston and Thorpe and Eckersall and other truly greats of the gridiron. His matriculation at the comparatively small West Virginia college was his misfortune.

He went from college into the National Professional Football League in 1932 and it was in professional ranks that he immediately began to justify his well-wishers. Performing with the Redskins, he has three times been selected in the all-league backfield by the United Press and twice he has been voted that dictinction by a poll of the legaue's coaches.

All-American fame escaped him in college because of his affiliation with a small school but Battles, by his exploits in the National Professional League, has solidified indestructibly his claim to football greatness. Because in the pro league he met All-Americans on even terms, and more of 'em, yet still he was a standout.

College boys grow to manhood in professional football, Battles opines. Minus the fanfare of the student bodies and the cheer leaders and the bands, pro football separates itself from the mass psychology of the college dressing rooms, places a premium on individual skill and courage.

"Why, any coach who dared to try to play on our emotions like they do in the colleges would be laughed out of the league," Battles declared. "Our coaches are psychologists after a fashion, but not of the college coach type who appeals to the players as a team and points in feigned respect to the gray, ivy-covered walls of glorious alma mater.

"Sure, our coaches send us out there with a high spirit and a will to win, but he instills that in a different way. He knows he's dealing with post-graduates of football, who probably know all the fundamentals and aim only toward proper execution. He knows he's not talking to a bunch of kids he can whoop up to a do-or-die pitch with the fol-de-rol about the glory of the team.

"They appeal to our personal pride. They try to get 100 per cent individual performances and they know that if they get that, team play will take care of itself in the pro league. They tell Jones that he's a better tackle than Smith on the opposing team and they want him to go out and prove it. There's nothing hysterical or very emotional about it. They simply make the pro football player feel that he's expected to perform like a pro."

Battles spent the day talking 1937 salary terms with Marshall and admitted that a satisfactory agreement had all but been reached. Asked how he found Marshall as a man to do business with, Battles laughed.

"Well, they tell me I've been a star on the offense ever since I started playing football, but since I've been talking salary with Marshall, I've been strictly on the defense."

Lewis Decisions Ettore

Philadelphia, Feb. 8 (AP).—John Henry Lewis, of Phoenix, Ariz., light heavyweight champion, won a 15-round decision over Al Ettore, of Philadelphia, in a non-title bout before 13,000 tonight. Lewis weighed 181, Ettore, 192½.

Lewis won after a savage fight in which he floored Ettore twice for nine counts in the thirg round and finished with a rush in the closing rounds after Ettore's left eye was completely colsed.

The result, as was the case in their first fight early in January, came on a split decision.

Judge Matt Adgie gave Lewis ten rounds and Ettore five. Referee Leo Houck gave Lewis seven, Ettore four and called four even. Judge Spud Murphy called it a draw, giving each six rounds and calling three even.

The first fight, in which Ettore was given a split decision, aroused a storm of controversy. After five days the Pennsylvania Atheltic Commission changed the decision to a draw. Tonight's 15-round erturn bout then was arranged.

Maryland Entertains William and Mary Five

With its tournament hopes hanging in the balance, Maryland meets William and Mary tonight at College Park in the lone collegiate item on the sports menu. Hostilities get underway at 8 p. m.

William and Mary should not be much or an obstacle for the Terrapins, who have been bolstered by the addition of Charley Keller, star guard and scoring ace. The Indians are not particularly powerful on the court, while Maryland, when in stride, has a fairly smooth combination.

Doyle to Meet Staal.

London, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Irish Heavyweight Jack Doyle's match at Empire Stadium was postponed tonight until February 15 because his opponent, Jim Wilde, had influenza. Dutch Heavy Champion Harry Staal will substitute for Wilde in the bout.

Ascetic Hagen, Girds to Trim 'Smart Alecs'

WALTER HAGEN.

By the United Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 8.—Fifteen pounds slimmer around the waist and a teetotaler for almost a month, Walter Hagen tonight bought a new set of golf clubs and decided to start over—23 years after he won his first links championship.

The "Haig," perhaps the most colorful golfer in the history of his sport, is determined to win the British Open for the fifth time, "because I'm damn tired of hearing young smart Alecs call me a fat old has-been."

"A comeback is no easy business," explained the thin-haired veteran who once earned $40,000 a year playing golf, then dropped to $75 a few years back. "I've thrown away my clubs, worked off 15 pounds, and

Chicago Cools To Braddock Title Fight

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—A crack, opening up without warning, appeared today in the united front maneuvering to bring Champion James J. Braddock and Joe Louis to Chicago for a title battle in June.

In planning the spectacle as a feature of Chicago's charter centennial jubilee, the Sporting Club of Illinois, headed by Sheldon Clark, who lured Braddock with a $500,000 guarantee offer, banked on united support and apparently had it. However, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, chairman of the jubilee sports committee, checked in with a somewhat ominous statement. McLaughlin said he was not so certain that his committee, named by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, wanted to join in the promotion.

McLaughlin's statement voiced opposition to the promotional setup under which Mike Jacobs, of New York, would be co-promoter with the Sporting Club of Illinois, and suggested that the committee felt slighted at not having been declared in when negotiations for the fight started.

Joe Foley, matchmaker for the sporting club, explained that the jubilee committee was not consulted at the outset because the organization wished to have things all set before making an announcement.

Redskin Ace Is Visitor Here

West Virginia	1	5	.167

Georgetown's rejuvenated basket ball forces scored their third consecutive Eastern Conference victory last night at Tech High School, swamping West Virginia by a score of 51-23, to gain undisputed possession of third place in the standings.

The Hoyas were hot—the hottest they've been in weeks. Everything they threw at the hoop swished through, even shots that were thrown with hardly a thought of being made. The boys could have thrown Coach Freddy Mesmer up and he undoubtedly would have gone through without touching.

West Virginia was no match for the District team, although it probably was off its usual stride. The team that whipped Georgetown, 41-32, in their first engagement, at Morgantown, made only six field goals, and was held to two in the final period. Eleven successful foul shots helped boost its total but not enough to make any appreciable difference.

Bassin Is Star.

"Reds" Gocke, the visitors' ace and the league's second high scorer last year, was limited to one field goal by the close-guarding Hoyas.

It was a fairly close game during the first half of the initial period, although Georgetown dominated the action all the way. West Virginia kept within striking distance of its host for a time and threatened to make a real scrap of it, but once Mesmer's sharpshooters unlossed their big guns the issue never was in doubt.

One of the brightest stars for the eventual winners was left-handed Harry Bassin, who led the scoring with four field goals and a foul. Bassin played a smooth, steady floor game, helping set up plays as well as show the way in point-making. Tommy Nolan, Carroll Shore, Hank Bertrand, Don Gibeau and "Big Mike" Petroskey also looked good.

In a preliminary game the Georgetown Freshmen defeated the Y. M. C. A., 49-37.

82¾-Pound Sailfish Caught in 42 Minutes

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—Officials of the $7,500 Miami fishing tournament tonight reported John T. Teves, of Brooklyn, N. Y., had boated an 82¾-pound sailfish, the largest captured near here in 18 months. Teves brought the fish to gaff in 42 minutes.

Other record fish of the tournament, now entering its fourth week, are 33½-pound Allison tuna, caught by Benjamin Orlick, of Boston; 55-pound grouper, Milton W. Lusk, of New York; 28½-pound dolphin, Robert W. Kikesch, of St. Louis, and 27-pound barracuda, C. H. Baker, jr., of Spokane.

Glastonbury Is Winner In 5-Nose Texas Finish

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 8 (AP).—In a five-nose finish, Glastonbury, J. McPherson's 9-year-old, was awarded a photographic victory in the sixth and feature race at Alamo Downs today.

San Ardo was given second place and Show Boy third. The mile and sixteenth was run in 1:45. Jockey Earl Pool, one of the oldest riders in the game, rode the winner.

Glastonbury paid $11.10, $6 and $5.30; San Ardo, $7.50 and $4.90; Show Boy, $4.80.

Harden's Chin Eludes Roesch's Straight Right

Walter Johnson, Mickey Cochrane Agree On Dairy Farms, Tobacco Juice, the Yanks

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 8.—Walter Johnson and Mickey Cochrane sat in the lobby of a midtown hotel today and decided (1) dairy farming is a pretty good business, (2) a little tobacco juice would be good for the modern baseball, (3 the squeeze play is a thing of the past, and (4) the Yankees will be hard to beat this year.

In the course of an hour's idle conversation, they had these things to say:

Johnson—When we had the dead ball starting pitchers finished 19 out of 20 games. They used five or six balls a game. Now they use 35 or 40. They've made the game tough for the pitcher with the fast ball. Why, when I had a two or three-run lead, I used to let up and just throw 'em over the pan, and the boys would hit fly balls to the outfield. Now a pitcher has to bear down even if he has a 12-run lead.

Cochrane—Yeah, and they wear out so many pitchers that they're hard to find now. I wish I could get a couple of good young pitchers. In fact, I wish I could get one good pitcher, young or old.

Johnson—I tell you a little tobacco juice on that new ball wouldn't hurt. Boy, they'd be surprised today if they saw some of those sailers coming up to the plate. What a guy like Earl Hamilton (with St. Louis Browns) could do to a baseball was really something. It'd come floating up there big as a house, you'd swing at it and it wouldn't be there. Of course they kinda got out of hand. They were cutting the ball on their belts, using grease and paraffin and everything out there.

Cochrane—The public might not like that, though. Ruth educated them to home runs.

Johnson—Well, I think they would. They'd see some base-running again. I remember before the game we used to say "if we can just keep that guy Cobb off the boses." Boy, they really ran in those days. Now, for example, you never see a squeeze play.

Cochrane—What you raising down on that farm, Walter?

Johnson—I got cattle mainly. About 50 head, and I'm building a big barn. I like the farm. I got seven kids down there—five of my own and two of my sister's. I wanna get that farm in shape for those boys. Two of the boys, Walter, jr., and Ed are trying to play ball. Walter, jr., went South with Connie Mack last year and belongs to Omaha now. He's a pitcher and has a fair chance. Ed's playing short on the University of Maryland team. He's got feet as big as mine and he's all arms and legs, but he's probably got a better chance than the other boy.

Cochrane—You want them to be ball players?

Johnson—Sure, if they're good enough for the big leagues. Otherwise, I'd rather they stayed on the farm. But I still think there's a great chance to make money in the game. If I had some, I wouldn't mind investing in a club somewhere. How's your club, Mike

Cochrane—We're going to have a battle for outfield positions. We've got a couple of good looking kids

Santa Anita Flood Card Raises $40,000

Los Angeles, Feb. 8 (AP).—Ten thousand persons who turned out for today's special flood sufferers' benefit program at Santa Anita saw Chartres win the mile and one-sixteenth race and made it possible for the Los Angeles Turf Club, operator of the track, to donate a day's receipts of abqut $40,000 to the Red Cross.

Chartres, 7-year-old horse owned by Mrs. C. B. Howard, opened a long lead on the backstretch, saved ground in the stretch and won easily over Black Miss and Topsy Omar in 1:46 4-5.

The winner paid $7.40, $5.20 and $4; Black Miss, $69.20 and $28.60, and Topsy Omar, $8.

Roesch Bows To Harden In Upset

Texan Baffled by Foe's Aggressive Tactics; Loses Decision.

Silas Beats Guera in Co-Feature; Williams Stops Stout.

By Bill McCormick.

Ray Ingram, a transplanted Florida featherweight who has been knocking at the doors locally for many months, opened the portals to main event fights at Turner's Arena last night by scoring a unanimous decision over Joey Wack, a pug-nosed pug from New York.

A crowd of 1,000 which paid $1,164 at the gate, watched Ingram belt Mack about in an eight-rounder that shared top billing with three other bouts carded for the same distance.

There were no knockdowns, but the contest was a beautiful boxing exhibition and filled with some of the fastest footwork and leather tossing of the season. Wack's best weapon was a left, with which he painted Ingram's nose crimson on several occasions.

Ingram not only traded left for left throughout most of the fight, but he kept ramming both hands to the body from long range, ducking under leads to pump punches to the midsection and head, then dancing nimbly away before Joey could find him.

On The Post score sheet, Ingram won every round but two, one of which was even.

Roesch Beaten.

Ed (Hard Rock) Harden, an experienced heavyweight from Graham, N. C., was awarded a split decision over Max Roesch, a highly regarded heavyweight from Texas, in a special six-rounder.

Roesch was somewhat baffled by the Carolina clouter's boring-in tactics, and lacked the steam and fire expected from advance reports, although he did well enough to earn a draw in the opinion of Judge Charley Dunn and no worse than that in the opinion of some of the spectators.

Doug Swetnam, a local featherweight, practically stole the show by slugging his way to a unani-

Crusher Casey Throws Olsen in Finish Bout

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Steve (Crusher) Casey, the pride of County Kerry, used a double leg hold to throw the thick-necked Minneapolis blond, Cliff Olsen, in their finish match at Madison Square Garden tonight. The fall came after 32 minuites and 16 seconds.

Another importation from the Emerald Isle, Danno O'Mahoney, 239, was too smart and rough for Mike Mazurki, 228, New York, pinning him in 13 minutes 37 seconds with a body slam.

Venturi Gets Decision.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Enrico Venturi, of Italy, European lightweight champion, outslugged Jimmy McLeod, of Tacoma, Wash., to win the unanimous decision in an eight-roud bout at St. Nicholas Palace tonight.

No Lack of Vigor or Energy After Crowns—Adirondack Research records for days following moderate drinking of Crown Whiskies the preceding evening, showed energy and vigor not noticeably affected in the case of Mr. A. A. Phillips.

Tracing Accuracy Normal After Crowns—Minds and muscles functioned normally on days after moderate drinking of Crowns the preceding evening, according to records of before-breakfast examinations.

"Paralleled Regular Sleep" After Crowns—After normal drinking of Crown Whiskies the preceding evening, the Research Group slept without unusual disturbance, as proved by somnokinetograph—a machine attached to the bed for measuring restlessness.

Keep fit now, and

You'll feel better in your Middle Years

Conserve energy. Avoid late hours, rich food, overstrain . . . If you drink, choose the form of whiskey that is best for you. Use it sensibly.

Moderate use of Crown Whiskies by a group of normal men had no marked effect on sleep, appetite, or mental and muscular efficiency next day.

This is the verdict of a great psychologist after studying the reactions of these men over a period of 41 days—984 straight hours of work.

The 5740 records now in our files suggest that you will find rich-tasting, blended whiskey like Crowns kind to you. Ask for Crowns at the bar and serve them at home—and see.

Mrs. Denemark's Genie Palatine Wins Hialeah Feature Race

Filly Defeats Zay by 3 Lengths

Four Winners Ridden by Kurtsinger; Radio Charm Scores.

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 8.—The four-year-old Filly Genie Palatine, one of Mrs. Emil Denemark's favorite horses, won the featured Cocoa purse of 1 mile here this afternoon. Before the race, Genie gave the big crowd a free tip on her chances in a manner she devised herself. Earlier in the meeting, the Chicago-owned thoroughbred, after being brought onto the main track from the paddock, spread out her legs and stood still several minutes before her jockey or Outrider "Red Coat" Murray could get her to budge and go postward. Genie then went on to win. When the filly did the same thing before today's race, those who remembered what happened the last time rushed to bet on her and the Denemark pet easily won again, paying $8.80 for two.

Mrs. R. H. Heighe's Zay was second, three lengths back and a like margin before H. W. Jackson's Bulwrak. Genie Palatine finished in the fast time of 1:36 flat, giving her stable and Jockey Kurtsinger a double.

Genie Palatine was well beaten in her last two outings. Before that she won four straight races.

Bulwark was favorite in the field of six. William Woodward's Isolater, the only eligible for the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup, failed to show the improvement expected over his recent winter debut, when he appeared "short."

Once Genie Palatine had decided to cease standing and looking at the throng in the stands and get down to the business of joining her rivals to race, she tended strictly to the job. Kurtsinger, who rode three other winners, took her to the front, where she likes to be, leaving the mile chute. She sprinted into a lead of several lengths and never came back, scoring in hollow fashion. Zay was closest on the trail all the way, while Bulwark's rally came too late and barely beat Brandon Prince for the show.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's Radio Charm, a son of Jean LaFitze, chalked up his third straight score without being fully extended. Kurtsinger broke the Denemark youngster on top from the inside position. The colt went on to win by two lengths. Conniption, the favorite, provided chief contention while taking the place by a half-length from Remarkable, a field horse. Radio Charm returned $7.80 and covered the 3 furlongs in 0:35.

H. P. Headley's Pennine, a daughter of Supremus, that raced only once last year and once this season, was a successful good thing in the second, a 7-furlong event for 3-year-old maiden fillies. Paying slightly better than even money, the Kentucky-owned sprinter proved much the best. Catching the fast-starting Sister Fan after a quarter-mile, Pennine gradually drew away and reached the wire four lengths clear. Goldspray, always well up, finished gamely, to beat Sister Fan by three parts of a length for second money.

Chimney Top, a veteran that won at long odds at Tropical Park, repeated that feat in the 6½-furlong third contest. With the seasoned Jockey L. Hardy in the saddle, Chimney Top made all his own pace and drove first home by a length and a half to pay $22.30. Whooper forced the pace through the last half mile. He saved the place by a length from the lightly backed Naughty. Judge Leer failed to show anything for the talent.

In one of the most evenly waged contests witnessed in many a moon, Daytonian, Anglo Saxon, Jub Jub and Bain Marie came down to the wire noses apart as named in the photo finish of the fourth event of 1 mile for 3-year-olds exclusively. Isadore, the choice, was fifth. Daytonian, recently claimed by Mrs. W. R. Mizell from Maxwell Howard, for whom Earl Sande trains, raced on the inside of the bunched leaders all the way and just got up under Jimmy Stout's whip.

Kurtsinger rode his third winner of the day in the sixth race. The "Flying Dutchman" was astride Bugle Ann, which clicked by a length and a half at $10.70 for two. Ipso Facto was unable to aid favorite players, finishing second by three lengths over Chalphone. Sorceress relinquished the lead to Ipso Facto around the last bend, after which Kurtsinger made his winning charge with the forward-running Bugle Ann. The filly won going away.

Lone Hand won the day's final.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RADIO CHARM, $7.80, $3.60, $3.10; CONNIPTION, $2.80, $2.50; REMARKABLE, $3.80.

RADIO CHARM, a rapid breaker, broke fast and quickly opened a wide lead, swerved in the stretch, but was clear of the field at the time. CONNIPTION also got away fast, followed the pace and was next best. REMARKABLE was hustled along all the way and ran a good race. SINGING SLAVE had no mishap.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $800. For maiden 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:34. Winner, Hal Price Headley's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PENNINE, $4.10, $3.10, $2.50; GOLDSPRAY, $5.50, $3.80; SISTER FAN, $4.80.

PENNINE, much the best, moved into the lead at the far turn, drew away entering the stretch and won nicely in hand. GOLDSPRAY began to close ground around the turn and, finishing fast, was next best. SISTER FAN broke alertly, showed good speed for half a mile and held on gamely. ELIZABETH PARLEY slipped through on the inside, but tired badly in the final furlong. REIGH HELEN is worth noting.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE—FIRST AND SECOND RACES—PAID $20.60.

THIRD RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:05½. Winner, A. L. Copland, jr.'s ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHIMNEY TOP, $32.30, $9.90, $6.40; WHOOPER, $11.00, $7.30; NAUGHTY, $15.20.

CHIMNEY TOP broke well in motion and rushed into the lead, raced WHOOPER into defeat and drew away at the end. WHOOPER moved up with a determined bid and held on well. NAUGHTY slipped through on the inside and finished fast. QUICKLY, well up all the way, had no excuse. MARSON made a game effort. DARK WINTER closed with a rush and was running very strong at the end.

FOURTH RACE—The Sarrasota. One mile (chute). Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:32. Off at 3:34½. Winner, Mrs. W. R. Mizell's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DAYTONIAN, $27.10, $9.30, $6.50; ANGLO SAXON, $5.60, $4.60; JUB JUB, $7.40.

DAYTONIAN broke a bit slow, but was kept on the inside all the way. He got through and, closing gamely, under a hard whip ride, got up to win in the final nod. ANGLO SAXON was sent to the front, only to be collared in the final nod. JUB JUB, on the inside, was kept close to the pace and made a game effort. BAIN MARIE was outrun to the stretch, where she was steered to the extreme outside and, closing with a rush, just failed to get in the money. ISADORE had speed for 6 furlongs then curled up. SUNCRAX was never a factor.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (chute). The Cocoa. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:03. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENIE PALATINE, $8.80, $4.10, $2.90; ZAY, $4.80, $3.00; BULWARK, $2.60.

GENIE PALATINE, running in her best form, assumed the lead going into the backstretch and, perfectly rated along, easily held the race safe. ZAY was a forward contender from the start and was an easy second. BULWARK moved up fast on the inside, but faltered badly at the finish. BRANDON PRINCE beat a lot of tired horses. ISOLATER had speed for half a mile and then quit badly.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds, non-winners of three races since November 15. Start bad. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 4:32. Off at once. Winner, J. P. Eastende's ch. f. (3), by Greenock—Marie Augusta. Trained by W. R. Flemming. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:39.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUGLE ANN, $10.70, $4.50, $3.90; IPSO FACTO, $3.90, $3.80; CHALPHONE, $15.30.

BUGLE ANN, well ridden, ran into the lead in the final sixteenth and won going away. IPSO FACTO raced SORCERESS into defeat, assumed the lead on the turn, but stopped suddenly. CHALPHONE finished with a good burst of speed. PLAY LINE is improving. SORCERESS stopped to a walk after showing early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of three races since October 15. Start good. Won easily; place easily. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, U. Gratton's ch. g. (7), by Single Foot—Enchantment II. Trained by P. B. Codd. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:59.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LONE HAND, $6.10, $3.50, $2.90; BUSBY, $6.60, $4.20; ROSS, $4.80.

LONE HAND was much the best. He got away well, followed the pace to the far turn, where he ran into the lead, drew away and won easing up. BUSBY moved up gamely entering the stretch and was next best. ROSS came from far back a furlong before the start, was caught, broke good and showed speed for 6 furlongs, tired, and the boy began to ease him up. BROTHER NEWT had early speed.

Pass Rule No Better, Say 2 D. C. Coaches

Hagerty, Bergman Both Think Provision Is 'Same Old Rule.'

By Lewis F. Atchison.

At least two Washington coaches, "Dutch" Bergman, of Catholic University, and Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown, fail to perceive any difference in the pass interference rule, as rewritten by the American Football Coaches Association committee, from the provocative regulation of last season.

The cause of controversial storms after several important games last year, the rule was discussed at the December meeting of coaches in New York, but no action was taken as the majority felt that the proper solution had not been found. The proposed change was written by Gar Davidson, Army's coach. It reads as follows:

"During a forward-pass play, whether or not the pass crosses the line of scrimmage, there shall be no holding, pushing, tripping, blocking or similar interference beyond the line of scrimmage with any player of either team who is eligible to catch the pass.

"Other bodily contact, regardless of the degree of contact, as may occur when two or more eligible players make a simultaneous and bona fide effort to catch or bat the ball, should not be construed as interference."

"Never Was Illegal."

This wording, as Gus Dorias, Detroit coach and committee spokesman pointed out, is supposed to remove "pressure" from the officials. But does it? Listen to what Bergman has to say.

"I can't see where or how the official is relieved of any pressure in the matter, inasmuch as the rewritten rule is precisely the same as last year's. The one point they make—that bodily contact, regardless of the degree, should not be called interference. Well, has this ever been illegal? Two players can collide with the speed and force of express trains, but unless one shoves, pushes or fouls the other in a similar manner, it is no violation of the rule. I still think they haven't found the proper language to clarify this regulation."

"Same Old Rule."

It sounded like the "same old rule" to Hagerty, who was mystified as to how officials will be relieved of pressure. He, however, wanted an official copy of the proposed revision from Walter Okeson, chairman of the rules committee, to digest thoroughly before commenting on it.

Bergman emphasized the point that teams adhering strictly to the revised version would be seriously handicapped defensively. A halfback, he demonstrated, could be blocked out of a running play very easily, if he had to wait until certain that no pass was coming. Finally, he contended, the problem boiled down to a point of an official's integrity and ability, a human element that can not be standardized by rules.

Hagen Planning Comeback Attempt haven't even seen a golf ball for months.

"But I'm having a brand new set designed, will shuck off 20 pounds more, and I'm practicing every day. Sort of funny that 'practicing,' after all these years."

Hagen, who won his first tournament—the United States Open at Chicago—in 1914, will sail with Joe Kirkwood for Australia Wednesday, travel slowly through New Zealand, then go to England in time for the matches.

The portly golfer has behind him the most impressive record of any shot maker in the business. Five time winner of the P. G. A. championships, Hagen captained the American Ryder Cup teams in 1927, 1929, 1931 and 1933, and in all has participated in more than 225 open tournaments.

"But that is all in the past. Right now I'm attending the hot rooms and getting myself massaged. Boy, but it's tough taking off those pounds," he explained. "I haven't had a drink in almost a month."

Hagen, now 45, has spent most of his life playing golf and designing clubs that bear his name. He has campaigned in England, Germany, France, Switzerland, Ireland, Hawaii, New Zealand, Austria, the Philippines, China and Japan, and organized the first professional tours.

In his 25 years of competition he participated in two of the biggest upsets in golf. The first was in 1928 when he stroked to 11 and 10 victory over Bobby Jones in a 72-hole match in Florida. In 1928 Archie Compston defeated him 18 and 17 in 36 holes.

3-Game Court Bill For Flood Aid Listed

WPA to Meet Crack Foe From Baltimore in the Feature Saturday.

A three-game basketball bill for Washington fans will take over the Heurich gymnasium Saturday in a benefit program for flood sufferers. A fourth game between the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the George Washington Freshman may be added.

Arrangements are complete, however, for a game between the District WPA five and the Bloomingdale A. C. of Baltimore. At present, this contest is the feature and finds the crack local five tackling a combination boasting 26 victories in 27 starts.

Ex-college stars comprise virtually the entire squad, including Matz and Baker, of the University of Baltimore; Tawney and Bucholtz, from City College; Bucklews, of Loyola College; Catafio, of Calvert Hall, and Lafferty, from Mount St. Joseph's. Emil Reitz, former star at Texas Christian, is managing the team.

In view of the flood benefit phase, the WPA is trying to have the WPA artists' group give entertainment between the halves of the two preliminary games, in which the Heurich Flashes meet the Y. M. C. A. and the Gonzaga Junior varsity meets an opponent yet to be named.

Commissioner George Allen, sponsor of the WPA team, has been asked to toss up the ball to open the feature game between WPA and Bloomingdale. The Gonzaga game will start at 6:30 p. m., the Flashes-"Y" contest at 7:30 p. m. and the WPA test at 8:30 p. m.

Daly, of Navy, Leads With 409 Set

Carroll Daly, ace Navy team shooter of the Federal League, turned in a neat bit of pin-spilling last night at Arcadia, leading Navy's three wins over PWA with games of 135, 134 and 140 for a sparkling 409 set. I. B. E. W. emerged victorious twice in its scheduled twin bill, trouncing the champion National Capital Parks five and War the odd games. Frank Cavanaugh accounted for one win with a big game of 162.

Ida Simmons, king of women duckpinners, kept this onea secret adn it would have remained so but for John Y. Dennis, former president of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress. Last week, up in Connecticut, Ida rolled an exhibition match against Nick Tronsky, former national champion, and defeated the Nutmeg ace over the Norfolk star only shot 687. The five-game route by 92 pins. The odds were 4 to 1 on Tronsky efore the match.

The Green Bag Coffee team continued to pace the teams in the Sanico League last night at Convention Hall. Tom Bradford, spark plug of the leaders chipped in a 156 game and 376 set to annex individual honors . . . Gleeson's 368 set in the American Federation of Government Employees League fell ut one pin short of Zurlow's season record score.

Cardinals Beat U. of Baltimore By 56 to 50

32 Fouls Called; Schmarr Is Big Bertha for C. U.; Loser's String Halted.

The 13-game winning streak of the University of Baltimore met a rough finish last night when Catholic U.'s Cardinals tossed the boys from the sister city back home with a 56-to-50 defeat in the C. U. gymnasium.

Fresh from an easy victory over the University of Tennessee, and beaten only by Navy in its first game of the season, Baltimore took an 8-to-3 lead but found the pace too hot, never regaining the lead after the Cards had rallied to tie the count at 22 to 22.

Insistent whistle-blowing by Referees Bruce Kessler and Joe Mitchell marred the game considerably and kept the fans in a rather irritated state as well as the players. A total of 32 fouls were called and four men were ejected for four personal fouls apiece. Catholic U. lost Ambrose and Pagano and the Marylanders lost Reisinger and R. Brown.

Capt. Hermie Schmarr was naturally the big bertha of the Card artillery, ringing the bell for 23 points, including nine field goals. His consistent basket manufacturing proved to be the ball game in the last half after it had brought C. U. into the running in the first period.

Pulvino, Pellino Star.

Pulvino and Pellino were a couple of twin howitzers for Baltimore, the latter piling in 18 points and Pulvino 16. It was through the efforts of this pair that the victory-saturated visitors got off to a fast lead which made C. U. look as though it was about to be consecutive victim No. 14.

The Cards retaliated, however, to tie the count at 9-9 and the lead seesawed to 22-22 before C. U. could take the lead permanently. From this point on, however, C. U. never trailed and had a 28-26 advantage at the intermission.

Baltimore rallied to the short end of a 48-46 score in the last half, but the Schmarr shooters pulled away to win clearly, if not comfortably. A large delegation of Baltimore fans accompanied the visitors to see the 106-point spectacle.

In the preliminary, the C. U. Freshmen tripped the Merrick Boys Club, 27-22.

mous decision over Dangerous Benny Kessler, of Baltimore, in an emergency bout.

Kessler stung Doug repeatedly with knockout rights to the head, but instead of dropping, Swetnam shook off the punches and waded in with both hands to produce some of the finest toe-to-toe slugging this arena has seen for many a day.

Silas Wins.

Sid Silas, veteran Washington welterweight, won a unanimous decision from Eddie Guera, of New York, in another of the scheduled eight-round co-features.

Guera displayed a flashy left hook, but had no other equipment the equal of Sidney's. The winner outboxed Guera, outpunched him to the body and landed enough staggering rights to the head to earn the award.

Charles (Hobo) Williams, the Alexandria middleweight, scored another quick knockout at the expense of Sonny Stout, of Newark, in another scheduled eight-rounder.

Stout fought back pretty well until his chin collided with a right hand which sent him plummeting to the canvas. Referee Muggsy Morris finished the necessary ten count just as the fight was 2 minutes and 47 seconds old.

Eastern-Western Game Today Key to High School Court Title

By John R. Vosburgh.

Very much fed up with Eastern's four-year rule of inter-high basketball, Western High barges across town today to thrash out the matter with the champions in person. The little get-together is booked for 3:30 p. m. at Tech Gymnasium and will probably decide which of the two is to make off with the inter-high title.

Western needs to win to go into a tie for first place. A win for Eastern will put the Lincoln Park leather-passers so far ahead that the other four schools would have a tough time overtaking them put together.

Lest we forget, there is also another important date on the inter-between Roosevelt and Tech, at Roosevelt, also at 3:30 p. m. Both schools need a victory like a timekeeper needs a watch and the loser will be all but out of the inter-high landscape.

But in view of the Eastern-Western feud and the last time they ran afoul of one another, the entanglement at Tech is more or less stealhigh calendar today, a little matter ing the show today. Western is still a bit irritated at the way it let Eastern slip out of its grasp on January 12, when the Kelley chew overcame a three-point lead in the last 20 seconds of play, and won, 25-24, as the game ended.

On the basis of that appearance, and subsequent conquests in the series, the Northeast squad rates the logical choice to win, but there is a report going the rounds that Western will win and with something to spare. At this distance, it sounds like a pretty sound report.

Unless the gentlemen from Georgetown are suffering from a hangover from going through the paces against Wilson Friday, Eastern will be facing some embarrassing sharpshooting. Capt. Gerald Burns, George DeWitt, Paul Heil, Hugo Schulze and Hop Lomax are all addicted to finding the basket with contemptuous ease, and the way Burns and DeWitt flop long shots through the hoop is highly disconcerting to even such opposition as Eastern's.

Coach Mike Kelley of Eastern has a highly able center in Clint Quantrille, but he is a scoring weakling in comparison with De Witt. Western's chief worries will be Russ Lombardy, a long-shot artist of the Burns-DeWitt caliber, and little Carroll Colton, Chick Colley and Lee Lusby will probably complete the starting Eastern cast.

Although both Tech and Roosevelt are very much in the running for the interhigh championship a: this writing, one of them won't be by 4:30 p. m. or thereabouts. Tech upset the Rough Riders in their first game, 22 to 19, but is hardly rated to repeat today. Roosevelt, playing on its own floor, is fresh from its great victory over Western and Coach Herman Littman has Capt. Joe Comer, Frank Bailey, Irving Wicklein and his other sharpshooters pointed for the occasion.

Tech is weakened by loss of Dick See, California-bred guard, who is on the sidelines with a dislocated knee. Jimmy Vermillion, Len Mills, Walton Merchant, Tommy Dobyns and Johnny Williamson, all first stringers, are set to go, however.

Johnson, Cochrane Find They Agree

coming up. Chet Laabs, an outfielder, and Rudy York, a first baseman. I've been thinking about putting Greenberg in the outfield, where he won't get cracked up, but I talked to him just before he went South and he doesn't like the idea. As for me, I'm hoping to catch 100 games.

Johnson—Who's gonna beat the Yankees?

Cochrane—I don't think they'll get away to such a long lead this year, but they'll be tough. They're all tough!

Whereupon, Cochrane went looking for a strap for his wrist-watch, and the great Walter, now in his fiftieth year, started home to his farm.

On the Air Today

Lovers of better music will be delighted with the news that Arturo Toscanini will return to these shores late this year to conduct a series of programs for the radio audience. On behalf of the National Broadcasting Co., David Sarnoff, chairman of the N. B. C. board, invited the maestro, called by Mr. Sarnoff the world's greatest conductor, to return to America and broadcast a series of symphonic concerts with the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra.

Samuel Chotzinoff, music critic and friend of Toscanini, was sent to Milan to confer on the series. The result is best shown in a raidiogram received by Mr. Sarnoff:

"I am very happy to accept your invitation to broadcast a series of symphonic concerts. It is a great pleasure for me to think that I shall be able to put myself once more in touch with the radio public which gave me in my last season with the Philharmonic the greatest proof of its appreciation and sympathy. Arturo Toscanini."

Mr. Sarnoff added: "We are delighted to be able to secure the return of Maestro Toscanini to America. His incomparable genius will further stimulate and enrich musical appreciation in our country. In N. B. C. we are pursuing the policy of giving to our millions of listeners the greatest artists the world has to offer."

From the mail:

"Yes, sir, you must be getting old. Or maybe it was for some other reason that you made that faux pas in your column most recent. This morning, among your esteemed wordage, was an item to the effect that Hal Kemp's orchestra was only an outsider in popularity polls and that he never has contended seriously with Lombardo, Kostelanetz, ets., for top honors.

"Do you happen to remember a squib of some several days ago in your column in which you announced that for the second straight year Hal Kemp won the Nation-wide poll of more than 1,000 dance studios for the best dance orchestra in the country?

"Do you happen to know that Hal Kemp and Kay Kyser are gaining popularity very fast and that, outside of the lousy Shep Fields, Hal Kemp is the prime favorite with the students and class members of today's younger generation?

"The fad of college publications is to list, in order, the favorite dance orchestras. In order, these bands are Hal Kemp, Kyser, Noble, King, Heidt, Garber, Gray, Lombardo, Messner and Weems, with George Olsen, Benny Goodman, Sammy Kaye, Rita Rio and Henry King alsorans. (Shep Fields threw his rider.) Yours truly, A. C. E."

The only thing I can think of to add to what A. C. E. has reported is to repeat that Hal Kemp's orchestra doesn't rate in the national radio listener polls.

And many thanks to A. C. Z. E. and Miss Brown for their comments on "Man Versus Woman." After all, not to appear to be stuffy, the principal reward in doing any show on the air is to know that some folks are entertained by it. I can speak for the "woman" of this team, too, in saying we're having a lot of fun doing this program. Hope you're having fun at the other end.

Dust and Cold In Wheat Belt Push Up Prices

U. S. Visible Supply Shows Larger Decrease Than Expected.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Severe dust storms in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, with sudden cold following high temperatures throughout much of the domestic winter crop territory, forced wheat prices upward today.

A decrease of 2,282,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total was larger than expected, and this was also an uplifting factor. It was pointed out that the rapid rate of reduction implied the amount of wheat remaining would be unusually small on May 1.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ½ to 1¼ above Saturday's finish; May, 135@135¼; July, 117⅝@117½; September, 113½@113⅝; corn, 1⅜ to 2⅝ up; May, 109¾@109¾; July, 103½@103¾; September, 97¼@97⅜; oats, ¼ to ½ advance; May, 51⅛@51¼, and rye varying from ⅜ decline to ¼ gain; May, 112¼. In provisions, the outcome was 2 cents to 7 cents higher.

Atlantic Rfg. Starts New Gasoline Plant

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—The Atlantic Refining Co. announced today that construction activities had been started in connection with the building of a new thermal polymerization plant at its Point Breeze refinery here.

The new plant will be the largest of its type in the world and the first of its type in the eastern United States. It will involve an expenditure of approximately $2,300,000. Designed to produce gasoline from the gas generated during the "cracking" stage of the refining process, it will have a daily production of 62,500 gallons of gasoline.

Montgomery Ward Sets Sales Record

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today gross sales for the fiscal year ended January 31 totaled $378,944,690, an increase of 23.14 per cent over the previous year. This was the largest volume in the company's history. Gross sales in 1935 showed an increase of 17.1 per cent over the 1934 volume.

January sales totaled $22,378,088, an increase of 21.99 per cent compared with January, 1936.

Copper for Export Highest Since 1930

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Copper for export sold today in small quantity for 13.27½ cents a pound, .27½ of a cent above the domestic price level and the highest figure since May 3, 1930.

Simultaneously, some dealers advanced the price of domestic scrap copper and brass to 13.50-26 cents a pound from a flat 13 cents. The rise was not general, although trade sources said it might become so later in the day. These sources pointed out the foreign price has been the dominating factor in determining scrap prices here.

U. S. Steel Shares, Crossing Par, Lift Market to Higher Level

Average Advances to Peak Since April, 1931; Rail and Copper Issues in Demand; Wheat Gains.

By Frederick Gardner.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Feb. 8.—Racing through the $100 line for the first time since the depression, U. S. Steel pulled many issues in its wake today to new high stock market territory. While the General Motors strike deadlock continued as a cloud over the financial sector, buying stimulation apparently was found in a jump in steel mill operations and other constructive business news items.

Brokers thought the controversy over the Administration's judiciary reform plans had waned considerably as a market influence and the opinion seemed to prevail that the automotive labor conflict would soon be ironed out satisfactorily.

Although the day's price movements were not uniform, owing to lagging utilities and other backward issues, steels, rails, coppers, rubbers, aircrafts and a wide assortment of specialties pushed up fractions to around 3 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended with a net gain of .3 of a point at 73.1, equalling its peak since April 20, 1931. Transfers totaled 2,987,300 shares, compared with 3,319,810 last Friday.

Carrier loans were the principal forward movers in the bond division, reflecting strength of rail shares. The latter received attention partly on favorable January net operating income statements, and the action of President Roosevelt in appointing an emergency board to investigate and report within 30 days on the wage demands of the brotherhoods.

With export copper hoisted to another top for the past several years, stirring thoughts of another raise in the domestic rate, red metal leaders developed a hopeful following. Zinc stocks responded to a price hoist in this field, with low-priced securities turning unusually lively.

Settlement of the Goodyear workers' dispute and the belief tire prices may be lifted shortly aided rubber company shares. Goodyear also resumed dividend payments on the common and cleared-up accumulations on the old 7 per cent preferred. Aircrafts were given a late run-up as more favorable earnings estimates were made for some of the plane manufacturers. Montgomery Ward drew attention on the company's latest sales figures.

Among principal gainers were U. S. Steel at 101⅞, Bethlehem, 84¾; National Steel, 83¾; Republic, 35⅞; Crucible, 88; Chrysler, 128¾; Baltimore & Ohio, 25¼; Santa Fe, 75⅝; Southern Pacific, 51⅛; Southern Railway, 34⅝; Union Pacific, 133½; Anaconda, 35⅞; Kennecott, 60¾; Phelps Dodge, 35⅞; Montgomery Ward, 58¼; Lorillard, 28⅛; United Aircraft, 32¼; Douglas Aircraft, 71⅛; J. I. Case, 175; Deere, 123½; Du Pont, 173¾; Goodyear, 38⅛; U. S. Rubber, 57¼; Goodrich, 35½; Reo Motors, 8¾; American Zinc, 13⅞, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, 42¼.

On the down side as much as a point or more were General Motors, at 66⅞; Allied Chemical, 234; Western Union, 75⅝; Westinghouse, 158¼; Consolidated Edison, 45¼; Public Service of New Jersey, 51; American Smelting, 93¼; American Telephone, 182, and Yellow Truck, 32¾.

Commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago was ½ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher, and corn gained 1⅝ to 2⅜. Cotton was off 25 cents a bale to up 55.

Further improvement in operations of the heavy goods industry was accomplished by rising prices in most sections of the bond market today. Speculative issues exhibited the more aggressive tendencies while seasoned investment media, such as United States Government, high grade corporate and municipal bonds, received only different support. The seemingly paradoxical spectacle of high grades in search of a market while low and medium priced loans were taken at higher prices has become the chief discussion in trading circles.

Those who say investors await higher interest rates and others who look for higher yields in the near future appeared to have gained support today when the price of the unsold portion of the recently offered New York City bonds was lowered substantially.

Of the $50,000,000 of bonds brought out less than half were placed at the original offering price of 103½. The remainder was repriced at par today. The underwriters announced the new figure attracted investors who subscribed for most of the remaining issues. At the close of business only $7,516,000 was left in the account, they said.

This tendency of buyers to "wait out" developments pointing toward higher returns on their money was said in financial quarters to explain, partially at least, the relatively better demand for issues with a speculative flavor.

Most of today's activity centered in the domestic corporate list, where rails were pronounced favorites. These issues, which generally are influenced by the trend of heavy goods industries, received forward impetus from the announcement of an increase in the rate of the steel industry's operations. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s jumped 2 points to 79¼; North Western 6½s were ahead 2 at 90; Southern Railway general 6s advanced 1¾ to 105, and Allegheny stamped 5s added 2 at 68. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails gained .2 of a point to 98.

Steel Operations Advance to 80.6%

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week advanced 1 point to 80.6 per cent of capacity, compared with 79.8 last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today. A month ago operations averaged 78.8 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 52 per cent. The latest rate equals the figure reached in the week of January 18, which was the highest since February, 1930.

Retail Credit Experts Here For Convention

300 From Eastern Area Will Discuss Problems at the Mayflower.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Three hundred retail credit men and managers of credit bureaus in the eastern section of the country are here for their annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel. Basic principles of credit granting is the theme around which numerous addresses are being made. Speakers include many men who are prominent in credit affairs throughout the country. On behalf of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington, Abe Coonin, of William Hahn & Co., made an address of welcome yesterday. The annual dinner and dance was held last night. Mark Lansburgh officiated as toastmaster. Mr. Coonin is president of the local group.

Bermuda Trip Winners.

C. E. Warner, jr., and Mabel S. White, of Slauson, White & Rowe, Inc., distributors of Independence Fund for Washington and Maryland, have won a trip to Bermuda with all expenses paid, in the Bermuda sales contest, conducted by Independence Fund of North America, Inc. The trips were awarded to all sales representatives who have produced the largest volume of business during December and January. The winners, who will come from even as far as the West Coast, will sail on the Monarch of Bermuda, February 27, from New York and will make their holiday home in Bermuda at Hotel Bermudiana.

Fourteen managers and branch managers of Slauson, White & Rowe, Inc., in the District of Columbia and Maryland will leave February 15 for New York, home office of Independence Fund of North America, Inc., for a sales conference.

Richard A. Harris, American Security & Trust Co., general chairman for the annual convention of the National Safe Deposit Association to be held here in May, and Hans W. Ireland, same company, chairman of the convention program committee, met with the association's national officers in Philadelphia this week, to make arrangements for the local assembly. Following this conference, Mr. Harris will convene local committees arranging for the convention to be held at the Willard Hotel, May 6, 7 and 8. Three hundred delegates are expected.

New Budget Book.

An interesting budget book offering suggestions on how family incomes should be divided and expenditures checked, is being distributed by Security Savings & Commercial Bank. Suggestons are arranged for five classifications of incomes, showing amounts to be reserved for household and running expenses, food, savings, insurance, clothes, betterment and recreation.

Household expenses include rent, taxes, interest, insutance, maintenance and repairs. Operating expenses are fuel, light, laundry, supplies, automobile operation and household furnishing. Savings includes all investments. Clothing takes in new and old apparel and its repair. Betterment covers education, medical treatment, papers, books, magazines, gifts and children's allowances. Recreation includes entertainments, amusements, clubs and travel.

Printing Office Visit.

A tour of the Government Printing Office by members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, tomorrow night, has been arranged by United States Public Printer A. E. Giegengack. The inspection is part of the program of the chapter's public affairs committee, headed by Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank, and composed of John L. Bryant, American Security & Trust Co.; E. A. Ginnetti, Second National Bank; W. E. Schooley, American Security & Trust Co., and Donald E. Eyler, Security Savings & Commercial Bank.

1936 Gold Output 17% Higher Than 1935

According to preliminary figures issued yesterday by the Bureau of Mines, the total mine production of gold in the United States (Territories included) amounted to 4,329,273 fine ounces in 1936, which represented an increase of 640,364 fine ounces. The 1936 production was worth $151,524,555, which was $22,412,740 or 17 per cent greater than the 1935 value of $129,111,81. The price of gold in both years was $35 per fine ounce. The increase in production for 1938 over 1933 was 85 per cent in quantity and 126 per cent in value, and for 1936 over 1932 the increase was 68 per cent in quantity and 185 per cent in value.

Curb Prices Firm; Trading Declines

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Traders with buying ideas showed a preference for industrial, merchandising, mining and aircraft issues in today's curb market.

Volume was lower than Friday, although advancing trends were fairly broad. Aluminum Co. of America was bid up 3 points to 165¼ and gains of 1 to 2 were made by Great Atlantic & Pacific, McWilliams Dredging, Sherwin-Williams, Montgomery Ward "A," Newmont and Pan American Airways.

Utilities were mixed. Electric Bond & Share improved ¾, while American Light & Traction and Arkansas Natural Gas "A" gave up major fractions.

Goodyear Resumes Common Dividends

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Directors of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. today declared dividends clearing up arrears on the company's preferred stock and resuming payments on the common.

The preferred disbursement amounted to $14.75 a share and the common payment was 50 cents. The previous common dividend amounted to 25 cents February 1, 1932. The preferred dividend is payable March 25 to stockholders of record March 15 and the common on April 5 to stock of record March 20.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and subsidiaries, Akron, Ohio, reported 1936 net profit of $10,831,032, against $5,452,240 in 1935.

Gen. Motors Sales Slump in January

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Reflecting mainly shortage of cars owing to the strike, General Motors Corporation today reported sharp declines in January sales to consumers and dealers in the United States. Sales of cars to consumers in the United States dropped to 92,908 in January from 173,472 in December, and compared with 102,034 in January a year ago.

Sales of cars to dealers in the United States declined to 70,901 in January from 187,085 in December, and compared with 131,134 in January, 1935.

January sales of cars to dealers in the United States and Canada, together with overseas shipments, dropped to 103,803 from 239,114 in December and compared with 158,572 in January last year.

Retail Advertising Gains 4.6 Per Cent

Chicago, Feb. 8. (AP).—Advertising Age reported today retail newspaper advertising for January 1 to January 30 was 4.6 per cent more than in the same period in 1936.

Newspapers in 73 major cities carried 74,427,328 lines in the 30-day period, the publication said. For the one week ended January 30, the total of 15,775,136 lines was 5.8 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year.

Retail Credit Experts Here For Convention

Perley, trust investment officer, both of the American Security & Trust Co.; William H. Baden, vice president and trust officer, and Leonard Marbury, assistant trust officer, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Lanier P. McLachlen, president of McLachlen Banking Corporation, and George O. Vass, vice president Riggs National Bank, will leave today to attend the third-day session and dinner.

Hemphill, Noyes Changes.

Robert H. Menzel, connected with Hemphill, Noyes & Co. since 1932 as cashier in their Washington office, has been added to the sales department. Mr. Menzel, identified with New York Stock Exchange firms for the past ten years, attended Elmhurst College in Illinois and George Washington University in Washington. A member of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Mr. Menzel is an active participant in the sailing races of the Potomac River Sailing Association.

Percival R. Bailey, jr., who has been associated with the New York Stock Exchange firm of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath since 1932, will assume the cashier's position and devote part of his time to the sales department.

Air Trade Gains Here.

Air transport passenger business showed the greatest annual gain in this city's history during 1936, H. D. Ford, district sales manager for American Airlines, Inc., said yesterday. During the year just closed American Airlines transported 10,914 passengers in or out of this city, as against 7,957 passengers carried in 1935, a gain of 37 per cent.

"Furnishing better equipment, with faster and more schedules and greater comforts for passengers, plus the increased general confidence in flying, made 1936 a banner year for American Airlines here," said Ford. "During 1937 we expect another fine increase in business."

Business Notes.

F. V. McNair, general agent in Washington for the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., ranked among the first 20 of the company's more than 1,500 sales representatives in persistency of business during the last quarter of 1936, according to an announcement by A. L. Dern, vice president and director of agencies. This honor was won in competition with the company's entire sales organization in the United States, Canal Zone and Hawaiian Islands.

John B. Harrell, president of Columbia Building Association, celebrated his seventieth birthday recently and received congratulations from his many friends. Born in Suffolk, Va., he came to Washington in 1893, and became successful in the real estate and insurance fields before entering the building and loan business. In 1902, he organized and became president of Columbia Building Association, deposits of which have grown to more than $4,500,000.

G. Bowie Chipman, resident manager of the New York Stock Exchange firm of Laidlaw & Co., has left for a month's trip in Mexico.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 8.—A plan to curb the power of the Supreme Court by congressional statutes which would limit the court's power to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional was advocated in an address at the University of North Carolina tonight by Representative David J. Lewis (Democrat), Maryland, member of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, outspoken critic of the power of judicial review of legislation.

Ex-Kaiser to Celebrate.

Doorn, The Netherlands, Feb. 8 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of his entrance into army service tomorrow with a reunion of his former comrades in the Imperial Foot Guards. A delegation of five former officers and three former sergeants will visit the aging exile at Doorn.

And Here They Are!

J. P. McEvoy

J. H. STRIEBEL and J. P. McEVOY, creators of "DIXIE DUGAN," have been friends since their early boyhood days. Both are from the Middle West and both are alumni of Notre Dame University.

AFTER FINISHING college, McEvoy immediately began his writing career as a reporter and Striebel became a commercial artist. Although their paths diverged during this period directly after graduation, it was not long before they were working together again.

"SHOW GIRL" . . . the McEvoy play that Ziegfeld made a Broadway hit . . . was first a magazine serial that swept the country, then a play and, finally, a comic strip that became a best seller in America, Germany, England, Sweden, France and Denmark. Translations are still being made.

LATER, THE STRIP became "SHOW GIRL IN HOLLYWOOD" and then, preferring not to limit the heroine's activities to the stage and screen, the co-creators made it "DIXIE DUGAN."

THE TWO MEN still continue their successful partnership with "DIXIE" although they have by no means limited their activities to this single undertaking. Striebel is one of New York's most successful magazine and magazine cover artists and McEvoy's success in Hollywood is known to every moviegoer.

MEANWHILE the working girl with the smart clothes, personality plus and the million dollar smile . . . "DIXIE DUGAN" . . . goes right on making new wisecracks and new friends every day in the week. For you, she and her pals, appear exclusively in Washington, daily and Sunday, in The Washington Post.

Tomorrow . . . The Story of Ham Fisher and How His Creation, JOE PALOOKA, Came to Be One of the Most Famous Comic Strip Characters in the World.

Civil Liberties Group Reports Drive on Labor

La Follette Committee Asks $50,000 for Further Espionage Study.

By Sidney Olson.

The first Senate exploration into the shadowy background of alleged labor espionage, results of which were embodied yesterday in a preliminary report by the Senate Civil Liberties Committee, brought forth a lurid picture of a "colossal, daily drive in every part of the country to frustrate enunciated labor policy and to neutralize American labor laws."

The report, made by Chairman Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, in conjunction with a request for $50,000 to continue committee investigations, said:

"That private persons or interests should be allowed to maintain arsenals is surprising enough.

"That industry should be permitted to arm unscrupulous men under their own pay, gravely wearing the badge of the law, is startling.

"That there is allowed to flourish a gigantic commercial enterprise in which employers collaborate with professional spies in assaulting citizens because they exert their lawful right to organize for collective bargaining, is shocking to any true defender of constitutional government."

Seek Funds for Study.

The committee seeks funds to study vigilante and violence groups, "such as the Black Legion;" to survey the "private espionage and strike-breaking forces maintained by industry itself;" to inquire into "evidence of individual and communal violations of free speech and assembly by various authorities and organizations," and other violations of civil liberties.

Meanwhile, at the regular morning hearing of the committee, of which Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, Utah, is the other member, proceedings were enlivened by direct refusal of a Pinkerton Detective Agency lawyer to produce a list of company operatives.

The attorney, William D. Whitney, insisted heatedly revelation of the names would mean "possible violence and maybe murder."

Whitney said:

"The Pinkertons submit for your consideration records of innumerable and authenticated acts of violence by labor groups.

"One of our men, Ray L. Burnside, Detroit superintendent, who testified here, received a note ten days ago which said:

"'Scram, rat. Get out of Toledo and stay out.'

"The addition of the names of these comparatively unimportant individuals cannot aid legislation."

Taken Under Advisement.

La Follette took Whitney's request under advisement.

The report said revitalizing of the organized labor movement in 1933 "was bringing prosperity to the labor-detective agency, the strike-breaker and the purveyor of gas and machine guns to industry." It proclaimed "urgent need for thorough-going inquiry into a situation where one who dares take advantage of his legal right to organize imperils his constitutional rights of peaceful assembly and freedom of speech.

"He perhaps loses his job. He may even lose his vote.

"Companies under examination have tried to block the inquiry by various tactics. The detective business is normally secretive, keeps its books in code, destroys its records quickly, uses aliases, designates operatives by numbers or false initials, give blind addresses and sends its bills on plain paper to dummy names. It withers when exposed to public view, as in the State of Wisconsin, where agencies are compelled to register their operatives.

"Agencies purged their files before our August hearings—Railway Audit & Inspection Co. after their records were subpenaed. The Atlanta, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis offices of this firm tore their records into small pieces and disposed of them in waste baskets. Their trash paper was secured and great amounts of it reconstructed to form substantial evidence.

Large Gross Income.

"The known gross income of two leading companies, Pinkerton and Railway Audit, according to evidence, amounted in the period inspected, to $6,511,891. * * * Robert A. Pinkerton, president, who in 1935 held 70 per cent of the stock, received that year $129,500 in dividends. * * * The worker-turned-spie (for Pinkerton) received $1 a day.

"Labor spends money neither on espionage nor munitions. * * * Employers who are working peacefully with their employes and have no fear of trouble are talked into alarm.

"Although * * * the employer directs his spy forces against any kind of union activity, he cloaks his hostility under the pretext that he is defending himself and the country against communism. Pinkerton officials on the stand strove without success to show they accept industrial work only where the employer is anxious to stamp out communism. Lengthy questioning of six Pinkerton officials revealed that the agency had never refused to spy on unions of the American Federation of Labor, and that none of them could define or describe a communist. * * * Agencies frankly offer to help industry in establishing company unions.

"Twenty-five per cent of Pinkerton informants, it was testified, were union members.

"Operatives reports are edited, censored, padded and falsified by the head office of certain agencies to make the client think he is receiving enough for his money . . . The employer often receives untrue, inflammatory pictures of industrial difficulties in his plant.

"Pinkerton's . . . for the first seventh months of 1936 spent something like $240,000 of employers' money for corrupting men to sell out their fellow workers, and . . . assert that their company does no work on divorce matters . . ."

Leaders Are "Handled."

Describing what happens after the employer has learned union secrets through paid spies, the committee said: "He may . . . summarily discharge the more important union sympathizers. He may frame the organizers on charges of dishonesty or outrageous personal conduct . . . He may have them 'taken for a ride,' 'for a fishing trip,' or 'worked on,' terms used to convey that he hires thugs to beat them . . . He may blacklist union members . . .

"The private police corps appears to be more sinister, insofar as it is inextricably woven into every other condition of employment in the company town . . . Industry's own spy system remains to be investigated.

"Espionage has become the habit of American management. Until it is stamped out the rights of labor to organize, the freedom of speech, freedom of assembly will be meaningless phrases."

Sam H. Brady, Pinkerton Cincinnati superintendent, testified yesterday that General Motors Corporation recently sent him to Alexandria, Va., the home of John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, to get information on the C. I. O., now engaged in strike operations in General Motors plants.

What About the Years After Forty?

For many people who should still be in their physical prime, middle age brings increased cares, worries and responsibilities that often result in prematurely diminished bodily power. Glannux Compound Tablets are especially designed to improve this condition. They offer a safe, harmless home treatment which thousands of users say brought them welcome new strength and energy. Glannux Tablets are sold under a positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back. The generous full-size package is now specially priced at only 39 cents. The proven benefits which Glannux brought to so many others, recommends an immediate no-risk trial.

Search Continues For Missing Girl

Despite the fact she had been reported seen in the fashionable Connecticut avenue shopping district about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Majorie smith, 15-year-old daughter of Charles P. Smith, a member of the board of tax appeals, still was missing last night.

Detective Sergts. Eugene Lambert and Tom Nally, assigned to the case, continued their search for the pretty young girl.

She disappeared from home Saturday to go shopping. Police were told she had five or six dollars in her purse.

Sailor Who Tried To Sell Self Sent To Maryland Jail

John J. Anderson, jr., 24, unemployed seaman, who received an offer of $1,500 if he would allow himself to be used as the object of scientific experiments to determine the cause of airplane disasters, yesterday was sentenced to six months in the Maryland House of Correction on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile.

Sentence was imposed by Judge George B. Merrick, in police court at Hyattsville, Md., after Anderson had plead guilty to the charge. He also admitted three minor charges arising out of a troffic mishap at College Park, Md., last Wednesday, when he was arrested and jailed in default of bond.

Several weeks ago, Karl von Schilling, of Salt Lake City, was reported to have offered to "buy" Anderson for one year for the use as a "human guinea pig."

New Cabinet Opposes Fascist Rule in Japan

Veneration of Mikado and National Defense Are Stressed by Hayashi.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Feb. 8.—The ancient doctrines of veneration of the Emperor and worship of the national deities, as opposed to such radical modern ideas as Fascism, will be upheld by the new cabinet under Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, a statement of policy issued with the Emperor's approval said today.

It was a platform of contrasts. It linked insistence on the belief that a divinely-descended sovereign holds all authority with assurance that constitutional government would be maintained. It promised "brightness and cheerfulness" in foreign policy and also "replenishment of national defense."

Pledge Against Fascism.

Political authorities believed publication of the platform was designed to make clear at home and abroad that Japan had no intention of adopting Fascist forms of government.

Hayashi, who is also foreign minister and education minister in his concentrated eight-member government, tried further to reassure foreign nations as to his government's purposes in a rapid-fire series of interviews with foreign envoys.

Within two hours and a half he received individually 27 ambassadors, ministers and charges d'affaires. Joseph C. Grew, the American Ambassador, was one of the visitors.

To each, Hayashi explained it was his government's "ardent desire" to promote friendly relations with all countries, maintain the peace of east Asia and expand international trade.

Five Principles Outlined.

The platform laid down five principles:

1. Elucidation of the national polity—which means emphasis on the doctrine of a divinely-descended, all-powerful sovereign; encouragement of respect for the national gods among the people; advancement of national prosperity.
2. Advancement of constitutional government and a just administration, "harkening to public opinion."
3. Establishment of a definite foreign policy to insure peace of the Far East, promote world prosperity and seek improvement of international relations.
4. Perfection of national defense.
5. Improvement and control of industry in accordance with economic trends at home and abroad.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Feb. 8.—The navy ministry tonight issued tables showing its conception of how the three leading naval powers, America, Japan and Great Britain, compared in four categories of warships at the outset of the naval building competition launched with expiration last December 31, of the naval treaties.

The tables showed Japan superior to the United States in submarine tonnage and in light cruisers and destroyers, but far behind the other two navies in heavy cruisers and destroyers. Japan was shown to be outstripped by Britain in light cruisers.

(Reasons for the publication at this time were not given. However, it has been the custom of the Japanese Navy leaders to issue such tabulations, showing Japan's alleged deficiencies, at junctures when naval appropriations were under discussion.

(The new cabinet of Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, formed with the army's approval, now has under review the budget left by the preceeding Hirotacabinet, which included the largest naval estimates in Japan's history. That budget alloted the navy about $195,000,000, including expenses for the first year of a new construction program, understood to include two and possibly four battleships.)

Canadian Rail Employes Map Walkout Plans

117,000 to Leave Posts; Strike Vote Held Certain; Quiet Ordered.

Montreal, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Plans for "a peaceful walkout" of 117,000 Canadian railway workers were discussed here today at a secret meeting of officials of the 17 railway running trades unions who have called a strike ballot to determine if the majority of workers favor a strike.

The union heads last week rejected the majority report of the MacLean conciliation board which recommended 3 per cent of a 10 per cent wage cut be restored by November 1.

Howard B. Chase, assistant grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said today he estimated 98 per cent of the workers would favor a strike, but the full returns of the ballot would not be in before March.

Union officials issued a statement concerning today's meeting, which read in part:

"It is contemplated that they (the men in the meeting) will arrange for instructions to go to all employes concerned to the effect that if a strike is declared, it must be a peaceful walkout; members will be cautioned against performing any actual violence, or doing any damage to the properties of the companies. * * *"

Two Virginians Battle Supreme Court Change

Richmond, Feb. 8 (AP).—Former State Senator Benjamin Muse, of Dinwiddie, and State Senator Hunsdon Cary, of Henrico, urged tonight that opposition to the President's proposed reorganization of the Federal judiciary be transmitted to Virginia's delegation in Congress.

"The choice," Muse said in a radio address, "is between the American system of government as we have known it in the past and the almost unrestricted rule of Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Cary called upon the Richmond Bar Association to adopt resolutions at its annual meeting Thursday expressing opposition "in unequivocal terms" to the proposed changes.

That's one of the reasons why you should wear Dr. Locke Shoes

Dr. M. W. Locke SHOES for Men

Hard corns are a thickening of the skin caused by the foot moving forward and backward in the shoe. The Dr. M. W. Locke shoe prevents this friction by the use of the exclusive "cookie" (a support in the arch), which lifts and retains the arch in its accustomed place. This action prevents the friction and will, in most cases, eliminate bothersome corns. An ordinary shoe, which doesn't have this "cookie" has no possible means of eliminating the strain on the front part of the foot. Let one of our Certified Registered Fitters show you how these shoes fit in our modern Fluoroscope machine..... $11
